NDP Sweeps Saskatchewan In Stunning Election Rout

Thatcher to Quit As Grit Leader

Times News Services

REGINA — For the first time there will be two New Democratic Party governments in provincial power as Saskatchewan voters Wednesday handed a stunning rebuff to the Liberals.

Allan Blakeney, a 45-year-old lawyer, led an NDP upsurge that staggered even the most optimistic and ardent party supporters.

This left, also for the first time, the old-line Liberal and Conservative parties without power west of Ontario with NDP in control of Manitoba and Social Credit in Alberta and B.C.

Hard on the heels of his party's humiliating defeat, Premier Ross Thatcher announced today he will ask the party to call a leadership convention as soon as possible and that he would not be a candidate.

He said today the NDP will take over the reins of Saskatchewan next Wednesday at 9 a.m. The announcement came after a brief cabinet meeting.

Thatcher Won in 1964

Thatcher ousted the CCF, predecessors to the NDP, in 1964, after a 20-year reign.

Standing as counting ended for the night:

| | 1971 | 1967 |
|---|---|---|
| NDP | 45 | 24 |
| Liberal | 14 | 35 |
| Doubtful | 1 | — |
| Total | 60 | 59 |

The doubtful seat was Athabasca where Allan Guy, municipal affairs minister, was trailing in a see-saw battle with his NDP opponent, businessman Robert Dalby.

Mr. Blakeney, heading the party for less than a year after taking over from Woodrow Lloyd, had predicted winning between 34 and 36 seats.

Whopping Popular Gain

The biggest margin held previously by the socialists in the province was in 1956 when the CF had 41 seats and the Liberals 10.

At dissolution of the last legislature, the Liberals held 34 seats, the NDP 24, with one seat vacant.

The NDP showed a whopping gain in the popular vote, to 54.9 per cent compared with 44.3 per cent in 1967. The Liberals' percentage dropped to 43.1 from 45.6 in 1967.

The Conservatives, led by Ed Nasserden, failed to elect any of their 16 candidates as their share of the popular vote declined to two per cent from 9.8 per cent for 41 candidates in 1967.

It was obvious that most of the Conservative votes went to the NDP in spite of a pre-election plea by former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker that they support the private enterprise party—meaning the Liberals.

Six Ministers Toppled

The electorate took its toll of cabinet ministers as six were toppled.

Even Provincial Treasurer Dave Steuart, touted as a successor to Mr. Thatcher, barely escaped defeat in Prince Albert West.

Defeated were Industry Minister Clarence Estey, Mineral Resources Minister Alex Cameron, Natural Resources Minister J. Ross Barrie, Agriculture Minister Doug McFarlane, Works Minister Lionel Coderre and Labor Minister Don MacLennan. James E. Snedker, Speaker of the legislature, was forced into retirement in Saltcoats constituency.

Rank-and-file Liberal backbenchers fell like tenpins as the NDP gained 21 seats from the Liberals. Each party won one new seat and the Liberals gained one from the NDP—Moose Jaw North, where the NDP claimed that redistribution last year assured the Liberals of a seat.

The NDP swept all six seats in Saskatoon — winning one new seat and gaining four from the Liberals—and held ground in Regina. But the party gained most of its support in rural areas.

Federal Liberals were not welcomed by Mr. Thatcher during the campaign, in which the NDP held the provincial Liberals partly

WHY THE BOGEY DIDN'T WORK

Premier Bennett today linked the defeat of the Liberal government in Saskatchewan to the "disarray" of federal government policies.

"That's what the Liberals will get everywhere," Bennett said. In reply to a question, he said the federal Liberals would also lose if they called an election now.

Asked why the "bogey" of socialism didn't prove an effective campaign tactic for defeated Saskatchewan Liberals, as it did for the B.C. Social Credit party in 1969, Bennett replied:

"Here they had the alternative of a real grass-roots movement not connected with the reactionary Liberals in Ottawa . . ."

Press Freedom Battle Rages

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major constitutional legal battle over government secrecy and freedom of the press headed to the United States Supreme Court today after appellate rulings in government suits against the New York Times and the Washington Post over articles based on classified Pentagon papers.

As a Los Angeles federal grand jury began an investigation into how the top secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was leaked, three other news organizations today printed articles they said were based at least in part on the 47-volume report.

An appeals court in Washington ruled Wednesday The Post could resume publication of its suspended series after 6 p.m. EDT Friday. A similar court in New York said The Times could also resume but could not use any material the government contends is dangerous to national security pending a lower court review of those documents.

The U.S. justice department, which has sought injunctions against The Times, The Post and the Boston Globe on the ground that publication of the papers threatened national security, said it would appeal the Washington ruling to the Supreme Court. The Times said it would appeal the New York ruling.

OTHERS PRINT STORIES

Meanwhile, Knight Newspapers Inc., which publishes 11 newspapers, and the Los Angeles Times today printed articles they said were based on the documents. The Chicago Sun Times also ran stories it said were drawn from the secret study and from "government documents."

'U.S. to Blame for War'—See Page 8

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court granted immunity to two persons subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury investigating what a justice department spokesman called possible violations of national security laws.

One of the two granted immunity was Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employee of the Rand Corp., a defence department "think-tank." His lawyer said he wanted to challenge the federal immunity statute and Russo did not testify Wednesday.

A one-time Rand and defence department employee, Daniel Ellsberg, has been named by a former New York Times reporter as the source that gave the Pentagon study to that newspaper.

Ellsberg, in a CBS television interview with Walter Cronkite Wednesday, did not comment on that charge. But he said the notion that the study was leaked to embarrass former president Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" when the full document is made public.

The Chicago Sun-Times says in today's editions that documents in the study revealed that a key plotter in the coup that ousted President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam informed the U.S. embassy 26 days prior to the

CANADA 'FREER, STRONGER'

TORONTO (CP) — R. W. Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general and now an executive with MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., said today Canada would need an "almost totally managed society" to become independent of foreign investors. Bonner said the government would have to force people to invest savings in Canadian enterprises if the free flow of outside capital is stopped.

"I am convinced that Canada today is a freer, stronger, more independent nation than she would have been if she had listened to and accepted the arguments of economic nationalism," Bonner told about 175 delegates to the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism. (See Page 39.)

U.S. Dominates Money Inflow

OTTAWA (CP) — Another $285 million of foreign ownership investment came into Canada during the first three months of 1971, almost as much as the near-record figure in the previous quarter, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Foreign capital coming into Canada in long-term forms for direct investment in foreign controlled Canadian enterprises amounted to $290 million in the last three months of 1970, and to a record $302 million in the last quarter of 1966.

In the decade of the 1960s, the inflow of foreign direct investment in Canada totalled more than $5,500 million. Another $760 million came in during the 12 months of 1970. Figures for earlier years are not comparable because of the changing purchasing power of the dollar and the running down of dollar values on company account books over the years.

DBS said that in the latest three-month period for which it has statistics, net inflows from the United States accounted for 70 per cent of the total. Almost all of the remainder came from continental Europe.

'Yellow Journalism' Blasted Over Sex Survey Stories

HAMILTON (CP) — Health Minister John Munro lashed out Wednesday night at "irresponsible yellow journalism" for what he said were inaccurate and intentionally deceptive reports on the government's Youth Culture 1971 program.

He singled out "a Toronto newspaper"—not named—that published an interview with a worker involved in the youth study.

Mr. Munro told a meeting of the Hamilton East Liberal Association after a Commons statement by him on the issue earlier in the day—that there is no question of spying or secrecy involved in the attitude survey of Canadian youth.

In the Toronto interview, a young researcher has said the study "scares hell out of me."

200 HIRED

She said the government has hired about 200 young persons to observe their peers secretly. She quoted from her copy of the The Recording Procedure Manual, issued to researchers by the federal health department.

"Upon leaving the field," the manual states, "immediately proceed to a private or semiprivate location, e.g., park bench, restaurant, where you can transfer the essential items . . . to paper."

"In the case of extended observations it is recommended that this task be performed during, as well as after, the observation by retiring to the bathroom for a few minutes."

"Never return to the field with your notes," the manual instructs.

Mr. Munro did not deny that the manual also asks the young workers to determine how young people provide for sexual needs—whether through "regular dating patterns, prostitution, masturbation, hustling on street . . ."

But he said it was only one isolated item in what he called a "participant observation survey."

And, Mr. Munro said, the student researchers were told to identify themselves when questioning their peers.

CODE NAMES USED

The criteria of the study were determined by 32 team leaders, the minister said, and they state that no individual is to be named. Code names or initials were to be used.

A final report on the three-month survey will only be published if the team leaders agree unanimously, although the results will be made available to the health department, he said.

The individual reports were to be destroyed.

Mr. Munro defended the survey, saying it is needed to determine what goes on in the minds of young people today.

"The transient youth problem has become so big in recent years," the minister said, "we don't know the best way to go about it."

"How do we know how to set . . . up the best agencies and help them from city to city? That is all we wanted to do."

Six Victorians Hold Tickets for Sweep

Six Victorians will be watching the horses with more than cursory interest Saturday in the Irish Sweeps Derby at Curragh, near Dublin.

The six are among 10 Vancouver Islanders who have drawn tickets in the latest sweepstake. A total of 229 Canadians stand a chance to win one of the big prizes.

Victoria ticket holders are as follows, with horse's name, ticket number, name and nom de plume:

Dammar — BNE 21600, Joe Ellis, At Last.

Turbulent Eddy — ADD 83966, F. L. Norton, Tara.

Linden Tree — AEE 45937, Guss Prepp, Prawn.

Galileo-Galilei — XBX 73737, Mrs. J. Fisher, Honeymoon.

Wenceslas — ACC 70801, T. L. Moillet, What a Hope.

Grimaldo — ACK 83005, Lillian Jones, Nicky.

First prize is worth about $124,000 at current exchange rates; second prize about $49,600 and third prize, $24,800.

Holders of tickets on non-starters or horses out of the money each will receive a prize of about $1,100. The amount varies with the total pool.

The "super prize" of $480,000 was won by a Chicago couple — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department.

Albert Caldwell, 37, bought the winning ticket for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Her name was pulled from the huge revolving drum containing 4,554,560 tickets from all over the world.

The sweeps, held three times yearly, are international lotteries held in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland.

The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated since the sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada.

WAITRESS ON WELFARE WINS HALF MILLION

CHICAGO (UPI) — An unemployed cab driver and his girl friend — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department — shared the "super prize" of $480,000 Wednesday in the Irish Sweepstakes draw.

Albert Caldwell, 37, of Chicago's south side, bought the winning ticken for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Mrs. Williams' name was pulled from a huge revolving drum containing 4,554,569 tickets from throughout the world.

* * *

Caldwell says Mrs. Williams will marry him as soon as her divorce becomes final.

"I can't make my heart stop pounding" Mrs. Williams, the mother of two children, said.

Caldwell, who put his address on the winning ticket, was awakened early Wednesday and told the news.

* * *

"I've been a gambler all my life," he said. "I've always dreamed of the big money and now the Lord has answered my prayers. I'm so nervous I feel it right in the pit of my stomach."

Mrs. Williams first found out about the ticket from a neighbor who banged on her door at about 5 a.m.

"I thought the lady was crazy," Mrs. Williams said, "talking about a half million dollars. I didn't even open my door."

Vancouver Defeats Four Seasons Park

VANCOUVER (CP)—A plebiscite which asked ratepayers if they favored spending $9 million to purchase and develop 14.5 acres of land as an addition to Stanley Park was defeated Wednesday after failing to get the necessary 60 per cent majority.

Yes votes totalled 24,625 while 23,149 voted against, for a 51.5 per cent majority. Some 119,620 property owners in the city were eligible to vote.

CONTROVERSY

The plebiscite appeared to have decisively ended a controversy that built up to a head in the last year over plans of Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. of Toronto to construct three 30-storey apartment buildings and a hotel at the edge of Stanley Park.

Construction is expected to start next month. Two small hurdles remain, though.

A court case contesting four city bylaws which allowed a higher population density on the site than previously is pending in British Columbia Supreme Court. It has the backing of Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The second barrier is the presence of demonstrators who have squatted on the development site for several weeks, declaring it an "all seasons park." They vowed to stay until the development was blocked.

The owners have so far refrained from evicting them.

21 Hydro Operations Picketed

Picket lines were established at 21 B.C. Hydro operations in British Columbia today as the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers entered the third day of a near-full-scale strike against the utility.

Previously, only the Jordan River hydro-electric construction project was picketed. There was no picketing at the huge Mica Dam in the Interior.

Electrical service to customers continued with skeleton union crews remaining in generating stations. B.C. Hydro said it has reports of some outages in different locations which have been repaired. There was none in Victoria.

The picket lines were established at a number of B.C. Hydro construction sites in the Interior and three stores outlets in Vancouver.

The B.C. Federation of Labor, meanwhile, said it "will not stand idly by" if B.C. Hydro or the B.C. government attempts to use the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33) to force a settlement and a return to work.

If Mister Thatcher had stayed in th' NDP he might hev beaten himself.

Church Boat May Join Blast Protest

The British Columbia Conference of the United Church of Canada is considering joining a protest voyage to Amchitka Island, where the United States plans a nuclear test blast this fall.

Rev. Robert Morris of Victoria's First United Church, president of the B.C. conference, said Wednesday the church vessel Thomas Crosby V operated by the Prince Rupert presbytery may join the Greenpeace Mission sponsored by Vancouver's Don't Make a Wave committee.

Prince Rupert's approval would be required, he said, and permission would have to be granted by the Board of Home Missions in Toronto, which is responsible for the vessel's budget and care.

Morris said he did not know the cost of sending the Thomas Crosby V and its five-member crew on the six-week journey, and added "We want the crew to be willing to go, not ordered to go."

The B.C. Conference unanimously adopted a resolution that strongly protested the nuclear blast on Amchitka Island.

"We think that the test should not be held," Morris said . . . "and we are seeking a means to make visible this protest."

The explosion on Amchitka Island in addition to being close to an earthquake zone, would be closer to Russia, Japan and Canada than it would be to the U.S., he said.

Meanwhile, the Greenpeace mission has received word that the insurance on the boat will be reinstated, spokesman Jim Bohlen said, but is waiting for official written confirmation o fthe change indicated by federal Environment Minister Jack Davis.

The fisheries department had earlier said the insurance on the boat would be void because the vessel would not be on a fishing trip.

Some In, Some Out In MB Labor Trouble

Labor troubles which hit five operations of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Wednesday took a variety of turns today.

The company's plywood mill at Port Alberni remains shut down in a dispute over new grading procedures on the green chain. About 590 men working three shifts are off the job.

Fallers and buckers quit work at four logging divisions Wednesday in a dispute within the union over a new pricing procedure and working formula.

BACK ON JOB

At Franklin River south of Port Alberni and at Juskatla on the Queen Charlotte Islands the men were back today and the divisions at full operation.

The walkout has spread at the Eve River division which is not completely shut down at Kelsey Bay, three of about 35 fallers are back at work today and the rest of the operation is proceeding.

About 150 men are involved in the shutdown at Eve River.

John Squire, secretary of Local 1-85 of the International Woodworkers of America, said the fallers' walkout resulted from a complete misunderstanding among the rank-and-file of what the union executive has negotiated on a pricing procedure and working formula.

Loggers had claimed they were "sold out" by the executive which signed a new pricing agreement but Squire explained no agreement has been signed and when it is it will be taken to the membership for ratification.

PRELIMINARY

The document which has been signed is simply a preliminary agreement dealing with work practices, he said.

Of the dispute at the plywood mill, Squire said it is currently a stalemate over grading procedures which involve workload. Senior union representatives are working on it and there will be meetings later today.

coup that assassination of Diem was one of three courses being contemplated.

'Sources, which involved the Pentagon study, indicate that the administration of President John F. Kennedy did not order or engineer the coup, although it gave many signals that the coup would not be unwelcome," the Sun-Times says.

The Chicago newspaper also quotes "government documents" as revealing that Kennedy sent then Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson to Vietnam in May, 1961, with orders to "encourage" South Vietnam to request U.S. ground troops. Diem resisted the idea, The Sun-Times says.

Roger Hilsman, a former state department official, said Wednesday that two memos he wrote in 1963 about the possible overthrow of Diem were taken out of context and misinterpreted by The Sun-Times in its Tuesday editions.

The Sun-Times stories say Hilsman recommended Diem be overthrown if he entered negotiations with North Vietnam. Hilsman said the memos were "contingency documents" that had no connection with Diem's ouster in November.

SUGGESTION REJECTED

The Los Angeles Times says that the Pentagon study also showed that the National Security Council rejected a recommendation by a state department expert in 1963 that the United States pull out of Vietnam because it could not win the war aganst the Communists.

Paul M. Kattenburg, then head of the state department's Vietnam working group, made the recommendation but it was overruled by State Secretary Dean Rusk, the newspaper says.

The Knight Newspapers story, as published in the Philadelphia Inquirer, cites the Pentagon documents in reporting that Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara proposed a coalition government for Vietnam in 1967.

The story says the documents showed McNamara emerging as "a tragic figure who rapidly became disillusioned with the war he had recommended."

Three-Year Limit Set For Grants

The provincial cabinet has decided that capital projects won't "normally" qualify for any of the grants under the $25 million drug, alcohol and cigarette education fund.

Guidelines for the fund, set up at the 1971 session of the legislature, also limit grants to projects of three years' or less duration.

But Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today this doesn't mean the fund isn't available to help permanently established rehabilitation centres, for instance. It means grants won't be committed for more than three years at a time.

About $1.5 million annually is expected to be available for grants from the fund. Premier Bennett said earlier that the first grants may be made around Sept. 1.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE WHITE KILLER WHALE?

ELLSBERG . . . secret source of war study?

'U.S. to Blame for Every Viet Death'

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Daniel Ellsberg says the secret Pentagon war study he is reported to have leaked reveals the "sameness of war policy throughout four administrations."

"There has never been any year when there would have been a war in Indochina without American money fuelling it," he told Walter Cronkite in an interview Wednesday night on CBS-TV.

"The real lessons come from seeing the whole sweep" of the history, he said.

Ellsberg, former United States state department and Pentagon analyst who helped assemble part of the study, was identified by a former New York Times reporter as the person who gave a copy of the secret document to The Times.

SECRET PLAN

Cronkite is reported to have interviewed Ellsberg in a private home in the Boston area.

Parts of the study published first by The Times, then by other newspapers, have centred on the administrations of Johnson and John Kennedy.

One report said Johnson secretly planned to bomb North Vietnam while campaigning for re-election in 1964 as a peace candidate.

CONCLUSIONS NOT EASY

"It's really difficult to read those studies from the beginning and consecutively, and conclude that any one of those administrations would have behaved very differently than Lyndon Johnson did," Ellsberg said.

The study, which also covers the administration of Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower, "takes the issue out of politics," Ellsberg said, "and raises much more questions of whether we have been playing follow-the-leader a little too long."

Ellsberg said one of the main conclusions he drew after reading the study several times was: "The men who they (the American people) gave so much respect and trust as well as power, regarded them as contemptuously as they regarded our allies."

Ellsberg, 40, added that the study shows "it's hard to find men who lived up to the responsibility of their office."

He assigned to the United States "major responsibility for every death in combat in Indochina" in the past 20 years. Without U.S. supplies and money, he said, there would have been violence in Vietnam without a major war.

Cronkite introduced Ellsberg as "the man most frequently suggested as the source for the Pentagon documents."

"Perhaps because of his clearly delicate legal position," Cronkite continued, "he will not talk right now of whatever part he played in the release of the secret documents . . ."

Ellsberg, however, made it clear that he was troubled by the difference between the information he knew was in the secret study and what was being told the American people by its government.

Earlier Wednesday, his attorneys said Ellsberg is willing to talk to any government agency about the secret Pentagon report.

"Dr. Ellsberg has not been made aware of any request for his appearance by any government agency, including the department of justice," said his attorneys.

"Should such a request be made, Dr. Ellsberg will, of course, appear."

So far, the only government agency that admits to wanting to see Ellsberg, 40, is Rep. William Moorhead's freedom of information subcommittee. The Pennsylvania Democrat has given Ellsberg a standing invitation to tell the sub-committee how the Pentagon study got to the newspapers.

The department of justice issued a terse "no comment" when asked if it would request to speak to Ellsberg.

Two FBI agents tried to find Ellsberg at his Cambridge, Mass., home last Thursday, but he was not there. Justice department sources say that the FBI has been unable to locate Ellsberg, although they think he is still in the Boston area.

Justice officials emphasized that there is no warrant for Ellsberg's arrest. He is merely wanted for questioning. Justice officials said at first that they wanted to talk to everyone who had access to the Pentagon documents.

Firm 'Drains B.C. Wealth'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A lawyer for the British Columbia Federation of Labor said Wednesday that General Telephone and Electronics Corp. of New York is draining wealth from the province.

Alex Macdonald told the final day of a 13-day hearing into proposed rate increases for B.C. Telephone Co. that there was a run-off to the U.S. in 1970 of $3.5 million in B.C. Tel profits.

B.C. Tel is a subsidiary of Anglo-Canadian Telephone Co. Ltd. of Montreal, which in turn is owned by General Telephone.

Mr. Macdonald said that B.C. Tel paid dividends of $8.7 million, after tax, in 1970. Of this sum 51 per cent went to Anglo-Canadian, which in turn passed on $3.5 million to General Telephone.

"That is $1.50 for every man, woman and child in B.C. It does not take account of profits flowing from affiliates with which B.C. Tel deals."

'NOT INDIGENT'

Mr. Macdonald said that B.C. Tel was not an indigent company. Its rate of return on ordinary shares increased 57 per cent during the past 10 years, during which time the cost of living went up only 33 per cent. Its return on capital rose from 6.2 per cent in 1965 to 7.02 per cent in 1970.

"It is not a company which does poorly by comparison with the average Canadian firm. No increase is justified."

Mr. Macdonald asked the railway transport committee, which conducted the hearing, to consider what jobs might have been generated in B.C. had B.C. Tel's profits remained within the province.

He said it was no secret that the federation would like to see the telephone company as a publicly-owned utility.

"As it is these maybe the hands of Esau but the voice is the voice of Gen. Tel. On the question of quality of service and the subject of costs, the company is directed from without."

He said the company did not seek competitive tenders when it wanted to purchase equipment. It made no real investigation of the comparitive merits of different makes and types of equipment because it lacked any real independence. It was just a captive customer to affiliates.

One example of indirect runoff of B.C. Tel cash was $70,000 paid to a U.S. affiliate by Dominion Directory Co. Ltd. for training given to sellers of Yellow Page advertising, he said.

Dominion Directory handles the Yellow Pages in B.C. Tel directories and the B.C. sister company represents 90 per cent of its business.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL WARNS

'We May Have to Outlaw Women's Lib'

The Women's Liberation Movement, or at least the ideas behind it, may have to be outlawed some day, retiring Belmont Senior Secondary principal A. H. Stephenson said Wednesday.

"Taken to the extreme, the people who sponsor this seem to suggest that the women's place is somewhere outside the home, that homemaking is a second-rate type of employment," Stephenson told graduating students at recognition ceremonies.

He said that pressing this thought further will lead to the question of producing children in some other way, through science. It is possible that in future a man may have to go shopping for his ideal son at the neighborhood corner store.

ONLY NUMBERS

Stephenson also warned the students of the dangers of greater dependence on government, which could in turn put humans in danger of becoming nothing more than a number to which assistance is sent. Top award winners at the graduation ceremonies were Timothy Weckend, the IODE citizenship trophy; Derrick Hora, the staff proficiency trophy; Tracy Cooper, the Green challenge award.

Other award winners were:

The Door Is Still Open

THE QUEBEC GOVERNMENT'S rejection of the constitutional charter is disappointing but not totally unexpected, frustrating but not catastrophic. Premier Bourassa, in announcing his cabinet's decision, referred to the work that has been done over the past three years as "progress" toward the achievement of federalism, and the conference in Victoria as "a step forward in this direction".

Mr. Bourassa obviously does not consider the efforts in regard to the constitution as terminated or even to be long delayed. He has delineated the steps which could lead to a successful outcome, including a "clear and precise" constitutional text which could evoke a Quebec decision different from that announced this week.

In the meantime Canadians should take a calm view of events. Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, in his opening remarks at the Victoria conference, observed that "we may not succeed in coming to agreement in this meeting . . . Would all then be lost? Not at all . . . because, you see, we have a constitution . . . It was written by Canadians over 100 years ago and we have an amending formula."

That is cool common sense and it should be remembered now. Just as Quebec has not rushed in to accept what has been offered, so the rest of Canada should not feel obliged to agree hurriedly to counter-offers. The door to further negotiation has been left as wide open as Mr. Bourassa could leave it. If working toward a constitution was a good idea a week ago, it is equally so today.

The political position of Mr. Bourassa should be recognized. He must produce some positive gains for Quebec in the sensitive fields or he will not be retained in office to produce any gains for Canada. Apart from a reasonable measure of guarantee for French language and culture, the most convincing argument to the people of Quebec must be a prosperous, job-filled economy. Mr. Bourassa may be able to achieve that, but he has not yet been so successful. If the economic advantages of remaining an integral part of Canada are made evident, the pressure for individualistic financial arrangements with Ottawa should diminish. Re-threshing tax revenues is no long-term substitute for incomes from solid industrial production.

Mr. Bourassa, in supporting federalism, says that this must be sufficiently decentralized to reflect regional diversity. It should thus leave the provinces freedom of action to fulfil their responsibilities to their people; and it should permit the Quebec government to ensure the cultural future of its population. This, apparently, in the eyes of the Quebec government, the charter does not do.

Quebec criticism has centred on four main points in this regard. The charter, it is claimed, does not give Quebec priority legislative powers over health, welfare and income security. It sets up majority provincial voting powers in regard to amendment which Quebec could find constricting. It calls for considerable bilingualism in Quebec while leaving French-speaking minorities in other provinces without that guarantee. And it would not satisfy the Quebec demand for a wider choice in Supreme Court appointments and personnel.

Quebec has a vast fund of good will among the 16 million Canadians who are not residents of that province and who do not wish to see their country dismembered. It will be a sorry development for Canada as well as for Quebec if an overly introspective concern with matters of cultural preservation forces the erection by Quebec of politically massive and costly defences against dangers which do not in fact exist.

Political Prairie Fire

THE BIG DIFFERENCE BE-tween Saskatchewan's election results in 1971 and in 1944 may be summed up in one word: Manitoba. When the CCF swept the Liberals from office in Regina to establish Canada's first socialist administration the government was a maverick phenomenon, viewed as a freak unlikely to last and in any case with very limited national significance. But Mr. Blakeney's NDP avalanche that swept Premier Thatcher from office yesterday finds an NDP government next door in Manitoba.

There is now an NDP prairie bloc, embracing some two million Canadians, and the possibilities of this new situation range far beyond those of Mr. Douglas's tyro regime which saw a victorious dawn in Regina 27 years ago.

That government was to last a surprising two decades. With the experts still trying to discern the real reasons for Mr. Thatcher's ouster, there is no limit to speculation on the future of the Blakeney administration. Certainly, NDP supporters, nationally as well as in British Columbia, will have received a new lease on life and a new impetus to work.

National Liberals, faced with an election within the next year or so, will note that for the first time in history there is no old-line party administration west of Ontario. And there is no pro-Liberal government west of Quebec.

Whittled down from 35 seats to a mere 14, his chief lieutenants destroyed and his plans for the province facing cancellation, Mr. Thatcher wonders if it was a case of youth triumphant over age that put Mr. Blakeney into office.

With 45 seats in a legislature of 61, and 55 per cent of the popular vote, Mr. Blakeney should have adequate time in which to determine whether it was his generally more youthful set of candidates, his denunciation of the federal agricultural program, his promise to institute free medicare for all over 65, or his intention to reduce property taxes and increase the minimum wage, that won him the premiership after only one year as party leader. The promise to remove not only the $1.50 fee for a doctor's visit, but also the fee schedule of up to $180 for hospital care, may have carried weight with the voters. There was also a promise to set up controls on profits, wages and interest rates.

It is notable that Mr. Blakeney found strength in both urban and rural constituencies — understandable in view of his scattergun promise of goodies to come. The realities of office, of course, may force modification of many of the proposals made on the hustings. But one thing appears likely: there should be close co-operation between the two adjacent NDP governments, both in their own interests and with a view to extending the socialist canopy as far as the Pacific. But then, of course, there is no Mr. Thatcher in either Alberta or B.C.

A Local Issue

THE CATCH IN EFFORTS TO establish parity between different cities for similar types of work is that equality is sought only with cities that have higher pay scales. This leaves any negotiations wide open since the basis of remuneration becomes, not the work done in the community concerned, but what other workers in another community were able to obtain. There can be little doubt that policemen and firemen in Vancouver, for instance, are subject to many calls of a nature that would not normally be duplicated in Victoria. Victoria work should be paid for at Victoria rates. That is a fair principle whose acceptability could be measured by the rush of applicants to leave Victoria and go to Vancouver. Has there been one?

FROM CALGARY

By JAMES H. GRAY

Phoney 'Flavor of the Old West'

A NEW wrinkle in the continuing process of americanizing the Calgary Stampede underlines this fact—the Canadian Indians could certainly use an anti-defamation league! The Jewish people, whose lives and life styles were once caricatured and parodied by vaudeville comedians, by cartoonists and frequently by politicians, put an end to the insults with such an organization. In the United States, Indian organizations have been working aggressively to erase the image of the Indian as a drunken savage and all-around bad guy addicted to massacring whites and scalping each other. The Indian organizations have made movie makers and television producers their special targets.

Gray

This year the Calgary Stampede is herding the Indians back to square one. It is going to stage a mock Indian attack on a stage coach for the amusement of its rodeo customers.

What's Authentic?

In the publicity fooforah for the Stampede, much is made of recapturing the authentic flavor of the "old west", whatever that was. Most of what is recaptured is as phoney as a three dollar bill, and the stage coach project is no exception.

The highlight of the Stampede show is the nightly "chuck wagon race." In it, canvas-topped farm wagons are raced around a half-mile track, drawn by teams of four former race horses at a full gallop.

The chuck wagons are hoked-up versions of the conveyance that carried the food and eating hardware for the early cattle drives. No chuck wagon ever raced another chuck wagon, for to have moved at a faster pace than a slow walk would have shaken everything loose from the moorings.

All this does not, of course, detract from the excitement of the wagon races. And no doubt the Indian attack on the stage coach will be equally exciting, and equally fraudulent historically. There is no record of Canadian Indians ever attacking a stage coach. For one reason, stage coaches were almost non-existent on the prairies. But what difference did the facts make? As the chairman of the Indian committee (a white man) said:

U.S. Model

"Well, after all, the Indians used to attack the stage coaches in the United States, didn't they?" That is the excuse for casting Canadian Indians in the role of bloodthirsty savages bent on slaughtering and scalping innocent whites. Which is where all Indians came in when western movies became fashionable.

The Indians of Alberta bring a lot of this put-down on themselves. They, after all, are hiring themselves out for parts in the charade. They have long been willing to be dragooned into camping in gaudily spurious tepees in a congested corner of the Stampede Grounds. Their chiefs get dolled up in colorful costumes, the like of which no Indian ever wore, and pose for pictures with tourists for 50 cents a shot.

At one time the young Indians played an important part in the rodeo events. Steer decorating was their favorite sport. In it the contestants slid off a galloping horse and attached a colored ribbon to the horns of a plunging steer.

American competitors did badly in this event. They were specialists in steer wrestling, in which the cowboy grabbed the steer by the horns and wrestled it to the gound by twisting its neck. Steer decorating went out and steer wrestling was substituted.

Conning the Indians

The truth seems to be that the average Indian youth has as little interest in cowboying as the average white Albertan. Indian participation in the Stampede parade is limited to the aged, the very young and the women. The now-generation Indians are a lot more interested in cars than in horses. This interest is turning the neighborhood reserves into dumping grounds for the worn-out jalopies of the Calgary area.

Unlike Indian ponies, cars eat gas, oil and monthly payments. Which may account for the act that the Indians can be conned into entering such an event as the "World's Championship Prairie Chicken Dance" at the Stampede. In it, a couple of dozen braves go through a week-long daily series of dances for the entertainment of the crowds for a grand total of $1,000 in prizes.

And that, it is safe to bet, is a lot less than the Stampede is paying an Oklahoma agnouncer to man the loud speaker for the rodeo events. The explanation here is that there is nobody in Alberta with the knowledge of rodeo events needed to inform the paying customers about what is going on before their eyes. So much for the business of "recapturing the authentic flavor of the old west" Alberta version.

Letters to the Editor

Education for Needs

It has become apparent over the last few years that the nation's universities are producing an excess of graduates in some professions.

I suggest that the Department of Manpower and Immigration call a conference of university presidents and arrange to have some facilities used to produce graduates in the fields that the country needs. Some of these, I believe, are dentistry, law, medicine, business, metallurgy and geology. — Bill Cook, 2925 Tudor.

The Fine Print

Would it be too much to ask that in addition to the bi-lingual rigmarole on post boxes, giving a problematic delivery next day to certain places, it might be marked in plain Anglo-Saxon figures the time of the next pick-up from that particular box? Few of us have time or inclination to stoop down far enough to read all the small print that the boxes are now adorned with. — E. W Abraham, 1125 Faithful.

A Ph.D. Replies

Editorials are not necessarily impartial, but partisanship should not lead to distortion. The writer of the Times editorial "The Public Holds Shares" (Friday, June 18) either does not understand the present faculty-administration dispute at the University or he deliberately misrepresents it. He also conveniently forgets that faculty members are themselves part of the tax-paying public.

Two of the three cases are not about academic qualifications. Dr. Jain and Dr. Goede are well qualified, and this can easily be demonstrated. Mr. Graff's case is, ostensibly, about academic qualifications—the question being, who is the best judge of a specialist in philosophy? Is it other philosophers, or administrators?

The editorialist quotes one set of actual voting figures and compares these with a set of his own invention. The example he thus manufactures bears no genuine relation to the situation. The editorialist mentions only one out of a set of conditions imposed by the University Registrar over the holding of a ballot. This selectivity allows him scope for strong partisan comment. He asserts bitterness and prejudice on one side of the case (without citing examples), while attempting to leave the impression that the other side is totally blameless in that regard.

He concludes that the three professors, the Faculty Association and CAUT have no "valid objective." Valid according to whom? To someone such as himself who either cannot or will not get the facts straight and who, in any case, does not know most of them?

Perhaps the editorialist ought to go back and read his own excellent reporters and then do further homework to establish the actual facts of the situation. He might then become aware that, since one of the three professors is a non-Caucasian, the editorial's closing remarks about a "stuttering Negro" are, at best, tactless. Tact, however, is by no means the only thing lacking from this editorial. — Charles Doyle, President, Faculty Association, University of Victoria.

Not What They Seem

In criticising your very modest editorial re The Birchers, Mr. Simon J. Gibson writes that "It would seem that members of the John Birch Society are a fortunate breed in that they can tell the difference between wrong and right, tyranny and freedom."

The key word in that sentence is "seem" and in using it Mr. Gibson is correct, although possibly inadvertently so, for the John Birch Society and similar organizations have a long record of deceit, scurrility and a strong aversion to telling the truth, the whole truth about those who oppose them.

Some of their propaganda, a sample of which you published, is laughably absurd but still scurrilous. Other propaganda is plausible at first, being written by writers well paid by those who desire to spread hatred and bigotry to crush any who oppose them, by smear, innuendo, character assassination, distortion, half truths and downright lies. — W.W.

Lot to Pay

Re: "Before the Judge; Judge Robinson sentences girl, 30 days for 49 cent robbery."

I may not have all the details of the case but I do know enough to reason that 30 days is a lot to pay for 49 cents. Aha . . . I hear those strident voices defending the law and justice under the law, for them, a point. But for the young, the poor, and those less fortunate, the sentence passed down to Krista Waterman, is a point lost. The game is not over! — John T. Brady, 2639 Fernwood.

When She Has Read It

I will be interested in the comments of Alice Bourque-Ages after she has read "Against the Season." — Walter McKinnon, 913 Cloverdale.

No Call For Sour Notes

Over the last few months there have appeared in your paper, some unfavorable comments from correspondents and staff writer, relative to the Victoria Symphony Society, its boards and its officers. As a long-time director and as president of the Symphony Foundation, I have regretted that such unfair and questionable statements should be published. Apparently, no effort was made to check reports. If this customary precaution had been taken, I am confident that much of what has been written would never have been passed on to the public.

Your paper has been a supporter of the symphony for many years and has been very helpful to it. Because of this, I have been puzzled to know why so much harmful material has appeared lately. What is behind this campaign? What good is expected to come of it? As far as I can see all these derogatory and misleading statements will cause only harm, and I am sure your publication would not be pleased to see that happen.

This communication is purely personal. The board and the officers have no knowledge of it. It is simply a statement from a person who knows the facts, and who hopes in this way to more accurately inform your readers of what has been going on.

Most of the criticisms have been levelled at the board of directors for such things as secretiveness, inefficiency, ineptitude, complacency, indifference, lethargy, to mention only a few. And yet this is essentially the same board that has managed the society so successfully over the years during which the attendances at concerts has increased substantially, the revenue has more than doubled, the orchestra has been vastly improved, the program of activities has been enlarged, and in general the prestige and usefulness has been improved greatly. All of a sudden, this group of competent business and professional people who voluntarily give hours of their precious time (and frequently substantial amounts of money as well) have become stupid, inefficient, and evil.

Much has been printed about a so-called clash between the conductor and the general manager. The outcome of this wicked attack on the manager has been that the board has been forced to dispense with his services. Right here I would like to say that I was one of the directors who had most to do with the manager and I found him to be intelligent, industrious, competent and dedicated to his work and to the symphony. During the time he has been with us, he has completely and successfully reorganized the administrative staff and procedures, and has gone a long way toward pointing the society in the direction of greater efficiency and greater service. I regard his departure as a serious blow to the society. A good administrator is not easy to come by, and without such a person no society can be successful. Within a society such as ours, there are many fundamentally important things besides music.

There have been frequent references to a "split" in the board. While I have seen some differences of opinion between directors (which is as it should be) I have failed to see a split, and I have attended most meetings. A few directors have taken a strong stand with regard to the general manager, but so far as I can see, none of these had much to do with him. The board simply is not split! I think a more accurate description would be a reference to a splinter.

Also, much has been made of the fact that one director resigned. That minor event in itself should indicate that the board is standing together very nicely. It may be helpful to your readers in appraising this resignation, to know that this same director has on frequent previous occasions threatened to resign because the board was considering doing something of which he did not approve.

To all our good and loyal supporters, I would say there is nothing wrong with the symphony, nothing that does not occur, regrettably, from time to time with all symphonies. Our so-called troubles are few and simple, and the board which the members elected is quite competent to deal with them. Why not come to the annual meeting at Dunlop House, 1966 Lansdowne Ave., on Monday, June 28, at 8 p.m., and see for yourself. — L. Austin Wright, 2924 Mt. Bakerview.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times of June 24, 1911:

Will Victoria be governed by council or by commission? That is the question, the question that was but dimly yet none the less certainly adumbrated in the suggestion of Mayor Morley last night to the council in session: a commission consisting of the mayor and two aldermen, among whose particular duties would be that of looking ahead and arranging schemes of civic improvement and which under the present system was rendered impossible by the governing body having to devote all its time to the task of coping with the immediate business of the city.

Automation Eases Physical Strain But It's Bringing New Headaches

By HEINRICH RIEKER

(An article in the West German Tribune which was first published in the Hannoversche Allgemaine.)

"Everything gets on my nerves," complained the man to the firm's doctor as he was being examined. "I no longer take any pleasure in doing anything. I'm always tired and what's more I'm fed up to my back teeth of things."

The man, still young, really did look unhappy. He looked pale and nervous, complained of inexplicable fears, of headaches, a lack of appetite and of insomnia.

The doctor made him do a few exercises and pedal away on a bicycle. He then saw that his patient's heart would not stand up to much strain.

The doctor did not seem surprised at the symptoms. The patient he was examining was one of a hundred workers who were all complaining of the same ills.

But these workers had something else in common — they all did the same job. All of them were controllers in a fully automated chemicals factory.

They had next to nothing to do when at work. The instruments of their control panels nearly always remained static, indicating that everything was all right so that there was little point in looking at them. The instruments often made no reaction during the whole working day. Defects were corrected automatically.

The private lives of the workers' were also similar. They were all approximately the same age, travelled about the same distance to work and lived under similar conditions.

Wilhelm Nesswetha, an industrial doctor living in Frankfurt, thought that there was a link between the enforced idleness of the controllers and their pathological irritability.

He therefore selected a hundred workers from three chemical concerns and observed their health and mood for more than ten years.

His findings showed that workers were always happy with their new job at first as the work was clean and they did not need to exert themselves physically.

This feeling was all the more pronounced if they had come from older-style works where assembly line techniques were still practised. In the new job the responsibility for the complicated apparatus increased their self-confidence.

Mental Torment Of Idleness

Their contendedness did not last long and soon changed to discontent. During their second year at the job, there was an increase in complaints of nervous disorders, irritability, moodiness, sudden attacks of sweating and heart complaints.

"During working hours," Dr. Nesswetha says, "they often tended to yawn, their pupils contracted and there were spasmodic impulses to open their eyes wide. Almost desperate attempts to gather their thoughts and concentrate could also be observed."

These medical findings have been reached by other doctors and confirm one pessimistic forecast that has always been made of the age of automation — robots can free a person of hard physical strain but cannot stop his health deteriorating.

Health is now threatened by a different type of strain than was once the case. It is no longer noise, dust or chemical gases that threaten it but a new form of working boredom where, as Dr. Nesswetha states, work involves a low level of activity.

People such as these controllers become dog-tired but they are kept awake artificially by their responsibility and prevented from daydreaming. Those who have worked in automated concerns isolated from their colleagues have described their enforced idleness as mental torment.

Dr. Nesswetha carried out an experiment. The workers plagued by boredom were transferred back to a conventional position where they immediately regained their health.

Automation raises unusual questions. Can a person be forced to be idle? Is it right to reward idleness at work with a higher rate of pay than manual labor? Can a comfortable existence threaten a person's life?

Automation has freed work so much from physical effort that the concept of work has obviously been redefined. The old working ethos has been turned topsy-turvy. Today there are well-paid positions for which a lack of effort is an important qualification.

A well-known automation expert and boss of a fully automated factory admitted straight out, "For less qualified posts we need lazy people who like to take it easy."

Many people find it hard to accept these changes. Older workers often have trouble in adapting to the new working style. They still have a picture of the manual worker who is proud to return home at night in a sweat-soaked shirt.

Imposed idleness leads to a guilt complex in many cases. These are the people who were once taken possession of by an indeterminate senseless urge for action whenever the foreman passed by.

Muscular activity has been replaced by nervous activity in automated factories and sometimes not even by that. Traditional male attributes such as muscles, hard work and initiative are an obstacle under certain conditions.

What is now in demand are qualities such as patience,

Work Concept Redefined

calmness and a balanced personality, in short the ability to bear responsibility and do nothing for hours on end.

Industrial psychologists have stated that the best worker for an automated factory is one with few ideas, little initiative and only moderate intelligence. Too many ideas are harmful. A pedantic attitude is often an advantage.

The list of male qualities guaranteeing a successful career has now been enlarged with more and more feminine qualities such as composure, mental balance and the ability to conform.

Years ago a number of manufacturers introduced occupational therapy courses on the advice of psychologists. Workers were seated in front of measuring instruments and recorded measurements that were worthless though they did not know it at the time.

Many automated factories have no lifts in order that workers there can at least enjoy a minimum of movement. Work that could easily be done in one place has been spread over a wide area in the factory.

One large chemical concern has set up a department where inactive personnel can add some variety to their working day by playing table tennis or taking care of fish in an aquarium.

It would be ridiculous to attack automation or even reverse the trend. One could seriously [illegible] need for automation in various branches of industry. Whole branches owe their existence to electronics alone. And accident figures rapidly decline in automated factories.

But now we are beginning to see that the much-praised labor-saving side to it is of extremely doubtful advantage from a certain point onwards.

Workers in automated concerns are not threatened by overstrain now but by understrain. It is true that this affects mainly lower grades but the numbers involved are on the increase.

Numbers will continue to increase as technology becomes more advanced. Even programmers are threatened with redundancy because of automation.

Guilt Complex The Result

Today highly-specialized work no longer demands as much experience, ability and hard work so that these gifts are threatened by atrophy.

But all people have a basic need to express their personality in the work they do.

That is why employees now look for men where this need is not very pronounced perhaps for pathological reasons.

Automation clearly shows that indistry is breeding its own type of worker whose qualities are often diametrically opposed to those of normal people.

Anyone wanting to rid society of these by-products of [illegible] would have to demand the end of technology. Modern industrial work and automation in particular offers workers a better chance of compensating for their enforced idleness by providing more leisure time.

But there is no indication that the majority of "immobile" workers are taking advantage of their opportunities here. On the contrary, lack of exercise and boredom have already become a leisure time problem.

The Bugs Are On The March

By CLAIRE STERLING

DDT doesn't work any more

Doomsday buffs appear to have been wrong about DDT. The world — the livable one, that is — is not necessarily better off without it. On the contrary, trying to get along with surrogate chemicals, or none, has proved such an ordeal that several countries have stopped trying. Even Sweden, the first to impose such a ban, has caved in.

Sweden's problem was a forest insect running rampant, eating its way through raw material indispensable to the nation's biggest industry. Ceylon's, after just a few years of abstinence, was a million cases of malaria in a population of 10 million.

★ ★ ★

In the United States, lettuce, lima beans and sweet corn can no longer be grown in some areas for all the pests showing up there; the Gypsy moth has blighted a million New Jersey oak trees, and bee colonies sprayed with substitutes have been reduced by 25 per cent.

One particularly vicious substitute called parathion has been outlawed in Algeria for killing too many people, is known to have finished off or blinded a number of Americans as well, and caused 17 deaths and 600 severe poisoning cases in Mexico by getting into a single consignment of bread.

Whatever else may be said of DDT — for all the residues found in arctic ice, penguins, algae, mother's milk — it does not kill humans. If anything, its aptitudes lie in the other direction. Without DDT, India would still have 100 million cases of malaria every year instead of a mere few hundred thousand; a billion people would have come down with it worldwide in the last 15 years alone, and half of them would have died (a way of dealing with the population explosion which need not be explored further).

Not only will nothing else work as well against the malarial mosquito — the World Health Organization has tested more than a thousand other insecticides — but nothing else as simple, safe and cheap (10 times cheaper than its nearest rival) has come on the market to protect crops without which these extra half a billion people might have starved to death.

Even with DDT, insects are still destroying enough food to keep 40 million Indians alive. What would happen without it is something the planet's poorer countries would rather not think about.

All the sawe, they are going to have to think about it. For, apart from being in fact a menace to birds and fish, DDT is starting to fall down on the job.

By now some 230 kinds of insect, mite, tick, spider and centipede have developed immunity to it. Several others keep coming back for more, nowhere near as battered as the predators feeding upon them, mowed down by the same lethal spray.

★ ★ ★

Still other formerly inconspicuous species, delivered from their natural enemies, are beginning to multiply at a dizzying rate: Nicaragua, which had only two sorts of caterpillar to contend with a decade ago, has 10 now. Overrun by so many pests, old or new, some countries have given up pesticides altogether.

Because of all this, the UN's Food and Agriculture Organization has gone off on a wholly different track. For months now, its experts have been working on something they call integrated pest control, difficult to define, they say, because of popular confusion about the meaning of "integrated" and "control" in this context. (Everybody seems to know what a pest is.)

The idea is to attack our insect enemies in a dozen different ways at once, not so much to exterminate them as simply to keep them within bounds. The approach is "philosophic," recognizing every living creature's complex relationships with his fellow creatures, air, earth and water, as well as incredible capacity for change.

And the tactics are comparably "sophisticated," which is to say sneakier than any we have thought up yet. Among them are:

● Baiting: Using a minumum of insecticide with an innocuous "attractant" forming big drops around it.

● Selective timing: Waiting until the pests are massed in their greatest numbers before making the preemptive strike.

● Planting an occasional row of crops that the pests can't stand between rows of the ones they like.

● Making the pest deathly sick, or weak, or stunted, by finding out which virulent insect-disease he is most susceptible to, and spraying that on him. (Germ warfare.)

● Rearing the insect-enemies of our enemies artificially and turning them loose in the field. (Biological warfare.)

● Sterilizing males of the species by radiation or drugs and then releasing them to mate. (The screw worm fly was wiped out in Curacao by this Hitlerian method.)

★ ★ ★

None of these tactics alone could do what DDT once did before ecological complications set in, when we thought it was the final solution. With all of them combined, though, an imaginative assault like that might do more damage to pests, and less to the rest of us, than any that have been tried so far.

What with agricultural extension service a lot more scientific hired help and laboratory research, all this would naturally be expensive. So is the search for new pesticides, however, each taking $3 million to $5 million and 5 to 7 years to develop — and we know how far that has gotten us.

All things considered, then, the new approach seems worth a try — the sooner the better, in fact, before more crops will, more trees die, too many people go hungry, and ravening hordes of flies, fleas, mosquitos, termites, ticks, spiders, centipedes and cockroaches are upon us.

What's the Excuse on Abortion Now?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

"The public is not ready for this." That was Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's reply to the Vancouver women who waited upon him last June to demand complete liberalization of the abortion law.

It is an excuse he has made on other occasions, joined with the excuse that Canadian doctors are unwilling to see further changes made in the law. Politics, he suggests, is the art of the possible, and governments cannot move too far ahead of public opinion, and public opinion does not sanction abortion on demand.

He has facetiously promised to introduce an abortion repeal bill in Parliament which would take abortion out of the Criminal Code provided the opposition agrees to pass the legislation in a day — when he knows that at least the Creditiste members are sworn to fight abortion reform to the end.

Mr. Trudeau will have to find some new excuses.

'Social Grounds'

The Canadian Medical Association is probably one of the most conservative organizations in Canada. This month its General Council decided that abortion should become a matter for decision by a woman and her doctor. It would remove from the Criminal Code the provision that before an abortion can be performed it must be approved by a hospital committee of three doctors. It recognized justification or termination of pregnancy "on non-medical, social grounds."

These were very significant decisions, not only because they were made by the profession that performs abortions, not only because the profession that made them is noted for its caution, but because they represented a marked change in the attitude of that profession.

Didn't Work

In 1967 the CMA had itself proposed the three-doctor hospital committees to decide upon abortions. As Dr. R. M. Lane, chairman of the CMA Council on Community Health Care, explained, it had seemed the right decision at the time, but experience had proved that it just did not work.

It doesn't work, as the doctors pointed out, for a number of reasons. Many hospitals, for religious or other reasons, have refused to set up hospital committees; and in these hospitals no abortions can be performed. In a number of small communities, there are simply too few doctors to set up three-man committees and leave any doctors free to advise or perform abortions. In hospitals where committees have been established, the demand for abortions is so great that the committee cannot possibly do proper assessments of each individual case — they are faced with the choice of approving most applications or rejecting most applications or tossing a coin.

The whole situation, in fact, has resulted in the most complete inequity. A woman of middle or high income can always procure an abortion, by going out of the country if necessary. A poor woman, whose lack of ability to support a child is likely to make her need for abortion greater, is at the mercy of the hospital committee — which functions indifferently, or not at all.

Higher in B.C.

The statistics on abortion show how unevenly the law has worked to meet public demand. In 1970 legal abortions in the 10 provinces and the Yukon totalled 11,200, or 3 per cent of live births in the same areas. In British Columbia, where the law has been much more liberally interpreted, abortions numbered 20 to 25 per cent of live births, and the percentage grew rapidly from month to month.

The Canadian Medical Association, examining these facts, has decided that the state has no more business in abortions than in any other medical procedure; the decision should lie solely between the woman and her doctor.

Mr. Trudeau endeavored to make light of the CMA decision, by pointing out that the original vote — to accept "social grounds" as justification for abortion — was close. Yet it was a majority vote; and decisions in a democracy are made on the basis of majority votes. And since this was the majority decision of the conservative CMA, it would probably be the majority decision of the public.

Mr. Trudeau has also said that the day's debate in Parliament on the abortion issue, which he promised in the Throne Speech would take place this session, will now be delayed till fall and only "may" take place then.

Mr. Trudeau, indeed, sounds like a man evading a job that he doesn't like. This is a pity, because it represents a denial of his own political principles. When he introduced the present limited form of abortion reform, and when he defended it during his election campaign, he made it clear on many occasions that while he, as a Catholic, believed abortion to be wrong, he, as a Prime Minister, could not impose his religious beliefs on Canadians whose religious beliefs were different.

Having publicly recognized that it is wrong for a church to dictate the laws of a state, Mr. Trudeau has cleared his way to finish the job he began.

BENNETT, PM TO START RACE

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — More than 65 flyers from nine countries will chase $170,000 in prize money next week in a 6,000-mile air race from Britain across the North Atlantic and Canada to Victoria.

The race, sponsored by the Canadian and British Columbia governments to mark the centenary of the province's entry into Confederation, will be started next Thursday by Prime Minister Trudeau and B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett using a trans-atlantic telephone link from Victoria.

Canadian and American pilots —including a solo woman flyer from Pennsylvania—dominate the list of entrants. Aircraft also have been entered from Britain, Sweden, Australia, Ireland, Finland, West Germany and France.

Each aircraft will be given a handicap based on its known cruising speed under normal conditions. Competitors will then be awarded points for speed achieved in excess of handicap speed in each of six stages on the route.

The use of handicaps makes it possible to admit a variety of aircraft in the race, from single and twin-engine piston-driven planes to turbo-props. Three jet entries, including a Falcon representing the Canadian government, will compete in a special class.

SPEED COUNTS

Under the handicap system, competitors can start and finish the race at varying times with speed on each of the stages providing the criterion for determining the over-all winner.

The race begins from an airfield at Abigdon, about 60 miles west of London.

The first plane to take off will be the official B.C. entry, a twin-engine aircraft piloted by R. B. Dixon, 22, of Vancouver. All competitors should have finished the race by July 7, organizers say.

Budget-Erring by Government—Stanfield

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Wednesday of waffling on its tax policies, backtracking on its tax white paper and providing a worse than ineffective budget.

He told the Commons the government has been budgeteering and budget-erring for the last year, continually switching its taxing and spending policies, and proving its inability to forecast economic events.

And while Finance Minister E. J. Benson had been a watchdog, viciously defending the tax white paper last year, he now was gentle as a cocker spaniel, afterwithdrawing the unpopular white paper proposals.

Finally, Friday's budget was simply irrelevant in getting the economy moving toward full employment.

Mr. Stanfield was speaking on the second of six days of Commons debate on the budget.

The Commons defeated 144 to 13 a New Democratic non-confidence motion criticizing the government for forsaking the recommendations of the (Kenneth) Carter royal commission on taxation that included a full capital gains tax, the removal of special concessions to the resource industries, equal tax treatment for wage and salary earners and self-employed persons, and equal taxation on all kinds of income.

Included in the government's tax proposals are bigger exemptions for everybody and special exemptions for the disabled and pensioners, removal of the three-per-cent surtax on corporate and personal income taxes, removal of federal taxes on anti-pollution equipment, electronic goods and margarine, and a capital gains tax to be applied to half a taxpayer's gains.

Only the NDP supported the amendment.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 151, Conservative 72, New Democrat 24, Social Credit 13, Independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, vacant 1.

The Commons takes the day off today, St. Jean Baptiste Day, and resumes the budget debate Friday.

Earlier in the House, all parties unanimously concurred in a report of a special Commons pollution committee urging the government to oppose vigorously establishment of a U.S. oil tanker route down the British Columbia coast.

The report says a damaging oil spill is inevitable if such a route is established.

Tides and currents in the Strait of Georgia and the Strait of Juan de Fuca would make clean-up operations especially difficult.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp welcomed the concurrence, which he said supported the government's position on the issue.

CUTS NOT ENOUGH

In budget debate, Mr. Stanfield praised the tax cuts, but called them insufficient to spur the economy.

He said tax reductions—not counting removal of the surtax which was temporary anyway—would be about $45 million—one-third of one per cent of the budgetted income.

That is "a paltry and perhaps even an insulting amount, the equivalent of $2 a year for each Canadian.

"The tax reductions are not sufficient to make any impact."

As for the government's promise of better economic days to come, Mr. Stanfield said the public could not rely on a government that had failed so miserably in the past to forecast economic trends.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene said budget items would "serve to maintain a vigorous, expanding and competitive minerals industry, and at the same time, will allow the activities of the industry to benefit more directly the Canadian economy."

Mr. Greene countered arguments that the minerals industry is capital intensive, providing little benefit in the form of employment.

Critics ignore the indirect employment involved, he said. About 20 per cent of Canada's workers depended on the industry, which accounted for one-third of Canadian exports.

Gordon Blair (L—Grenville-Carleton) said the Conservatives were frustrated now that the tax issue was unavailable as a political punching bag.

And the NDP was critical because it always criticizes popular policies.

$1,800 For Meals

A cheque for $1,800 was presented Wednesday to George Gray, president of Goodwill Enterprises, by Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director of Silver Threads.

The money will be used to buy a new stainless steel double oven electric range capable of cooking 250 meals a day for the Meals on Wheels program.

Most of the money was raised through a rummage sale, organized by Mrs. Joyce Peterson, past co-ordinator for Meals on Wheels.

In addition the Victoria Rotary Club, originators of the Meals on Wheels program, donated $100, as did the Lower Vancouver Island Rangers. The Victoria Charities gave $200 and an additional $400 was contributed through private and anonymous donors.

The Meals on Wheels program began in 1966 and has grown steadily. In 1970 approximately 38,000 meals were prepared and packaged at Goodwill Enterprises for delivery in the Greater Victoria area to people who are unable to cook for themselves.

Apartment Views Sought

Oak Bay council's zoning committee was sounded out Tuesday on the building of an apartment block on the south side of Oak Bay, between Monterey and Oliver.

John Foote of Vancouver said no architect plans has been made because he and his partner wanted to ensure that the development would be "economically sound and good for the community."

He said it would be of concrete construction, with perhaps some timber to help it blend with the general atmosphere of the municipality.

Foote said he would consider having retail outlets on the ground floor but that the project was "heavily slanted toward apartments, the demand is not that heavy for retail."

WHAT HEIGHT?

Ald. Shirley Dowell asked what height the construction would be and Terry Farmer replied:

"Frame construction is limited to three or four stories — we would like to go higher than that."

Currently, the property that fronts on Oak Bay is zoned for retail and one lot, on Oliver, for single-family dwelling.

Ald. Alan Hoey said the building of the new senior citizens' centre and library in the next block would increase the traffic flow and that it would be necessary to widen Monterey by 10 feet to handle the additional traffic.

Municipal engineer Geoffrey White said that if a large development was built on the property it might be necessary to install sewer connections on all three frontages.

The engineer was asked to report on the present and projected traffic flow.

Durer Work On View

Reproductions of some of Albrecht Durer's best engravings are on exhibition at McPherson Theatre to commemorate the 500th anniversay of the artist's birth.

Durer was born in Nuremburg. He became one of the outstanding painters of the Renaissance in northern Europe. His genius was copper engravings, woodcuts and drawings include his most famous and moving works.

Reunion Set For Veterans

At 3 p.m. members will parade to the Legislative Buildings where a short service will be held at the association's memorial in the rotunda. It will be followed by a tour of the city.

'Big Orange Skidder In the Sky' Tried

A small band of men on Redonda Island are logging up to 150,000 board feet a day without roads, heavy machinery, spar trees or skylines.

Their main tool is "a big orange skidder in the sky," with which they hope to prove the economics of coastal logging by helicopter.

The unusual approach to taking prime logs from otherwise inaccessible mountain sides is an experimental program by Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. in the Pendrell Sound area, about 30 miles east of Campbell River.

Project manager Berry Butler claims "moderate success" for the operation after about three weeks. His "big orange skidder" is a Sikorsky S58T, a twin-turbine, more powerful revised edition of the older S58. The craft can carry a payload of 5,000 pounds.

EVALUATION LONG

In about another week or 10 days the company will do an evaluation of the project, which may become useful to the logging industry for specialized application.

Butler said Okanagan secured its own logging licence in order to conduct the project independently, and has 1½ to 2 million board feet of timber to cut in the tangle of mid-coastal mountains and forests.

About half the logs have been harvested at a rate of up to 150 in each eight-hour day. The helicopter carries between 700 and 1,000 board feet per trip, taking logs 1½ to two miles from the 3,200-foot level to tidewater for booming.

"We have some interesting ideas on the drawing board," Butler said. He said one aspect being considered is the use of floodlights mounted under the helicopter to permit 24-hour logging.

Although the concept is similar to that of balloon logging, which has been tried in similar circumstances, the use of a helicopter eliminates elaborate cable gear.

Okanagan has had to develop its own design for grappling toggles to clamp onto a log at the falling site and release it a few feet over the booming ground.

Perfection of this gear has been a problem, Butler said.

IN, OUT, GONE

The helicopter concept of "in, out and gone" without costly road-building and heavy hauling equipment is one which has fascinated and eluded loggers for years.

While the use of a helicopter itself is expensive, the craft requires comparatively little support and brings superior quality timber to market faster than traditional handling methods.

"There's got to be a better way of logging than the way they've been doing," Butler said.

Koffler

Transfer of Cunningham Drug stores to their new Shoppers Drug Mart designation under new owner Koffler Stores Ltd. is extended this week to the 33rd B.C. pharmacy since February.

Koffler took over 87 western Canadian drug stores from the Cunningham chain, bringing its retail pharmacy holdings to 171 from coast to coast.

The new owner also operates Western Wholesale Drug Ltd., Vancouver, a former subsidiary of Cunningham Drug Stores.

Giant Mascot

A brief tune up period for Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. new concentrator at Hope ended this month and production at normal grades and capacities is under way.

The 1,500-ton-a-day mill replaces one burned down just over eight months ago.

First shipment of nickel-copper concentrate to Sumitomo Metal Mines — 2,900 tons — is due July 12.

During reconstruction, the company did substantial exploration and development work underground, outlining several promising new areas.

Molson

D. G. Willmot, president of Molson Industries Ltd., reports the company's profits for the first two months of this fiscal year are ahead of those recorded a year ago.

He told the annual meeting this indicates that profits for the full year would exceed those for the previous period "and we face the foreseeable future with confidence."

Net earnings before extraordinary items in 1970 increased to $13.7 million or $1.20 a share from $13.3 million ($1.17).

Bell

The board of directors of Bell Canada has authorized the issue of $104 million worth of convertible preferred shares.

Amount and conditions of the issue were approved earlier by the Canadian Transport Commission.

Bell will issue two million cumulative, redeemable, convertible, preferred shares at the par value and price of $52. They will bear a fixed dividend of $3.34 annually, and will be convertible to Bell common shares on a one-for-one basis anytime before Aug. 1, 1983.

Horn R.

F. Lloyd Woolley, president of Calgary-based Horn River Resources Ltd., hopes to promote a drilling program involving 10 or more wells in central Northwest Territories this winter.

Woolley said he is trying to attract oil firms holding federal petroleum and natural gas permit rights to a total of 18 million acres of less-than-promising land. The proposed area would extend 250 miles north from the southwest arm of Great Bear Lake to the Arctic coast. He said the area is ideal for drilling.

Permit holders are committed to spend 20 cents an acre and in the next 12 to 18 months will be obliged to spend another 30 cents on exploration, or surrender permits.

Agra

Annual dividend is being restored by Agra Industries Ltd. after a one-year lapse in the past four.

The company reports a broader earnings base as a result of expansion in the last two years and a continuing policy of dividend-paying is expected.

Third quarter results bring nine-month performance up to $1.5 million for consolidated earnings, or $786,246, fully deferred (51.3 cents a share). A year earlier income was equal to 8.3 cents a share with fewer shares outstanding.

Final quarter results will include income from a 50 per cent interest in Research Foods Ltd., acquired May 1 this year.

Giant Ex.

A nickel-copper prospect on property southeast of Harrison Lake is being drill tested by Giant Explorations Ltd. and Giant Mascot Mines Ltd., which are 50-50 partners on a group of 564 claims.

Cores so far show mineral ratios comparable to those normally found on Giant Mascot Mines original property adjoining, which is in production.

Line cutting, geological mapping and magnetometer surveys have been done and surface samples have shown values in nickel.

Evans

Evans Products Co. agrees in principle to acquire Atlantic Millwork Inc., a New York state building supplies chain of 15 retail units.

Capital stock of Atlantic will be exchanged for Evans common shares.

The deal will increase Evans' retail operations in the eastern region to 156 stores.

BCFP AGAIN CANCELS DIVIDEND

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. has announced it will skip its common share dividend for the second consecutive quarter.

The 75-cent quarterly dividend on its preferred shares for the second quarter will be paid on Aug. 1 to shareholders of record on July 9.

A brief company announcement gave no further details. The company skipped the common share dividend of 25 cents in the first quarter after its profits fell sharply in that quarter and in 1970.

Profits in the first quarter were $404,000 or seven cents per share, down 67 per cent.

Simca Line Discontinued

WINDSOR (CP) — Chrysler Canada Ltd. announced today that it is discontinuing the import and sale of its French-built Simca car line in Canada, following the lead of Chrysler Corp. in the United States.

A statement from Chrysler Canada said sales volume in Canada "does not justify the necessary expenditures to re-engineer the Simca to meet 1972-75 North American auto safety and emmissions standards."

The company said owners of 1971-model Simcas will be given a certificate which may be redeemed for $125 toward the purchase of another Chrysler-built car, although parts and accessories will still be available through Chrysler Canada dealers who sold Simcas.

Balance of Payments Now Shows Surplus

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada had a better record of performance in its balance of international payments during the first three months of 1971 than originally reported, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Wednesday.

More complete data indicates there was a surplus of $142 million in Canada's dealings with other countries in commodity and non-merchandise trade. A month ago, the bureau reported a preliminary figure of $70 million.

While down sharply from the unusually high surplus of $512 million in the final three months of 1970, the first-quarter surplus this year compared with a surplus of $55 million in the first three months of 1970.

Revised figures on commodity trade for the first quarter of 1970 showed exports of $4,099 million and imports of $3,399 million, a surplus of $700 million. But Canada had a deficit of $558 million in its non-merchandise trade-payments to and from Canada of interest, freight, insurance, travel, and other such trade.

New Unemployment Insurance to Benefit 5.5 Million

By IAN PORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — There are 5.5 million workers in a position to benefit from new unemployment insurance legislation given royal assent in a Senate ceremony Wednesday.

Those now unemployed will continue to receive maximum benefits of no more than $58 a week.

But anyone who becomes unemployed after June 27, and who now is paying unemployment insurance contributions will be eligible for benefits equalling two-thirds of his average insured earnings.

If the worker has been earning $50 a week or less and is supporting a dependant, benefits will be paid at a rate of 75 per cent of his or her average income. The minimum benefit will be $20.

By Aug. 22, the ceiling on insurable income will have reached $150 a week and the maximum weekly benefit will be $100.

Until the end of the year, the increased benefits are to be paid for by a boost in unemployment insurance premiums to a maximum of $1.65 a week.

After Jan. 2, 1972, however, an additional 1.2-million Canadian workers—anyone not self-employed—will be included in the plan and the weekly contribution rate is expected to decline.

TEACHERS INCLUDED

The newly-covered workers—including teachers, hospital workers, salaried employees now earning more than $7,800 a year, perhaps some provincial government employees—will at first pay only 40 per cent of the full rate and the contributions are to be tax-deductible.

Increased benefits and extended coverage are by no means the only features of the new plan which in general follows the blueprint set out last June by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey in a white paper entitled Unemployment Insurance for the 1970s.

One of the major effects will be felt by the government itself which now will have to pay the full cost of extra benefits when unemployment exceeds a national rate of four per cent of the work force. The rate in May was 6.3 per cent.

In effect, the government will be required to put more money into the hands of those most likely to spend it in periods of recession, a process generally accepted as a stimulus for the economy.

In boom periods, on the other hand, money will be subtly extracted from the economy, a reverse process intended to reduce inflationary pressure.

MEETS APPROVAL

Another feature of the new plan which has been approved by the Canadian Social Planning Council is the reduction in the time a worker is required to have been attached to the labor force.

Workers now will have to show that they have paid unemployment insurance contributions for as little as eight weeks, rather than 20 weeks as at present, before becoming eligible for benefits.

Workers with a record of more than 20 weeks employment in the previous year will become eligible immediately for up to 15 weeks of benefits if they become unemployed as a result of sickness or pregnancy. The same benefits will be available for a retired worker who is awaiting his or her first cheque from the Canada or Quebec pension fund.

Oil Companies Said to Blame For Delay in Alaska Pipeline

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers Morton said Wednesday the delay in a federal process leading to issuance of a permit for the $1.5 billion trans-Alaska pipeline can be attributed to the oil companies involved.

Morton said: "I guess there's a general feeling—and I want to put this to rest—that I'm sort of sitting on this pipeline permit like a hen sits on an egg, waiting for something to hatch. That's not true."

The cabinet officer told a luncheon audience of several hundred Alaskan business and government leaders, including Gov. William Egan, that the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. must submit a detailed project description before the interior department can complete the final draft of its environmental impact statement on the line.

"I thought I was going to get it in March," Morton said. "I was told I was going to get it in April.

"I was told again I was going to get it in May, and now I'm told I'm going to get it next Friday.

But Morton stressed his remarks were not intended as "a slam, or a slap or a slander against the oil companies involved, because they, too, have to make diligent studies. . . ."

Morton said the impact report will be ready by mid-September and will be turned over to the President's Council on Environmental Quality if it receives the necessary data from Alyeska in the next 10 days. The final step to issuance of a pipeline permit, he said, will be to overcome two federal court injunctions pending in a Washington, D.C. court.

Earlier this week, Morton toured the Prudhoe Bay oil fields with Atlantic Richfield Co. President Thorton Bradshaw and Edward Patton, head of the firm hoping to build and operate the 800-mile crude oil line from the Arctic Ocean to the Gulf of Alaska.

At a morning news conference, Morton said his department will resist efforts in Congress to require congressional approval of the line. He also said the interior department is studying alternate routes for the pipeline. But he said any decision regarding a possible Canadian route would rest more with international diplomats than with his agency.

4-PLY NYLON CHAMPION WITH

3 SPECIAL KINDS OF STRENGTH:

1 We start with the proven strength of Nylon cord. We coat every single cord under tension with a special compound of rubber and chemicals. This ensures that the cords will be inseparably bonded together. No one else combats ply separation so effectively.

2 You want a good strong sidewall to fight flexing action. So we wrap the cord plies around the bead and back up the sidewall. You get a double wall of strength where you need it most.

3 Our tread is something special. It's made of our unique tread rubber formula called Sup-R-Tuf. Because it is super tough. The modern bladed tread design gives you a good grip on the road. And to keep the tread in place we permanently bond it to the cord body, as only we know how.

BILL WALKER

Dear Ernie:

Sorry old buddy-buddy that I didn't answer your note sooner, but it's been one of those weeks. Or did you happen to catch that victory of Lee Trevino in the U.S. Open? Talk about your "Arnie's Army" for Arnold Palmer. That's passe now. It's "Trevino's Troops" from here on in.

Last Saturday and Sunday the B.C. track championships were held here. It wasn't a bad event, but it wasn't very exciting either. Most of the big names didn't bother to show. But two real good ones did. Stephanie Berto and Patti Loverock can really scamper. There was a touch of nostalgia though. Irene Piotrowski wasn't up to her usual standard, and it's doubtful now if she'll make the Pan-Am team. At 29 she's "old-folks" with this crowd. Suppose you saw where Penny May popped up as one of Canada's best at Toronto? Don't bet against it, but she could get a Canadian record in the hurdles at Richmond this week. Remember you saw it here first. Then next week it's off to Europe for two weeks through the courtesy of Air Canada. The others are Berto, Loverock, Joyce Sadowick, Debbie Brill, Brenda Walsh, Joan Hendry, Brenda Eisler, Abby Hoffman, and Debbie Van Kiekebelt — almost a preview of the Pan-Am women's team, what?

Soccer's up in the air again. United can't find an executive and the Coast League wants to jump into that February-June schedule I was telling you about earlier. United, thank goodness, voted against the move because of the obvious clash with the district league schedule, and also the summer league overlap. The vote was 4-4-1. That "1" was an abstention by Columbus (who else) and the deciding vote to go in the semi-summer situation in 1972 was cast by chairman L. W. Burkinshaw. Now the question is: did he have the right to make that decision?

At any rate, Gorge Molsons have asked "in" to the PCSL, and this is great if it handled correctly. Because Victoria should have two teams. The idea is that the league would be split into two divisions, "A" and "B", with six teams in each and elevations presumably would be on performance. Frank Grealy who coached United last year, isn't exactly fed up with the hodge-podge that has developed, but he's had enough for the time being. F'r instance, what Frank would like to see is a soccer commission that will get off that "administer and guide" pedestal and take an active interest in the game, promote it, and supply the leadership which is obviously needed. Frank also holds the view that the division of the Coast League is fine but only if "B" dividion is not made up entirely of Vancouver teams. "There would be no promotional aspect to this," he says. "It would be ridiculous."

And no, there hasn't yet been any summit conference of all parties interested in soccer. Sure, it's needed, and I've got a sneaky suspicion that the guy to get it off the ground could be the same Frank Grealy. If he is asked he might be prevailed upon to moderate such a discussion. He takes the view that it's never too late to change direction — like now, or before July 12, when the die will be finally cast.

And here's a couple of other items: "If you think that little Bev Cox of Central who ran a 55.8 here in the 400 last week, is great, wait until her younger brother grows up." Those aren't my words, those are from principal Bill Garner of Central. Bill just "oohs" "aahs" when he talks about David Cox, and this youngster's potential in track. By the way, Gordie Pynn is now back at work, after his operation, Gordie Strongman didn't get the invitation to try out for the Pan-Am baseball team, (the Canadian president is still vindictive), and Lloyd Kearns has been confirmed as manager of the Racquet Club.

And I almost forgot, besides Dave Woodley being signed up for San Diego, there's a hint that Fred Hucul would like to coach the Cougars. The question is "how much?" And finally, the Centennial Stadium committee has got another tiger by the tail. The big decision is whether to put in two extra lanes on the running track to make it an eight-lane affair and resurface the entire track, or install lights for night football. I'm opting for the track people because, after all, the present track has been a tremendous success, and is one of the most widely used facilities in the area. Of course I guessed wrong last time, along with the architect. Bob Siddall wanted the grandstand facing west, which is the way it should have been. Then everybody would have been at least warm, especially in this period of the year which some laughingly call summer.

G'nite now,
Bill

SPEAKING OF FORM

Third seed in Wimbledon tennis championships, Evonne Goolagong, of Australia is shown in action Wednesday as she advanced with 6-4, 6-1 victory over Kris Kemmer of Los Angeles. See story Page 15.

Refs Don't Score With Irish Fans

By ERNIE FEDORUK

It may be about time that someone called Tom English, the commissioner and a lawyer, to the stand to defend his Western Lacrosse Association referees.

English and the mainland nabobs who form the executive circle have been chortling recently because people are starting to crowd rinks in Kerrisdale, Coquitlam and New Westminster.

No such luck in Victoria.

"Only" 1,528 paid their way in to watch Coquitlam Adanacs trip the Shamrocks 15-13 at Memorial Arena on Wednesday. The nose count is an improvement over what the Shamrocks had been getting, but falls short of the requirements for a black-ink finish.

There is room for about 5,000 in the Blanshard street cement block and the Rocks are still attempting to convince the populace that the vacancies deserve filling.

PLAYERS WOOING

The players have been wooing a few customers. But it ends there.

The officials haven't.

Referees aren't in the game to win friends and influence people. And they don't. Honest officiating is bearable. But inconsistency and poor refereeing is bound to sour customers and, of late, the referees have been consistent only to the extent of their standard, which has been poor. Wednesday was no exception.

Referees should be entitled to occasional misses, but Barry Balance and Jim Gray missed more than a few.

Granted, they did not score any goals. But their misses, timing and interpretation did more damage to the Shamrock cause than it did to Coquitlam's.

As a result there had to be sympathy for the raft of Shamrock officials who poured forth a deluge of criticism after the game.

That evidence should be turned over to English. Not because of Wednesday's one-game display, but because the standard has been questioned in recent weeks.

ALL FROM MAINLAND

There are nine ticketed referees working Island senior "B" games, but none — in the estimation of the WLA — are qualified to handle inter-city senior action.

WLA referees all hail from the mainland and, consequently, travel to and from Victoria with the visiting clubs. That cuts travelling expenses, sure enough, but it also breeds familiarity. Some of it showed on Wednesday.

TOO LENIENT

On the floor, the referees tagged Victoria with 37 minutes and Coquitlam with 27. The spread is not fair because the officials were far too lenient towards Coquitlam forward Kevin Parsons.

Parsons raced a third of the lenghth of the floor to throw a punch at Victoria's Ivan Thompson. No penalty, presumably because he missed!

Later, Parsons cross-checked Mike Beaulac across the face The Victoria youngster escaped a nasty injury only because he was wearing a face mask to protect a broken nose. Again, Parsons was not penalized.

DILLON PINNED

In the final moments, Parsons pinned Victoria forward Nirmal Dillon to the boards as one would pin the tail on the donkey. No penalty, though the interference was flagrant.

This standard, if maintained, will not help lacrosse.

OBSTACLES OVERCOME

Cougars, Coach Officially In

The manager of the Victoria Cougars, who are now officially members of the Western Canada Hockey League, said today he has signed a coach to a one-year contract.

Eric Bishop said in an interview from Saskatoon that he is withholding the name of the new coach until he comes back out to the west coast, probably early next week. He would divulge no details on the new coach's background.

The Cougars and a team from Vancouver were officially included in the WCHL Tuesday, and the Estevan, Sask., franchise is to be moved to New Westminster.

Milo Fabro, president of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association, and Joe Kryczka, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, sent telegrams to the WCHL board of governors, meeting in Saskatoon, which formally approved the WCHL's move into B.C.

SUBSIDY

Bishop said a few last-minute obstacles came up in the path of the Cougar's entry into the WCHL, but that these had been overcome. One was the issue of a travel subsidy to be paid by the B.C. teams to clubs coming to play games.

"That upset us a little," Bishop said. Other requirements imposed by the league were a $10,000 entry fee and a form of gate equalization.

Both the Cougars and the Vancouver organization accepted the provisions, however.

"The next thing we have to do," Bishop said, "is to hustle and get some players."

DREAM REALIZED

"It cost us a lot of money to get into this league, and I just hope we get some fan support.

"People will have to realize that we'll take about a year to catch up with the other clubs," he said.

Ben Hatskin, retiring chairman of the WCHL board of governors, said the directors of the league have realized "their dream of expansion to the coast from six years ago when they founded and organized the Western League."

He said "the inclusion of Vancouver and Victoria will make the WCHL a greater attraction than ever."

WINNERS AT UPLANDS

Isabel Locatelli, Vivian Ball and A. Dark were divisional winners in a women's par competition at Uplands Golf Club.

Medicor Shares Frozen

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says trading in shares of Medicor was suspended on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday, partly as a result of the company's involvement with Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd., parent company of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League.

The newspaper says the United States securities and exchange commission ordered an eight-day suspension Tuesday, warning anyone dealing in Medicor shares during this period to consider carefully the reasons for the suspension and to make sure U.S. securities laws wouldn't be violated.

Medicor — The Medical Investment Corp. of Minneapolis — has been trying to raise $3,500,000 to redeem its 60.1-per-cent controlling interest in Northwest Sports Enterprises.

Capozzi Enterprises Ltd. of Kelowna, last week came to Medicor's rescue with a $3,650,000 loan and, in return, took interim control of Northwest until the loan is repaid. The repayment period is 14 months.

'PROCEDURAL'

Medicor president Tom Scallen, interviewed by telephone from San Francisco, dismissed the suspension as a SEC procedural affair.

"We have been late getting in our year-end financial figures," he said. "As I understand it, the suspension is just an automatic procedure.

"Our auditors have told me the figures will be in within the next two weeks.

"The reason we are late is we had a fire on our New York offices in December and some of our records were destroyed."

The securities and exchange commission said it was informed that Medicor's loss for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1970, could range from $1,500,000 to $2,500,000, depending on accounting treatment given to the disposition of certain assets.

Wise Almost 'Perfect' As Reds Humbled Again

By The Associated Press

Seven years ago Rick Wise watched Jim Bunning pitch a perfect game, then went out and recorded his first major league victory. On Wednesday night, Wise came within one batter of duplicating Bunning's incredible feat.

Wise tossed a no-hitter against Cincinnati Reds—the second in three weeks suffered by the beleaguered National League champions—and led the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 triumph with a pair of home runs.

Wise faced just one batter more than the minimum 27, surrendering a one-out walk to Dave Concepcion in the sixth.

It was on June 21, 1964, that Bunning unfolded his perfect game against New York Mets in the first game of a Father's Day doubleheader in New York. In the nightcap, Wise, an 18-year-old rookie, won his second major league start.

In other league night action, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Mets 6-2, Montreal Expos clipped Atlanta Braves 6-3, St. Louis Cardinals topped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 in 10 innings, San Francisco Giants flipped Chicago Cubs 5-2 in an afternoon game and, in a twi-night doubleheader, San Diego Padres edged Houston Astros 3-2 in a sweep with a 4-3 nightcap triumph.

In the American League, Boog Powell cracked out two home runs and a single as Baltimore Orioles defeated Washington Senators, 7-5, to boost their lead to six and one-half games.

Blue Moon Odom of Oakland Athletics who missed the first month of the season following elbow surgery hurled shutout ball for seven innings as the A's beat the Minnesota Twins 8-3.

In other American League games, Chicago White Sox hammered Kansas City Royals, 12-3 for their fourth straight victory, New York Yankees edged Detroit Tigers 6-5 on Gene Michael's 13th inning home run, Boston Red Sox defeated Cleveland Indians 2-1 on a home run by Joe Lahoud, and Milwaukee Brewers split a double-header with California Angels, winning 6-0 and losing 9-5.

SOCCER STAR TO RETIRE 'IN STAGES'

TORONTO (CP) — Pele will be finished playing soccer at the international level July 18, but says he'll continue to play at home in Brazil with his Santos team for the next two or three years.

The man acclaimed by many to be the greatest soccer player in the world spoke through an interpreter Tuesday at a news conference.

He said reports of his retirement as an active player were premature.

"I intend to retire in stages," he said.

Super-Stocks Likely To Bend Some Ears

Langford area residents are likely to hear a lot of noise from Western Speedway this weekend as super-stocks from the Early-Late Stock Car Association of the Northwest stage a rare two-day meet on the four-tenths-of-a-mile oval.

The Oregon and eastern Washington-based organization usually allots only one race date to each track but because of the expenses involved in coming to Victoria, Western Speedway has been granted two dates — Saturday and Sunday.

Current ELSCAN point leader Don Hall and defending champion Fred Connett, both running out of Portland, Ore., in 1967 Chevelles, are included in the entry list of 15 United States cars.

Local honors will be defended by open competition vehicles driven by Cooper, Gary Kershaw and rookie Joe Macmurchie as well as a bevy of regular super-stocks conforming to ELSCAN regulations.

Among these entries will be the '68 Torino driven by points leader Ross Surgenor. Other local cars will be driven by John Harris, Mike Armstrong, Jerrie Ferrie, Cliff Hitchcox, Rick O'Dell, Wayne Atkinson, Bill Price, Roy Haslam, Bob Collins, John Currier, Jim Caudwell, Don Cameron, Larry Walker Ron Hancock and Mark Meers.

Time trials begin at 7 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday with regular dashes and heat races followed by a 50-lap main event each day.

Meanwhile, track manager Reg Midgley said he plans to cancel three foreign stock car and figure-eight events after a twin bill Wednesday night attracted only 458 fans.

The dates to be cancelled are Aug. 6, Aug. 27 and Sept. 17, all Friday nights. Midgley said the action is necessary because of lack of response from fans and car owners.

Wednesday results:

IRISH INTERNATIONAL TO PLAY FOR ROYALS

Playing-coach Brian Hughes hopes to have two international stars in the Victoria Royals' lineup when his Western Canada Soccer League charges tackle Vancouver Junior All-Stars in an exhibition match Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Iam McFaul, the Newcastle United and Northern Ireland international goalkeeper, will play in the net for Royals.

In a Thursday announcement, Hughes also said that negotiations are in progress to have Jack Charlton, Leeds United and England international centre-half, play for Royals in Saturday's match.

Kick-off time Saturday is 7:15 p.m.

'LINK WITH PSYCHOLOGY NEEDED'

Lions' Training Methods Not Just for the Body

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tryouts for the Western Football Conference British Columbia Lions are getting a workout of their minds as well as their muscles.

Conditioning of the 80 hopefuls at the Lions training camp at the University of B.C. has been put in the hands of Dr. Amrik Sidhu, a 31year-old specialist in the psychology of physical conditioning.

Head coach Eagle Keys has given the UBC professor a free hand at instructing the players.

"This old system of pushups is bad," said Dr. Sidhu at a session Friday. "Any conditioning which has no link with the psychological side is no good.

"Conditioning is the foundation to success in football, or in any sport for that matter."

Dr. Sidhu starts his workouts by having each player take his own pulse rate, then go through stretching and shaking exercises and a final reading of their pulses. He uses the information to reach conclusions about his method's effectiveness.

"These professional athletes must maintain their peak conditioning not just at the start of a season but right the way through it," he said. "Also if you have two football players facing one another on the line of scrimmage who have an equal physical ability, it will be the one with the psychological advantage who will be the winner.

"It is my belief that the worst thing a player can do to himself is over-train. He should not exercise until he drops. He should reach about 90 per cent of his energy output then go home and have a good supper.

"And the thing I see time and time again is the improper use of weights. Weights are fantastic if you know how to use them, but they are drastic if you don't."

"The players seem to like it," said Keys, "and if we see that it's working, then we'll stick with it for the season."

Dr. Sidhu took his masters degree in India and got his doctorate at the Central Scientific Institute in Moscow, where he did extensive work with the Russian national hockey team.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

A change in the pattern of fishing on the Strait of Georgia, according to federal fisheries officers, appears to be one of the major reasons for the almost unbelievable success salt water anglers have had for bluebacks during past weeks. On many days, this success has reached phenomenal peaks of up to six fish per boat on the average.

In past years, anglers have tended to concentrate near shore with only the explorative and hardy few venturing out to the middle of the strait to the schools of immature coho or blueback. However, last year, also a season of high angler success, there appeared almost a mass exodus of anglers to these schools out in the strait. A similar angling pattern has prevailed this year with incredible and almost historic catches.

These immature coho have been providing spectacular sport, particularly for anglers who are using light tackle. Bucktailing right on the surface or with a single ounce of weight and a small spinner appears by far to be the most successful lure. Color, while important at times, is only secondary to speed. Success has been greatest when the lure is only twenty or so feet behind the boat with the boat travelling as fast as possible to keep the bucktail just under the surface.

Averaging two to five pounds at this time the bluebacks are at that point where their diet is changing from the current pink shrimp to needle fish and herring. Once they change their diet they will amost literally double their weight every month until they migrate up their parent stream to spawn in late September and October. At that time, they will average from 10 to 20 pounds.

The coho has a similar life history to the steelhead. Emerging from his redd in the warm water months of late June and July he will spend almost two years in his parent stream foraging primarily on upper surface insects. The steelhead fry has a diet which consists primarily of stream bottom insects like the caddis fly.

The young coho usually leaves freshwater in the spring of their second year as a sea-going migrant called a smolt, usually less than four inches in length. The rich abundance of the sea quickly transforms the smolt into a grilse, the small coho under twelve inches.

In the spring of their second year at sea, coho weigh from two to four pounds and are dubbed blueback by anglers. When they reach the five-pound mark, usually in early summer of this second year at sea, they are referred to as coho.

During the summer and early fall of this fourth year they are voracious eaters feeding at almost any time or tide. This seemingly constant and unpredictable feeding pattern makes the coho a star attraction for salt water englers.

Along the Gold River-Campbell River highway, in what is probably one of the most striking and accessable valleys on the Island, travellers have the unique opportunity to view one of Vancouver Island's rare species of wildlife. Here, in the Elk River Valley is a relatively large herd of the normally-wary Roosevelt Elk. This herd is often visible on the mud flats at the river mouth where it flows into Upper Campbell Lake.

In a concentrated attempt to improve the habitat of these mud flats, to stabilize the delta of the river, and to stop the erosion of these flats as a result of flooding of the Upper Campbell Lake, members of fish and wildlife clubs in the Campbell River-Gold River area are planting native willows. This project under the direction of Conservation Officer Ray Rogers is an attempt to halt the loss of large amounts of soil which have been lost into the lake as the river has shifted channels during the past few years.

Not surprising, however, this habitat improvement project is being hampered by the elk themselves, who persist in browsing on the transplanted willows—a favored food.

New garbage pollution prevention regulations within the Canada Shipping Act will enable the courts to assess a fine of up to $5,000 against persons guilty of dumping garbage into Canadian waters.

To ensure that offenders will meet their just dues when found guilty in court, the terms of the wording of the regulation are clearly defined by law. The regulation states that "no persons shall discharge or permit the discharge of garbage from a vessel in Canadian waters." Garbage is defined as "solid galley waste, paper, rags, glass, plastics, metal, bottles, crockery, junk or similar refuse."

Setting Perfect For Jim's Homer

The situation was perfect: It was the bottom of the last inning, two men were out, the team at bat was behind by two runs and the bases were loaded.

So Bell's Men's Wear batter Jim Anderson rifled a grand-slam home run to beat Labatts.

The final score in the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League game was 6-4 for Bell's. And there were two out before anyone was on base in that last inning.

Eric Peterson's soft fly ball was bobbled by Labatts' fielder John Sanderson, and Bill Shortt, Bob Brown and Darrell Lorimer each hit singles to load the bases for Anderson's game-winner.

The win moved Bell's to within two points of co-leaders Langford Drywall and Century Inn. Each team has 22 points.

Shortt managed three hits for four trips to the plate for the winners, while losing pitcher Bob Harris also stroked three safeties.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: The squeeze shot

Casals, Pancho Drop From Scene

LONDON (Reuter) — Favorite Rod Laver exerted all his left-arm power and tennis knowledge to turn back a determined challenge from South African Ray Moore in the second round of the All-England championships at Wimbledon on Wednesday.

For two hours, the huge crowd around the No. 1 court was kept enthralled by the Australian's efforts to counter a power-packed attack of the long-haired Moore.

Laver, seeded No. 1 and seeking his fifth Wimbledon crown, emerged on top, 6-8, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5, to become one of the 32 men to reach the third round.

Two big names in American tennis, Pancho Gonzales and Rosemary Casals, were eliminated in other matches Wednesday.

Laver's delivery, never his most powerful weapon, was far below par Wednesday as he served 10 double faults.

On the same court in the first open Wimbledon championship in 1968, Moore had achieved fame by beating third-seeded Spanish professional Andres Gimeno.

The first major upset of the women's singles came with the second-round defeat of Miss Casals, the No. 4 seed, by Australian Kerry Melville.

Miss Melville, 23, with brilliant ground stroke control, beat Miss Casals, a Wimbledon semi-finalist last year, 7-5, 6-4. Both competed on the women's professional circuit earlier this year.

There was an air of nostalgia as two popular 43-year-old veterans performed in the men's second round. Frank Sedgman, Australian winner at Wimbledon 19 years ago, won his match but Gonzales lost to Pierre Barthes of France in a three-hour drama-packed contest.

Gonzales, one of the game's greatest for a quarter of a century, found the task of conceding 14 years to the Frenchmen too great. Barthes won, 7-5, 8-9, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The wily Sedgman outmanoeuvred 24-year-old South African professional Bob Maud, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

ERRATIC START

Other seeded women came under pressure Wednesday. Billie Jean King of the U.S., three times champion and seeded No. 2, steadied her game after an erratic start to beat Australian Wendy Gilchrist, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0, in a second-round match.

Eighth-seeded Helga Masthoff, the elegant West German who was the only player to win a set from Margaret Court at last year's Wimbledon, conceded a set against Gail Chanfreau of France, then won, 1-6, 6-2, 6-4. Mrs. Chanfreau, born in Australia, had defeated Mrs. Court during the French championship earlier.

Australian Evonne Goolagong, No. 3, advanced with a 6-4, 6-1 win over Kris Kemmer of the U.S. Fifth-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain tripped Marilyn Greenwood of Britain 6-1, 6-4.

Fawthorpe Wins Again

Karl Fawthorpe of Victoria Wheelers Bicycle Club won the George Matthews Trophy for the second straight year Wednesday night, winning the 10-mile race by over a minute.

A repeat victory next season will allow Fawthorpe to keep the trophy for ever. His time in the race was 22 minutes and 35 seconds.

Peter Vogelaar came second in 23:34 and George Allen was third in 27:40.

Only person to win the junior event three times in a row was George Matthews, now nearing 90, who was on hand to present the trophy to Fawthorpe.

Another Quarter In Lions' Camp

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference Wednesday announced the signing of a sixth prospective quarterback, who is also a punter and field-goal specialist.

He is David Mayz, 22, from Texas Southern University. He stands six-feet-two and weighs 210 pounds.

'Friends' Help Glen Meadows Collect Driver

The Glen Meadows team, with a little help from their "friends," captured the Willie Park Driver for the Inter-club Golf League championship Wednesday after finishing in the cellar last year.

Although Glen Meadows, which entered the league in 1969, managed only 3½ points against defending champion Royal Colwood, their "friends" — Cedar Hill and Uplands — were able to win enough points from their opponents to allow the new club to win.

Cedar Hill took a 7-2 victory from Gorge Vale and Uplands upset Victoria 8-1 at home to keep the losing teams from getting enough points for the championship.

Glen Meadows got their needed points from Brian Sluggett, who defeated Jim McMurran, 2 and 1; Bill Penny, who tripped Ron Howard Sr., 4 and 3; Rick Kent, who downed Ron Howard Jr., 4 and 3; and the team of Kent and Al Zimmerman who halved their four-ball match with Howard Jr. and Bruce Pelmore.

Cedar Hill's Greg Barnes popped in a 25-foot downhill putt for a birdie on the 18th green to win his match with Dave Mich, 1 up. It also halved the four-ball match between himself and Brian Gandy and Mick and Al McLeod of Gorge Vale. The putt kept 1½ points from going to the Gorge Team, which would have been just enough for them to win the title.

The only points Victoria could manage came from Carl Schwantje, who halved with Bob Hunt, and the team of Schwantje and Mike Parker who halved with Uplands' Hunt and Frank Scroggs. Uplands moved from a fourth-place tie last week to a second-place finish in the championship with the eight points they won.

Kuhn Denies Investigating Gun Incidents

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has vehemently denied a report that he is investigating incidents of guns in major league dressing rooms other than the California Angels.

"We ought to nip that report in the bud," Kuhn said Tuesday. "It is absolutely untrue."

Kuhn said he had been in touch with the California club over an alleged gun incident involving Alex Johnson and Chico Ruiz. "They are conducting their own investigation and keeping me informed," the commissioner said.

"I have made no inquiries nor investigations of any other teams."

Island Trio on Tour

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Vancouver Island players are among 18 from British Columbia on the 23-man squad named Wednesday by the Canadian Rugby Union to make a five-game tour of Wales in September.

Centre-threequarter Tom Browne of Victoria's Castaways Rugby Club, along with scrum-half Dave Slater and No. 8 forward Ken Wilke, both of the University of Victoria Vikings, were selected.

The other B.C. players chosen were forwards Sam Glendinning, Danny Pahl, Fred Sturrock, Bob Jackson, Pat Aldous, Brian Barker, Paul Johnstone and Dave Randall and backs T. K. Kariya, Doug Schick, Jerry Lorenz, Charles Piester, Spence McTavish, Barry Leigh and Barrie Burnham.

Ontario, which defeated B.C. 27-17, in Toronto last Saturday to win the Canadian interprovincial rugby championship, had one player, scrum-half John Ackery, named to the tour party.

Others selected were forwards Mike Browne of Newfoundland, Mike Ashton of Quebec and Lou Dryden of Alberta and wing-threequarter Andy Stanton of Quebec.

Dick Ellis of Victoria, vice-president of the Canadian Rugby Union, will manage the tour and former Australian Wallaby, Max Howell of the University of Alberta, will be coach.

SAANICH CHANGES MIND

Costs Put Freeze on Ice Arena Decision

Saanich council will be asked to switch signals on the fourth recreation project under the 1967 referendum.

The Cedar Hill recreation study committee had recommended an ice surface and council aproved this Monday night.

But when the committee was confronted with cost figures from architect Alan Lester Wednesday night, it decided to recommend that the earlier decision in favor of an ice surface be rescinded.

In other decisions, the committee recommended:

● That the recreation project be a community centre.

● That preliminary design of the centre be left with the architectural firm of Peterson and Lester, after they have had time to consider all submissions:

● That the southeast corner of Cedar Hill Park be the site for the community centre.

ROCK BOTTOM

The 1967 referendum provided $260,000 for the last project, which was listed in the bylaw as a community centre at the McRae Estate, known now as Cedar Hill Park.

Lester said the "rock-bottom" price for an ice surface with a minimum number of dressing rooms and public space would be $350,000.

Ald. Leslie Passmore suggested putting to the taxpayers in the future construction of an arena similar to the George R. Pearkes Arena, which cost just over $500,000, to be located next door to the Gordon Head Recreation Centre.

Ald. William Campbell said he thought the ice surface would be just a sheet of ice, "but 185 by 85 feet is an arena."

Lester said a sheet of ice could be built for $260,000 "but it does mean that any thought of hockey is out of the question."

Mayor Hugh Curtis said it would be "unthinkable" to construct a building which couldn't accommodate hockey and committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry thought there was no choice but to abandon the ice surface and consider the number two choice — the community centre.

During discussion on the community centre, Passmore said there is no demand for it and Curtis agreed there is "no strong evidence," yet it was a recommendation of the Sanderson report on indoor recreation.

Lester told the committee that the funds available indicate a building of between 12,000 and 14,000 square feet.

The southeast corner of Cedar Hill Park was the location recommended in the planning department's 1970 report on the park.

Regional Board Expected To Oppose Dump Permit

The Capital Regional District board is expected to add its protest to an application for Pollution Control Board permission to dump refuse on 70 acres near 2015 Millstream Road in Langford.

Local works and services committees recommended Wednesday that the board write the PCB "to further our cause." Earlier the board expressed concern about the operation of the dump.

The dump's owner, Glen Raymond, has stated in his application for a permit that the quantity to be discharged is 500 cubic yards a day of domestic refuse excluding garbage, commercial and industrial.

The local works committee also recommended that a letter be sent to senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, asking him to reconsider his authority in the matter and taking action if it is within his power.

CONFUSION

North Saanich Mayor J. B. Cumming had said if the dump is a health hazard, Whitbread can close it.

But Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning said there is "some confusion" where Whitbread's authority ends and PCB authority begins. She added that Whitbread had written the PCB objecting to the dump.

At an earlier meeting of the committee, there were charges that the dump is a fire, pollution and health hazard, with a fire burning for a long time and an infestation of rats.

Raymond replied there is no problem, that he has spent $2,000 as a safeguard against fires plus a sprinkler system and the dump isn't responsible for any rodent problem.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock asked if the dump owner shouldn't be heard first.

"You better go there and see the dump," said View Royal director Al Beasley.

BAD ODOR

A letter was received from John P. Drysdale, 2439 Millstream, saying he had written Whitbread objecting to the granting of a permit, mainly because of the dumping of septic tank effluent which created a "rather obnoxious" odor and an "open pool for insects to breed and carry disease."

The regional district has been told it has little jurisdiction because the dump isn't a contravention of a bylaw, although it is a legally non-conforming use under the zoning bylaw.

In other business, regional district committees:

● Agreed to draw to the attention of local MPs that local tax money is being used to create trails in East Sooke park because an application under the Opportunities for Youth program was turned down.

● Heard that the second draft for a zoning bylaw for the outer Gulf Islands will be discussed at a meeting this Saturday in Port Washington of the advisory planning commission there.

● Recommended that a $50,000 bylaw for a volunteer fire department be placed before voters on North Pender Island.

Before the Judge

A 31-year-old quick-change artist was sentenced to three months in prison Wednesday by Judge William Ostler for three counts of theft under $50.

Robert G. L. Wright, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty.

Court was told that the accused went to two businesses in Saanich June 7 and bought small items paying with a $20 bill.

He was given change and he then asked the clerk again for change and managed to short change the shops about $10 each time.

His method was similar in the one Victoria count committed June 8.

Ostler said he was surprised the old con game worked so well.

"You must be pretty adept at it," he told the accused.

Wright said going to jail didn't help because that was where he learned the technique.

He told Ostler that he had split up with his wife, lost his job and was trying to support a drug habit.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said the man was facing similar charges in Nanaimo. His record, the prosecutor said, included vagrancy, theft and false pretences.

★ ★ ★

Melvin William Buhse, of HMCS Mackenzie, was fined a total of $187.50 when he pleaded guilty to five counts of wilful damage.

The offences involved traffic signs in Saanich and Ostler fined the accused $35 on each count and another $2.50 a count to help pay for repairs.

Two others earlier pleaded guilty to the same offence and Ostler imposed the same penalty on each of them.

Joe Paul Gingras, 62, of 1225 Goldstream, was fined $300 for impaired driving and prohibited drom driving except for work.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING SELLS THE MOST

British Columbians are small car experts.
Here's one for the experts!

Firenza

GM's newest and lowest-priced little car.

You know what you want in your next small car.
Our new Firenza has it all!

Front disc brakes!
Power brakes all 'round with discs in front. Standard equipment! Cars costing twice as much as Firenza can't offer that. So drivers of many big cars gladly pay extra for the extra advantages of power disc brakes. If they're good for big cars, think how confident you'll feel in our little car with the improved brake life and fade resistance of disc brakes up front. And the reassurance of having self-adjusting front brakes and corrosion-resistant brake lines and a dual master cylinder brake system with warning light. All at no extra cost!

Lots of power.
How many cars in Firenza's class give you 94 gross horsepower? Or a 1975 c.c. overhead-cam engine that goes beautifully on regular, no-lead or low-lead fuels—and with lower exhaust emissions? Firenza puts all that in your grasp with a sporty four-on-the-floor standard transmission. And has a new three-speed automatic developed for Firenza available as an option.

We proved it!
The new Firenza is one of the most thoroughly tested and proved cars on the market. It earned its Mark of Excellence the hard way at a GM proving ground so tough, so demanding you wouldn't believe. It checked out as a very strong, ready, willing and very able car. A quality car!

Safety & Anti-Theft
It has a comprehensive safety and anti-theft package as standard equipment. Including a GM-developed energy-absorbing steering column with anti-theft column lock and an ignition key warning buzzer.

Standard luxuries.
It has an upper-level ventilation system for quiet, comfortable, windows-up driving. It gives you surprisingly-generous room—most notably, extra legroom in front and extra hip and shoulder room in back. And it's one of the easiest-to-get-into cars for its size, anywhere.

Choice choices.
You can choose from four Firenza models. A couple of two-door sedans, a four-door and a sweet little wagon so stylish people who never considered a wagon before love it as a "car with a 62.3 cubic foot trunk." All models have front disc brakes, 94 horsepower, full-coil suspension, front bucket seats, such rarities in its field as a full-size trunk, the convenience of an automatic choke and the sureness of rack-and-pinion steering. And it's proudly serviced by over 500 Firenza-Pontiac dealers all across Canada.

The Marked car.
Firenza! A new economy import with all the quality and value of the Mark of Excellence—at GM's lowest price!

FARAWAY PLACES seem to have a strong attraction for Grade One teacher Miss Mary Conway of Vic West Elementary, longingly perusing her travel folders and waiting for that bell to ring. And ring it did, today, for the last time until Sept. 7. School is out for the summer, for 17,506 students from Grades One to 10, the last of Greater Victoria's 33,649 scholars to be freed from their studies. And that means school is also out for about 1,300 teachers including Miss Conway. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Hospital-City Land Dispute At Crisis Level

A meeting of the St. Joseph's Hospital board tonight must face the crisis of a hospital strained to its limit and planning for expansion blocked by a continuing property dispute involving the city.

Even if lands for rebuilding and growing could be launched tomorrow, it could be five years before St. Joseph's was ready to provide significantly more patient care.

An official close to the scene, said today the setting is one of "an unhappy medical staff, a concerned administrator and a frustrated board."

Development of St. Joseph's has been hamstrung for the better part of two years now in a series of disputes involving the adjacent land needed, who would control it and whether Belleville Street will be extended through it.

SAME ROADBLOCK

It is the Belleville extension which appears to be the current roadblock again. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark is opposed, saying a main traffic street that close to the hospital will impair its efficiency.

A compromise — not extending the road but leaving the site empty for the next few years to await developments — appeared to have resolved the matter but the source said today the city is still trying to push the expansion through.

"This cannot go on," said Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, St. Joseph's executive director, of the hospital's dilemma.

The hospital has done everything it can to decrease length of patient stays and increase the number of patients it can handle.

"We have reached the ultimate utilization of our facilities. What will be the case five or 10 years from now?"

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED IN CRASH WITH POLE

A young motorcyclist was killed early today in a crash on Esquimalt Road near Tyee Road.

City police had not released the name of the victim by noon because next-of-kin in Ontario had not been notified.

The motorcycle hit a pole about 140 feet west of Tyee on Esquimalt about 1 a.m.

Rising VD Figures 'No Cause for Alarm'

The rising incidence of venereal disease is no cause for alarm, according to Metro Health Board medical officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

"I don't think we have any more to worry about than we did in the past," he said today, despite the fact the board has reported an increase of 37 per cent in VD cases in the first five months of this year over 1970 figures.

Provincially, according to Dr. Harold Kennedy, provincial director of venereal disease control, an increase of 26 per cent in gonorrhea this year has been recorded. He blamed young transients for the increase.

"Probably the older age group has more VD than those under 20," Whitbread said, "but we still have an increase and we will have an increase as long as there's the use of the pill.

"If a girl isn't worried about getting pregnant and the man isn't worried about getting the girl pregnant, it makes it a lot easier. The rate of VD is just an indication of the amount of promiscuity going on."

Dr. Whitbread also credited the increase in travel to foreign countries for part of the rise in VD cases. Venereal disease, he said, is more prevalent in semi-tropical climates such as Mexico.

Good Recycling System Called Impossible If Stores Forced to Make Refunds on Cans

If retailers are forced to make refunds on soft drink cans, an efficient recycling system will be impossible.

This is the consensus of executives of Pacific Reclamation Ltd. who came to Victoria Wednesday seeking to resolve a dispute with the provincial government over refunding procedures on soft drinks.

Company president Bill Thomson said too many retail outlets exist in B.C. — at least 20,000 — for efficient pickup and recycling procedures if cans were to be taken at stores.

Instead, he said, supermarkets and soft drink companies are giving financial support to Pacific Reclamation — a non-profit corporation — and its 150 associated depots throughout B.C.

Under B.C.'s Litter Act, retailers are required to refund cans at two cents per item. Major supermarkets won't do it. They refer customers to depots like the Victoria Bottle Exchange.

●

The depot system is legal, but the government argues the Litter Act says it is not sufficient.

No solution was reached at Wednesday's meeting.

A department spokesman would not indicate what the government's next step will be.

Pacific Reclamation's legal counsel R. P. Anderson said he hopes the province does not have to go to court to resolve the dispute. He said the company is hoping the government will "forget about its interpretation" of the act that retailers must accept refunds.

Supermarket executives say it is too costly, unsanitary and a potential health hazard to store and refund soft drink cans in stores.

●

Pacific Reclamation says the depot system is acceptable to the public which is used to the idea from having returned beer bottles in similar fashion. It also says this is the cheapest way to recycle cans.

Carting cans from retail stores to depots or freight yards will mean higher consumer costs.

Since Jan. 1, 1971, slightly more than six million cans have been returned to depots. The rate of returns passed 25 per cent of sales in April.

Pacific Reclamation says the problem of co-ordinating refunds at retail outlets will be economically insurmountable if only 2 per cent of cans are refunded there instead of at depots.

"From an ecological point of view," says Anderson, "there is no gain because the retailers would put them in a garbage dump."

Cans sent to depots are shipped to Vancouver, crushed, then shipped to Seattle for recycling. Pacific Reclamation is investigating ways to create a recycling plant in B.C. as well as other methods of integrating recycling processes for other solid wastes.

Thomson has his eye on Vancouver's 42,000 weekly tons of garbage. He's wondering how a B.C. recycling operation could claim the 320 weekly tons of ferrous metals which are contained in Vancouver's garbage.

The government likes the depot system, but its insistence that retailers accept refunds comes from a principle that those who can't get to depots, particularly elderly people, should be able to return their cans where they bought them.

B.C. supermarket chains contribute to Pacific Reclamation a monthly sum based on their sales. Soft drink manufacturers also contribute.

This money pays the company's operating costs and commissions to depots, which are private businesses with agreements with Pacific Reclamation.

One question Kiernan's department won't answer officially is why the government waited until late June to raise the issue of refunds.

●

Citizens can initiate court action against retailers who refuse to accept cans. This has yet to be done and followed through, though an attempt was made in Nanaimo in May.

But the government also can bring the issue before the courts. It has not yet decided to resolve the dispute this way.

Schools to Introduce Film Teaching Plan

A film will replace text books to teach art, music, architecture and culture to some senior secondary school students this fall.

Education Minister Brothers said today his department has purchased the film version of "Civilisation, a widely-acclaimed BBC television series on the history of art forms in the western world.

It will be used as the basis of an experimental resource course, he said.

The course will be given, starting in September, to Grade 12 students in Claremont Senior Secondary in Saanich and Lord Byng in Vancouver.

If successful, its use will be extended.

Brothers said this new type of audio-visual course is a major resource program designed to give students an insight into the landmarks of western civilization — art, music, architecture and culture.

The course will involve the extensive use of team-teaching techniques, with teachers of art, music, English and social studies supervising and giving further explanation to various parts of the film series.

It is the first time that the film medium, rather than a textbook, has been used as a major basis for a course of study in British Columbia, John Meredith, superintendent of instructional services, said.

Nursing Home Issue Discussed by Unions

Representatives of construction trades unions in Victoria met Wednesday night to discuss the site of a new National Nursing Homes Ltd. project in Oak Bay.

But John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, declined today to give any comment or information about what the meeting may have decided.

National Nursing Homes manages Sandringham Private Hospital, where 28 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have been on strike since Sept. 30.

The Oak Bay project, at Cadboro Bay Road and Bowker Avenue, will be a retirement home. It has been variously estimated to cost between $3 million and $5 million.

Construction work has begun and Oak Bay building department said today a permit valued at $50,000 has been issued for foundation work only, up to the first floor, until additional information is available for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health on internal details of the building.

BATTEN THE HATCHES

Don't bother with sun tan lotion or garden sprinklers this weekend.

Gale-force southeasterlies battered the west coast of Vancouver Island today, blowing at 35 miles an hour, and are expected to decrease to a still lusty 25 miles an hour by midnight.

Winds of 15 knots, clouds and rain in the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Georgia Strait made cruising an ordeal.

When this storm passes, there's another one right behind it, due to hit the area Saturday with another dollop of cloud and rain.

Sunday's forecast — more of the same.

Ship Repair Unit Manager Named

Capt. E. J. Dawson, formerly of the National Defence College in Kingston, has been appointed manager of the ship repair unit in CFB, Esquimalt.

He succeeds Capt. Stanley E. Hopkins, 43, who is now director of maritime maintenance at Canadian Forces Headquarters in Ottawa.

'Moral Fibre' Said Key to Control

The key to controlling the rising incidence of venereal disease in B.C. lies more with the "moral fibre and intelligence" of those being infected than it does with public health policy, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today.

The minister said VD is increasing at a rate "that disturbs us" and the provincial health department has plans to expand its VD laboratory facilities.

"But the question we should properly ask is if young people today are discouraged by some of the inequities in our society, I wonder how their children are going to look at them later on when they look at the record of infection of young people today.

"Is this a record they can be proud of?"

Loffmark said there is "no mistaking that this (infection) is reflected in the next generation."

He said he wouldn't go so far as to say the increasing incidence is caused by transient youth but there is no question the rate of VD is higher in that group than among the stable population.

Loffmark said "we have a number of young people who assume the appearance of these people" and travel among them in an effort to encourage visits to VD clinics.

He also criticized the idea that VD is not a serious medical problem because it can be treated quickly with drugs. In fact, new strains of VD are developing which are harder to control, he said.

But the issue is not basically a question of public responsibility through the public health policies of the government, he said.

"It is a question of moral fibre and intelligence of those being infected . . ."

AS A MATTER OF LOCAL pride, I hoped that our city's name might grace the pilot plan for a constitution. The Victoria Charter . . . it had a fine, resonant ring, and would have looked well in history books yet to be written.

But unless provincial and federal representatives wisely choose Canada's fairest city for some future, more auspicious go-round, that honor is likely to elude us.

The charter, of course, may not be totally lost. Quebec author Roger Lemelin once compared his home province to a woman who likes to be coaxed. Perhaps a slim chance remains that the Quebec which chose a Liberal-federalist government though free to elect elsewhere could prove susceptible to further coaxing.

Remote though that possibility seems at the moment, it might be worth keeping in mind that Quebec is between the devil and the deep blue in this matter of bringing the British North America Act home for Canadianization.

If Quebec finds the charter not to her taste, she has no love for the BNA, either.

Even with such alterations as have been made through the years, the founding act bears the stamp of Britain's Parliament. The distribution of powers between Ottawa and the provinces is uncompromisingly defined. So are language rights, and I am by no means convinced that our Official Languages Act if put to the test could make a case for itself against the BNA provisions.

The premiers of Canada's other provinces may be in no hurry to confer again . . . that's understandable. Still, they too are between devil and deep. The eventual price of failure to reach an understanding is plain.

No point, then, in moaning prematurely that all is lost. While the Victoria conference doesn't appear to have brought a workable constitution much nearer, Quebec does still remain a partner in Confederation.

And as grounds for a skinny little ray of optimism, I might point out that Confederation itself took its own sweet time in arriving.

Last week, in a burst of generosity, I shared the secret of making the definitive clam chowder. On my desk today is proof that one man's meat can be another's poison, even before he's sampled it.

One phoner-in turned up his nose at every ingredient except the clams. Another insisted that without tomatoes, a chowder isn't worth eating.

A writer-in from Duncan made large claims for her own chowder, and offered rude and totally unjustified opinions about my wife's cooking.

But the cruelest wound was inflicted by Herb Warren, 1041 St. Charles Street.

"Thanks for your detailed recipe on how to make clam chowder," he writes. "For many of us, you forgot one item — throw the whole mess over the left shoulder, I don't like clams."

So be it . . . even if some people don't know what they're missing!

Mrs. Sue Talbot, who does what she can to help the helpless through Victoria's Community Action Group, is still without a car.

Because of crippling arthritis, she can't drive a stick-shift vehicle, and her old automatic transmission model has packed it up for keeps.

However, thanks to the kindness of a reader who offered help, Mrs. Talbot can now count on transport three mornings a week. She has also received donations totalling $55, which are salted away in a car fund.

"Eventually I'll be able to get another car," she says. "Until then, with the ride down and an occasional afternoon lift, I'm able to get on with my work."

That's it, except to relay a request from a friend of the feathered, who points out that several quail families of about 20 chicks each cross Memorial Crescent several times a day.

Her plea to drivers entering this crescent from Fairfield or Dallas: Slow down and spare them!

CANON TACKLES RAF OVER LONG HAIR BAN

LONDON (AP) — The headmaster of an exclusive boys' school in England went to bat Wednesday for long hair — and won.

Flying cadets were grounded by the commander of an RAF station where they train because their hair was "too long."

Canon Douglas Vicary, the head of King's School in Kent, protested:

"Short hair back and side these days is definitely out. In fact it could be argued that boys who have their old-fashioned hairstyle are lacking in initiative."

The RAF command relented.

MINI-MERMAID Angela Ross demonstrates the crawl with the help of swimming instructor Ron Aubrey. Her male audience soon joined her in Centennial pool for swimming classes arranged by teachers and parents of Grade 1 students at Victoria West Elementary.

SWIM CLASSES A BOON FOR TOTS

Problems Dissolve in Pool

Grade 1 students at Victoria West Elementary hate to see the school year end.

For the last two months they have been swimming twice a week at Centennial Pool, and according to their teachers "living for swimming days."

The change in the children proves instructor Ron Aubrey's theory that swimming lessons are more effective when there are no bad habits to overcome.

He likes to teach young children who have only a natural fear of water, not an ingrained fear. Aubrey thinks the swimming classes scheduled by the school board at the Grade 5 level are a mistake.

"Children 10 years old who still fear the water take a long time to get over it," he said.

"And if they have learned to swim on their own they usually have a lot of bad habits."

The 75 Grade 1s bobbing like ducklings in the pool have lost all fear of water. All but three have learned to float and about 25 can swim.

Teacher Mary Conway, described the change in attitude among the children. "At first only five per cent of the class would get in the water. The others all sat at the side and shivered with fear.

"Now we can't get them to come out," she said.

Classes were arranged by Grade 1 teachers Miss Conway and Lois Wallace, with the help of parents.

Costs were held down by renting only the shallow end of the pool. Advanced swimmer use the deep end.

Teachers feel the lessons, at no cost to the school board, have meant a great deal to the children in another important regard.

Some of their pupils are from underprivileged homes — a disadvantage made worse by attending an underprivileged school. "The school doesn't even have a gym or activity room. There is no place where they can let off steam," one teacher said.

Mrs. Wallace pointed out a small boy knifing under water like a sea otter. "He has been in five foster homes since he was 2," she said. Another boy's father is in prison.

" Some of these children have problems the average person couldn't even imagine," she said. Because of the swimming program now at least "twice a week they get in the water and forget their problems."

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You don't have to tell me I have a crazy husband. I already know that. What I need is some advice on what to do about it. This man absolutely refuses to eat anywhere except at home, and I mean anywhere, including the lovely homes of his relatives and mine. (The only exception was his mother's home, but she is dead now.)

His excuse is that he doesn't know how clean their dishes and silverware are, and he isn't sure of the cleanliness of their pots, pans and kitchens. Now, wouldn't that startle you? I have tried to tell him that I have to assume that most people are as clean about their kitchens and utensils as I am, but he doesn't even hear me. A restaurant? Forget it.

Naturally, we can't go on out-of-town trips and our social engagements are limited, too, but that's the way it has to be.

In case you think my husband is a lame-brain, he owns hiw own business and last year his income was in six figures. He drives a Cadillac, wears tailor-made suits and carries his lunch. Figure that out! Can you help me? Eating In

DEAR EATING IN: Your husband has a "phobia" about germs. It won't kill him, but it's unfair to his family. He could possibly get over it with the help of a good psychiatrist, but if he's too selfish to seek help, I see an eternal triangle in your future —your kitchen, your husband and you!

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a schoolteacher, and as such she gets three months' vacation during the summer. I have only one month vacation. She told me that she has decided to take our daughter to France for two and a half months. She says she needs the rest and the separation after eight years of marriage would be "good" for us.

Although I do love her, I am prepared to offer her a divorce based on this solitary flight.

What is your opinion? Perplexed.

DEAR PERPLEXED: It seems to me that you would be giving her an "ultimatum" rather than "offering" her a divorce. Loving her as you do, I would advise against such an "offer." (She may take you up on it) Perhaps the spearation would be good for both of you. Let her go with your blessings and find out.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the husband who sees nothing wrong with leaving 4- and 5-year-old children alone in the house "for a few minutes:"

In the state of California, children who are left alone in a house or an automobile are considered "neglected," and as such they are taken to Juvenile Hall. Their parents must then go to court to prove that they are fit parents. If they are not "fit" parents, their children are then placed in foster homes, for which the parents must pay. An Authority In Redlands

DEAR AUTHORITY: There are similar laws in other states. A word to the wise. (And to the foolish, as well.)

DEAR ABBY: Referring to your reply to TOO SENSITIVE in which you said it is intended as a compliment, not a put down, when asked, "How come a nice girl like you isn't married?" I think any question along this line is rude and nobody's business. The questioner deserves to be squelched, and my stock reply is, "I didn't have to."

Very truly yours, Baltimore Miss

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to your about my sister. She is 13 years old and she hasn't had one date yet. She's no beauty, but she's not a mess either. She's tried the most exotic perfumes and she dresses in the latest styles, but it hasn't helped her. I am thinking of asking some of the boys at school to please date my sister to get her started to lift her spirits. I would even be glad to give the guy five bucks.

What do you think of this approach? — Her 15-Year-Old Brother.

DEAR BROTHER: A 13-year-old girl who hasn't had one date yet is hardly an "Old maid." Don't offer to pay a guy to date your sister or he'll wonder what's wrong with her. If she hasn't had a date by the time she's 16, you might arrange a "blind date" for her. But don't ask anyone who knows her to take her out at 13. (It's unlucky!)

FOR GALLEY-SLAVES

Cooking Afloat

By PAT DUFOUR

Boating is fun. So is cooking. But the combination can sometimes be disastrous.

It can also be downright messy if you're in a small sailboat making your way through a wind-roughed sea.

There are a few basic rules you soon learn when you begin your apprenticeship as a galley-slave: keep it simple, let your imagination run riot before the trip, not during it — and, if you want to be a culinary star and still retain your status as crew, make with the flourishes only when the boat's alongside and her lines secure.

Most important of all, remember that supermarkets don't flourish on the water-borne routes, so sail prepared.

These rules can also save a few headaches for those who prefer to hike or bike, or go native on the weekend with a cottage that's hard-pressed to boast of much more than four walls and a roof.

One of the best "boot camps' I know for learning how to cope in small quarters is a 20-foot sloop, skippered by a man who likes to race hard — and eat hearty. It's a combination that would have Mrs. Beaton shuddering, but one which is commonplace in our waters.

The first thing you learn is to lean heavily on insulated containers, some filled with hot water (no two people seem to like their coffee quite the same) and others filled with soups and stews.

Even then you can be caught with your guard down. You still run the risk of having to mop up a cockpit of chunky, congealing clam chowder, spilled when the skipper decides to tack five seconds after he's called for nourishment.

In spite of such dangers, no boat should be without these containers. They come in handy when you've rowed ashore to gather oysters. Shucked on the beach and deposited in the container, oysters will stay fresh until you need them. It's also easier on cleaning-up chores.

When you're ready to fry them, a carton of pancake mix in the galley gives the oysters a quick but tasty coating.

Better still, if you have a barbecue aboard, oysters taste like the nectar of gods, steamed on the shell and laced with lemon, and tabasco sauce.

Speaking of nectar, don't throw that rich part away. Saved in a container it makes a succulent base for otherwise run-of-the-mill stews.

Even the most disciplined of crew has a yen to wax exotic in the galley especially when she knows company may be expected.

This if the time to do a little onshore preparation before you set out. Even at anchor or tied alongside the jetty, you may as well enjoy all the fun that's to be had.

Here are a few recipes that have turned the smallest boats into Queen Marys for those who have tasted them:

BIRDS A-BREAST

One large chicken breast for each diner.

One-third pound butter.

1 lemon.

Salt.

1 cup Canadian Sauterne.

Rub chicken breasts with lemon and sprinkle with salt. Let stand 10 minutes. Melt butter in frying pan and brown chicken. Add wine and simmer until chicken is tender.

During the last few minutes remove lid and turn up heat to thicken the sauce. If preferred the chicken may be cooked in a casserole after it has been browned. The oven should be 350 degrees.

Take this along on the boat. Reheat and serve over rice with a tossed green salad. If the lettuce has wilted try dandelion tops.

CAPTAIN'S CASSEROLE

4 large onions, sliced and cooked in a tablespoon of fat. Cover with just enough water to steam, cook. Add one pound of ground beef when onions are partly cooked.

Put mixture in casserole. Add one tin tomato soup, 1¼ cups of canned tomatoes, 1½ tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon chili powder, salt and pepper.

Cook ½ a box of noodles and add. Top with a layer of cheese, bread crumbs and butter.

Cook slowly for one hour.

Reheated when you are ready, you find this recipe improved for being cooked the day before.

FISHERMEN'S FANCY

These are popular in Devon and Cornwall and, when eaten warm, provide an all-in-one meal for a busy fisherman. Made in bulk, you can leave them in your freezer until you're ready to use. They're also good when sliced and eaten cold.

Your favorite pastry recipe. (I add ½ teaspoon baking powder for lightness).

Filling — 1 pound hamburger

4 small potatoes

4 onions (finely chopped).

4 carrots.

2 parsnips.

Peel vegetables and dice. Put these and onions in steamer, salt and pepper and partly cook.

Mix hamburger with salt and pepper. Add vegetables.

Roll out pastry in oval shapes. Pile centres with filling. Moisten with consomme and use some to wet edges of pastry shapes. Bring edges together and flute with fingers.

Brush with egg yolk, prick two or three times with fork. Cook at 425 degrees on greased pans for 10 minutes, then cook at 325 degrees for another 30 minutes.

N.B. The morning you're leaving reheat them in tin foil, wrap generously in newspapers for insulation, and you'll find them still warm when you're waiting for the fish to bite.

CAL 20 CURRIE

Olive Bailey, a local sailing enthusiast, keeps her galley equipment down to one double boiler and frying pan, adequate for this recipe. It's proved a hit, even when eaten dockside during a rainy Maple Bay regatta!

Mix a curry paste of 3 teaspoons of curry powder, ¼ cup of flour and ⅛ cup milk in a cup. While the rice is cooking in the lower part of the boiler, use the upper pot to simmer shrimps, clams or whatever fish you may have caught that day, with a little water.

If you decide on hamburger, brown this in your frying pan first.

Into the meat or fish mixture toss some cut-up apple, raisins, some dried onion (a package of these is a must on a small boat), celery and, perhaps, some canned tomatoes.

Add the paste.

If the rice isn't quite ready put the mixture over the bottom pot to keep it warm.

Using the upside-down lid as a side-server, spread it with some canned pineapple, slices of bananas sprinkled with lemon to keep them from browning, and a few nuts if you have any on board.

This recipe is a great way of using the fish you couldn't identify and the apples Junior discovered on the last island you visited.

Chef Dufour shows how it's done.

Christ Was a Hippie, Priest Tells Yippies

By PAUL GESSELL

EDMONTON (CP) — Rev. Brian Ferguson is trying to make youths become hippies —the kind of hippie Jesus Christ was.

"You can call Christ a hippie; he preached love, peace and brotherhood," said Mr. Ferguson of the Church of the Streets, a non-denominational organization teaching youth who have rejected the establishment to apply Christian principles to their life-style.

With the city streets as his church, the 31-year-old ex-convict is called upon to do many things not expected of the average clergyman: Give Bible studies to Yippies—members of Youth International Party, a radical political group—counsel runaways and their parents, investigate alleged cases of police brutality and, help drug users on bad trips.

Mr. Ferguson is ordained in the Calvary Grace Christian Church, a collection of unconventional ministers and priests who left the structured church for non-denominational ministries.

His involvement with youth began in 1960 when he was a journalist in Winnipeg where he saw "how many young people were on welfare, hanging around the missions."

FALSE PRETENCES

While working in Winnipeg in the mid-1960s, Mr. Ferguson became so involved in the kids he "overdrew my bank account fantastically" and used "someone else's credit card to buy clothes for the kids."

That led to two years for false pretences and possession of stolen goods.

This background, along with the fact he first ran away from home at 13 and a broken marriage while still in his teens, gives Mr. Ferguson something of an "in" with the street people he's attempting to help.

After release from jail, he went back to working with kids and in 1969 he was ordained a minister—he admits that his degree was gained through correspondence from a Florida college.

"After straightening myself out—I also had a bout with drugs—I wanted to get into the ministry. The Anglican Church, to which I belonged, wouldn't touch me because of my criminal record and I began thinking that the organized church must be rejecting other people too."

CHRISTIAN EXAMPLE

Mr. Ferguson's ministry teaches people to live a life that will be a shining Christian example. He helps youth sort out their beliefs so they can return to the established church they were raised in, join one of the fast-growing charismatic religious groups or lead a Christian hippie-type life outside of any church organization.

Services of the Church of the Streets are much like the Anglican or United Church, he said, but of the folk-rock type. Hymns, litany, prayers and a sermon or discussion form the basis for the regular services, usually attended by about 80 people.

The services are held in youth centres, parks or wherever space is available.

Mr. Ferguson was delighted when some women from organized churches suggested forming an auxiliary to Church of the Streets.

"They want to get to know the street people and counter-culture people."

By street people Mr. Ferguson means hippies, Yippies, ultra-charismatic Christians commonly called Jesus Freaks and the runaways and delinquents.

He said the women have offered to care for children of people on welfare or single mothers, to teach child-care courses, prepare food for "crash pads," assist homeless youth and set up a reading room for the street people.

Mr. Ferguson has many plans to propel the Church of the Streets into an active social force in Edmonton.

He hopes to establish a year-round hostel and a free clothing store. This summer his church will be organizing daily feed-ins for transient youth, he said.

HYDRO RIGHT-OF-WAY REFUSED

Chisholm Island Greenery Protected

NORTH COWICHAN — Dan Gribbon will not be getting B.C. Hydro service immediately, but to balance the scale tiny Chisholm Island will keep its greenery.

North Cowichan council Wednesday refused a right-of-way across the little island in Maple Bay after hearing that at least 20 trees would have to be cut and others limbed to allow hydro overhead wiring, required to extend service to seven residents, including Gribbon, of Birds' Eye Cove.

The cove, on a largely-undeveloped peninsula on Vancouver Island which forms the south and east coasts of Maple Bay, has no roads, power or telephone service.

"In all fairness to the marinas and people who live there, no way could we permit them to go overhead under these circumstances," Mayor Gerry Smith said. "One half of the island (Chisholm Island) might go before they are finished.

Gribbon, who has appeared before council several times seeking assistance in getting hydro service to the peninsula, said he has lived there over four years, paying some of the highest taxes in the municipality, without services.

His recent appearance before council, when he gained a promise from that body to contact B.C. Hydro regarding service to the peninsula, spurred an influx of protest letters and a petition with 29 signatures stating that overhead wiring would cause visual pollution, damage the natural windbreak which protects Maple Bay Marina and Kurt's Marina, and interfere with float planes and boats.

The protests also suggested the proposed lines would interfere with the ecology of the little island, which is now the habitat of bald eagles, blue heron, osprey and the rare rock wren.

Monday evening Cowichan school board members agreed to write a protest letter to B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum and to North Cowichan council, because students use the island for nature studies.

North Cowichan alderman Don Morton pointed out Wednesday night that refusal of a right-of-way permit to B.C. Hydro does not mean the door is being closed on Gribbon's fight to get power service.

"It only means that we would consider other alternatives."

Chemainus Residents Protest Noise of Doman Ltd. Operation

NORTH COWICHAN — A small delegation of Chemainus residents Wednesday asked aldermen to silence the G. S. Doman Ltd. operation at Henry Road and Trans-Canada Highway.

The operation, started as a lumber storage yard, has now erected a sawmill which is keeping residents awake "seven nights a week," council was told.

Children and working men are not getting enough sleep, one woman said.

She conceded Doman's stopped its graveyard shift a month ago "and now we can sleep from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m."

Members of the group said Doman's plans to install a planer "would make the noise so bad that you will be able to hear it clear down to Duncan."

The delegation asked council to exercise some type of control in the noise and the operating hours.

Mayor Gerry Smith promised to find out if the company is breaking the zoning bylaw.

'I BEGGED HIM NOT TO GO'

Ocean Defeats Kayak Paddler

TOFINO — The body of a young man whose girl friend "begged him not to go" has been recovered from the sea eight miles off Vancouver Island.

James Brinton, 25, of Seattle had left the Olympic Peninsula of Washington June 12 in a 17-foot kayak in a bid to paddle across the Pacific to Japan.

His kayak was found the next day, with provisions intact.

Betty Evans, Brinton's girlfriend, said after his disappearance:

"I begged him not to go. Many of us tried to talk him out of it. Now we wish we'd tried harder. You know the American dream to conquer something big? Everyone has a right to that dream. He had it."

A spokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said an autopsy showed Brinton died of drowning. The body was taken to Nanaimo where it was to be claimed.

The United States Coast Guard said the weather was poor when the young man paddled out to sea June 12, with winds up to 30 miles per hour, rain, light fog and waves from six to eight feet high.

When his body was recovered it was wearing a life-jacket.

$7,500 Youth Grant Made to Cowichans

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Indian Band has received a $7,500 grant for construction of a social centre through the federal Opportunities for Youth program, $1,900 more than had been requested.

Thirty-five students will be employed through the summer on construction of the centre.

Leonard Andrew, recreation director, said he was surprised at the amount because he had only applied for $5,600.

The social centre, which is costing the band about $12,000 to build, is already half built, Andrew said.

"Since June 1 we have had five students working on the project at our Somenos Park near the Duncan parking lot."

Andrew said the band plans to hire 35 Indian students to work two weeks at a time on the project.

"This way we can fit everyone in and they can all work for a while," he said.

The two-storey centre, which Andrew hopes will be completed in the fall, will consist of drop-in and recreation rooms, a banquet room, meeting room and a kitchenette.

Cheque Artists Sentenced To Five Years

NANAIMO (CP) — Joseph Mathew Schuck, 30, and his wife, Rosemarie, 26, were both sentenced Wednesday to five years when they pleaded guilty to a total of 67 charges involving bad cheques.

Schuck faced 31 counts and his wife the remainder. Court was told the couple passed the cheques to unsuspecting merchants in Okanagan, Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island communities before they were arrested here June 3.

They obtained about $3,800 in cash and merchandise. Police said most of the merchandise was recovered and will be returned to owners.

Goat Show Set At Saanichton

The Vancouver Island Goat Breeders Association will hold its annual kid and yearling goat show at the Saanichton Fair grounds Sunday.

Feature events will be the 4-H classes in showmanship and judging, starting at 11 a.m. The adult classes will be held between 1 and 4 p.m.

Show convener is Stanley Offer. Mrs. Dena Arnold is judge.

Songhees Build Park, Campsite

Members of the Songhees Indian band are developing a small park and campsite on the Maple Bay Reserve in Esquimalt.

Chief John Albany said high school students are being employed during the summer and paid out of band funds to work on the project.

A boat-launching ramp was started today.

BARBER SYRT ON SIDEBURNS

A fad and artistic principles are often at odds. Different lengths of sideburns are appropriate to add becomingness where the following factors are considered: the length of the chin, the length of the neck, and the type of face. When the distance between the corner of the eyes and the point of the chin is abnormally short, a short sideburn helps to normalize the face; and longer sideburns help achieve balance if the distance between the corner of the eyes and point of the chin is abnormally long. Maybe we should compare long sideburns with miniskirts — they are far from equally becoming to everyone.

Trudeau Serenaded, Then Booed

By GERARD McNEIL

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was serenaded in the streets Wednesday, but the tune changed as the sun went down.

He was booed lustily by an overflow crowd of 21,000 when he entered Varsity Stadium to kick off an exhibition soccer game in the evening. Later, news of the stunning rout of the Liberal government in Saskatchewan reached him as he returned to Ottawa after a two-day wind-sniffing tour here.

Mr. Trudeau had no comment on the results.

The defeat of Ross Thatcher's government wasn't unexpected but the magnitude was.

The Toronto tour was Mr. Trudeau's third brief sweep of an Ontario area this year. Earlier he visited Niagara Falls and Hamilton.

He played down talk of a fall election but at times Tuesday and Wednesday appeared to be near campaigning.

VISITS MARKET

He made a surprise visit to the Kensington Market Wednesday, accompanied by Peter Stollery, Liberal candidate for Toronto Spadina.

The riding was won for the Liberals in 1968 by Perry Ryan, who later decided to sit as a Conservative after becoming disenchanted with the Trudeau government.

Mr. Trudeau was at his charming best bantering with immigrant, fruit and poultry sellers at outdoor stalls in the downtown market. Liberal organizers introduced him to the New Canadians.

"It's only in a great country like this you could shake hands with the prime minister," a woman said happily.

However, unemployment and inflation apparently have taken their toll.

A placard held by a Northern Electric worker, one of 500 laid off at Bramalea since Feb. 1, said:

"We want jobs—not charisma."

Mr. Trudeau offered jobs to the dozen protesters—as miners in far-away Sudbury, Ont. or Thompson, Man. He startled a girl holding a sign saying Stick Your Policies by suggesting she get a job as a maid.

It was the only time the tough side of the prime minister was evident during the two days.

At rural Aurora, north of Toronto, his replies to points in a brief from area mayors were polite. There was no sharpness.

The moderate tone continued Wednesday.

Placing the cornerstone at Women's College Hospital, he ignored a tiny chanting group of self-styled Trotskyists who sought free birth control and abortion on demand.

He aimed his remarks instead at the hundreds of nurses, hospital patrons and others present for the ceremony, recalling that the hospital had grown out of the efforts of suffragettes in the 1880s to get women into the medical profession.

The Trotskyites were there again as he entered the Toronto Men's Press Club for a news conference, but construction workers across the street drowned them out with cheers.

At the news conference, the questions were mostly about his reaction to Quebec's rejection of the Victoria charter.

Mr. Trudeau said he doesn't regard the rejection as a personal failure in the constitutional talks. He recalled saying in 1967, when Ontario launched another move to renovate the constitution, that governments were getting into a can of worms.

He put the ball in Quebec's court, predicting that constitutional conferences will wither away unless Quebec breaks the current impasse.

PREMIER A FEDERALIST

But he also described Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa as a federalist and as a shrewd man at the bargaining table.

He gently flattened a suggestion that Ottawa might call an election on the constitutional issue.

Another reporter asked whether the Saskatchewan election results might lead him to call a federal election.

The Trudeau government won only two of the province's 13 seats in the 1968 election, Mr. Trudeau replied:

"No, I don't think it will. We didn't exactly sweep Saskatchewan last time. We have no place to go but up."

They Walked

MOSCOW (CP) — Alexander Kondratov, a Leningrad scientist, claimed the first men on south Pacific islands got there by walking across now-submerged land links 20,000 to 30,000 years ago, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Brewers Hold Back

A spokesman for brewers in B.C. said Wednesday there has been no application made yet to the Liquor Control Board for price increase but the matter is still under consideration.

Don McDougall, vice-president of Labatt Brwweries of B.C. Ltd., said it will be the collective decision of the breweries on whether to seek a price increase.

No move is imminent because William Bruce, the province's one-man liquor control board, is away until July 12.

The province, which establishes the price of all liquor and retails it through government outlets, recently raised the price of a 12-bottle case of beer by 20 cents to $2.83, including tax.

Brewers expressed disappointment they were to receive none of the increase and there was speculation they would seek a 25-cents-a case increase which would bring the cost to $3.15.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

CABLEVISION TEN PROGRAMS. 7 p.m., Ladies First — floral creations; 7:30 p.m., Project Travel; 8 p.m., documentary film, Cumbernauld, Town for Tomorrow; 8:30 p.m., Victoria Outdoorsmen — Power Squadron; 9 p.m., Arts Calendar; 9:30 p.m., Cable Ten Forum.

MARCUS WELBY, M.D. 7 p.m., Channel 6. To Carry the Sun in a Golden Cup. Dr. Kiley displays a normal interest in a lovely young nurse. But it turns to clinical attention when she starts exhibiting some mystifying symptoms of a rare paralytic disorder.

ACTION PLAYHOUSE. 7:30 p.m. Channel 5. (Rerun). "A Time for Killing." For its opening salvo in this summer package of old Chrysler Playhouse drams, NBC opportunistically pulled out a story that stars George C. Scott. He plays a submarine captain who surfaces his sub after the atom bomb is dropped on Hiroshima and refuses to fire back when a plane attacks, strafes and kills one of his crewmen. Michael Parks is co-starred, but Scott, as always, is outstanding.

ALIAS SMITH AND JONES. 7:30 p.m. Channel 4. (Rerun.) "A Legacy of Charlie O'Rourke." Heys and Curry (Pete Duel and Ben Murphy) visit a friend in prison the night before he's to be hanged for stealing gold. Town officials then suspect that the condemned man has confided to the pair where he hid the gold. They plead ignorance, but have a tough time convincing anyone. Joan Hackett and J. D. Cannon are guest stars.

LANCER. 8 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) Johnny falls for a girl (guest star Susan Strasberg), but the romance hits a snag when Scott Lancer is mistaken for the girl's brother, who is wanted by the law. In order to get Scott out of jail, Johnny has to betray the girl's confidence.

SPECIAL. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8. An Evening with Burt Bacharach. First telecast in 1970, this show features in addition to the music of Bacharach, guests Dionne Warwicke, musical comedy star Joel Grey and French singer-guitarist Sacha Distel. Songs include What the World needs Now, Bridge Over Troubled Water, Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head, Loneliness Remembers What Happiness Forgets, and The Good Life.

IRISH ROVERS. 9 p.m., Channel 2. Scottish comedian Jimmy Logan is the guest performer. The Rovers sing Come In, Black Velvet Band, Morningtown Ride and Up Among the Heather.

IRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8. (Rerun.) "Too Many Victims" The story deals with an illegal wiretap, a subject of much controversy in recent years. Forrest Tucker (ex-star of F Troop) plays Police Lt. Milt Stein who bugs a dope pusher after his daughter is injured in an auto crash following a pot party. Ironside (series star Raymond Burr) uncovers Stein's plot and faces the unhappy obligation of preferring charges against his fellow officer.

THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIES. 9 p.m., Channel 7. "The Frozen Dead" (1967). It's a weirdo science-fiction plot about a Nazi scientist (Dana Andrews) who froze a group of Fascist leaders and then tries to revive them, and the Third Reich. It melts away into a sloppy production.

ADAM 12. 9:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "Missing Child." Officers Malloy (Martin Milner) and Reed (Kent McCord) have a busy half-hour ahead of them. First they search for a missing grammar school child who fails to return to class after recess or home after school. When that case is resolved, the officers have to contend with an eccentric old lady whose pets prove a nuisance to the neighborhood.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Many a time I have seen on the sidewalk ahead of me a child, walking in a stiff, peculiar way, without good control of his legs and perhaps arms. He may make jerky movements and be very poorly co-ordinated. I immediately recognize a child with cerebral palsy.

This name describes a number of impairments and muscle problems that give a child the peculiar appearance that I described, and comes from damage in the brain centre which controls and directs movements; the child will have difficulty with normal walking, running, or such small activities as writing and buttoning clothes, and with talking. His balance is now what it should be. Sometimes, however, the muscles may become overactive, causing him to have erratic movements or excessive emotional reactions.

There are a number of things that can go wrong with the brain of a fetus that will cause him to end up with a spastic paralysis. Fortunately, the child does not tend to become mentally retarded.

According to one expert in treating cerebral palsy, many of the difficulties plaguing the cerebral palsied child originate from the confusion of parents concerning the problems they face. As with any handicap, the child adjust to it as well as the parents do; if they are cheerful and optimistic and philosophical, the child will also take this attitude. Parents of a handicapped child must be on guard against letting the love and sympathy interfere with their judgment, causing them to become over-indulgent and hesitant to encourage the child to be as independent as he can be, and to do as much as he can do.

Fortunately, the brain damage in the infant that causes cerebral palsy does not usually get worse through the years and so, after the specialist has found what the limitations are, he and the family will decide the various ways that the child can be helped to learn, and to cope with his symptoms.

Sometimes surgery can be tried: Dr. Irving S. Cooper, of St. Barnabas Hospital in Brooklyn, New York, has found that miracles can sometimes be worked on children with certain types of severe muscle spasms and uncontrolled movements, by performing a very delicate operation on a small part of the brain. At a meeting of the American Medical Association several years ago, I saw some very encouraging movies that Dr. Cooper had made of children he had been able to help with this type of surgery.

Sometimes drugs can help, and there are many different types of physical therapy that can bring improvements in certain conditions. Sometimes a brace can help the child and assist him in moving about. Unfortunately, in some cases, it is difficult to help the child, or for the parents to care for the child adequately at home; then the parents must consider the possibility of placing the child in an institution. This is something that must be discussed carefully with the specialist.

Parents should know that there are available books showing many ingenious devices that have been developed to help the cerebral palsied person to perform many activities on his own that he otherwise would have had to wait for someone else to do for him — such as specially designed plates and silverware, typewriters, knot tiers, scissors, checkers boards and page-turners for books.

The cerebral palsied child is fortunate if his parents help him to gain an education and to become independent so that he can, in time, learn a skill that will enable him to work in one of the "sheltered workshops" that are now being formed in many cities of the country.

Early Perennials Need Attention

By HILDA BEASTALL

Early summer flowering perennials have bloomed well during the cool overcast days of June. They lasted well and we now owe them our attention as repayment. Not only will an hour's work now ensure healthier plants during the summer, but next year's display will be improved.

The big double flowered red, pink or white peonies should have our attention first, since all that is needed is to take the secateurs to the seed pods, cutting the stem just above the top leaf on the stem.

Peonies now coming into bloom and the huge single flowered varieties which follow, will need the same care when the first petals fall.

Hilda

Next take a look at the lupins. If they were grown in an open position with plenty of air circulating around them, had enough moisture at the roots and none o the leaves, they bloomed gloriously.

I saw a fine bed of lupins at the point of a corner lot where all these conditions seemed to be met, for no sign of mildew appeared on the leaves.

Seed pods begin forming early with these spiky flower stems, since the lowest flowers open first and are finished before the tip blossoms have reached blooming stage.

Cut the lupin stem down to just below leaf level allowing the leaves to remain as long as they are in good shape.

Mildew on many of these early summer perennials develops from their having been dry at the roots for a period and then later given water, most likely over the foliage and in the evening. These two errors contribute in our cool climate to the disease of mildew.

Delphinums often continue blooming in summer with smaller spikes. But this will only happen if old spikes are cut off as soon as the florets fade.

While lupins do not like high nitrogen in the soil (they belong to the nitrogen fixing legumes) delphiums and peonies can have a light dressing of 6-8-6 fertilizer. Water in well to dissolve the dry fertilizer.

To keep the enchanting blue of anchusa in the summer garden, cut down the first flower stems after blooming to encourage smaller ones later. This plant is often a biennial in our gardens but usually we find enough seedlings to carry the color to another year.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

As the years go by and I continue to see many declarers go down at some game contract because they staked everything on a needless finesse, a suggestion made a long time ago by a friend of mine keeps coming to mind. He thought it might be a good idea to include in the scoring rules a 50-point bonus to be given all declarers who fulfil a game or slam contract without taking any finesses.

I can see his point. But, as he himself would have admitted, a finesse is frequently a necessity. As a matter of fact, at times the sole issue is which of two finesses to take. The latter was the case in today's deal.

East-West vulnerable. North deals.

♡ K 6 5 3
◇ A K J
♣ J 9 8 2

WEST
♠ 9 8 6 4 3

EAST

◇ Q 10 9 7 2
♣ 7

SOUTH
♠ 7 2
♡ A 4 2
◇ 6 3
♣ A K Q 10 6 4

The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 NT | Pass | 4 ♣ | Pass |
| 4 ♠ | Pass | 6 ♣ | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

South's four-club response was the initiations of the Gerber Four Club Slam Convention. With North showing two aces, South contracted for the small slam in clubs.

After winning the opening trump lead, South cashed another trump, picking up West's last piece. South counted 11 sure tricks: six clubs, two diamonds, two hearts, and one spade. The twelfth trick could come from one of three places: (1) a successful spade finesse, (2) a successful finesse for the diamond queen, in which case South's losing spade could be discarded on dummy's third diamond, or (3) a 3-3 division of the six outstanding hearts, in which case the board's fourth heart would become a winner after a third heart lead would be given away to the defenders.

South promptly eliminated the play in hearts, since a 3-3 division of six outstanding cards occurs but 36% of the time. The question was whether to take the spade or the diamond finesse.

If the spade finesse lost (as it would have), South would have no choice but to take the diamond finesse. But if the diamond finesse lost, as it did when South actually took it first, South would win East's diamond return (as he did) with the king. On the diamond ace, South discarded his deuce of hearts.

Next came the ace of hearts, the king of hearts, and a third heart, South ruffing. Dummy's fourth heart was now a winner. Had the six missing hearts been divided 4-2, then, as a last resort, South would have taken the spade finesse. Thus, as South played the hand, he had three chances for the price of two.

RED VERSION OF GREAT WAR

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, which often complains that its role in the Second World War has been slighted in the West, says it plans to set the record straight with a 10-volume history of the war.

The Soviet news agency Tass said: "The task at hand is to make an all-round Marxist analysis of the war, the biggest known to mankind."

The agency said this task has great importance "since there are many people in the West who cater to the interests of the imperialists and distort the events of the war."

Exhibits on Tour

An exhibition left Victoria International Airport Tuesday on a province-wide tour, marking yet another centennial event.

It was in 1871 that the Canadian Meteorological Service became a federal government agency with a total annual budget of $5,000. There were no full-time employees-subsidies and grants were given to qualified part-time personnel and a host of lighthouse keepers formed a core of observers.

This year's budget is $38,000,000 with 2,300 employees on the pay roll.

The exhibition, which contains some of the original equipment used in Canada and some of the highly sophisticated gear now in operation, was assembled at the Victoria office under the direction of briefing technician Douglas C. Fink.

Mark Wiens and Drummond Cavers of the Vancouver regional office will travel with the exhibit, which will be displayed in museums, libraries and other centres throughout the province.

To protect the delicate instruments, special containers have been built and the whole project will travel by station wagon.

There are more than 400 climatogical stations in the province with main weather stations located at Vancouver, Victoria, Kamloops, Terrace, Prince George, Penticton and Port Hardy.

Victoria's chief weather officer Allan McQuarrie estimates that between 150 and 300 requests for weather forecasts are received locally each day from pilots, boaters, farmers and other residents.

'Don't Fear' Neighbor

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians, to avoid American domination, "must understand and not repudiate, our great neighbor," Dr. Claude Bissell, retiring president of the University of Toronto, said Wednesday night.

"Understanding America does not mean accepting America," he told more than 300 delegates to the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism.

"Our nation was launched, in part, because of our fear of the United States and our determination to order our affairs differently.

"We shall achieve a national serenity when the fear and the determination cease to be obsessive; when we live and flourish in our own sovereign right," Dr. Bissell said.

AMERICANS PUZZLED

"We have all participated in American-Canadian discussions in which the American members are puzzled by Canadian concerns for identity and genuinely distressed by Canadian assertiveness and hostility.

"We explain to our American friends that our concern arises from the pressure of great impersonal forces — geographic, economic, political and cultural —that have been with us since the beginning of our national existence and that today seem to be moving towards a menacing resolution."

Although Canada does not have the old-fashioned kind of nationalism, which requires a self-assurance and the capacity for symbolic recreation of the past, "when we are sober . . . we are concerned with survival, a concern just as deep in the hearts of English Canadians as of French Canadians," he said.

SUMMARIZES VIEW

Earlier, Premier William Davis summarized in one word the way his government viewed foreign intervention in the economy and culture of Canada, particularly Ontario—HELP!

"Help us in government to find the course of action that will enhance our Canadianism in all respects that do honor to the best that is within us. Help us find answers to questions which disturb us all as to the actual nature of Canadian reality."

Overseas Mail to Go By Air

OTTAWA (CP) — Beginning July 1, all letters mailed overseas from Canada will go airmail at a minimum cost of 15 cents.

The United States is the only foreign country to which surface-mail deliveries will be continued.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote announced the new system in the Commons Wednesday.

He said surface-mail letters from Canada—which travel by ship to overseas countries—have been taking an average of 36 days to arrive.

Letters of up to one ounce will cost 15 cents under the new plan, no matter which overseas country they are headed for, excepting the U.S.

Those between one ounce and two ounces will cost 30 cents; those between two and four ounces will cost 40 cents; and those between four and eight ounces will cost 90 cents.

The previous air mail rates were 15 cents per half ounce to countries with preferred mail agreements in Europe and South America, and 25 cents per half ounce to Asia and other areas without preferred agreements.

SPEED A FACTOR

For Canadians who have used surface mail to send letters abroad, rates will go up with the speed of delivery.

It now costs six cents to send a surface-mail letter of up to one ounce to countries with preferred rates, such as Britain, France, Spain, Ireland and all South American countries.

For non-preferred countries, such as Denmark, the Soviet Union, and those in Asia, it costs 13 cents to send such a letter.

Mr. Cote said mailers must still affix a blue air-mail sticker to their letters, even though they would all be going by air.

This would ensure that they went air all the way, rather than just on the first leg of their journey.

A new category of international mail called small packets will also be introduced on July 1.

It will provide a more economical air service for items weighing up to one pound, the minister said, that would be cheaper than parcel post.

Mr. Cote said Canada will become the first country in the world to introduce international mail service carried almost entirely by air.

NDP Sweeps Saskatchewan In Stunning Election Rout

MIXED EMOTIONS were on display at the NDP headquarters in Regina Wednesday night when Premier Ross Thatcher (right) made, for him, an unhappy journey to concede defeat in the Saskatchewan general election to NDP leader Allan Blakeney (left). — (CP Wirephoto)

Thatcher to Quit As Grit Leader

Times News Services

REGINA — For the first time there will be two New Democratic Party governments in provincial power as Saskatchewan voters Wednesday handed a stunning rebuff to the Liberals.

Allan Blakeney, a 45-year-old lawyer, led an NDP upsurge that staggered even the most optimistic and ardent party supporters.

This left, also for the first time, the old-line Liberal and Conservative parties without power west of Ontario with NDP in control of Manitoba and Social Credit in Alberta and B.C.

Hard on the heels of his party's humiliating defeat, Premier Ross Thatcher announced today he will ask the party to call a leadership convention as soon as possible and that he would not be a candidate.

He said today the NDP will take over the reins of Saskatchewan next Wednesday at 9 a.m. The announcement came after a brief cabinet meeting.

Thatcher Won in 1964

Thatcher ousted the CCF, predecessors to the NDP, in 1964, after a 20-year reign.

Standing as counting ended for the night:

| | 1971 | 1967 |
|---|---|---|
| NDP | 45 | 24 |
| Liberal | 14 | 35 |
| Doubtful | 1 | — |
| Total | 60 | 59 |

The doubtful seat was Athabasca where Allan Guy, municipal affairs minister, was trailing in a see-saw battle with his NDP opponent, businessman Robert Dalby.

Mr. Blakeney, heading the party for less than a year after taking over from Woodrow Lloyd, had predicted winning between 34 and 36 seats.

Whopping Popular Gain

The biggest margin held previously by the socialists in the province was in 1956 when the CF had 41 seats and the Liberals 10.

At dissolution of the last legislature, the Liberals held 34 seats, the NDP 24, with one seat vacant.

The NDP showed a whopping gain in the popular vote, to 54.9 per cent compared with 44.3 per cent in 1967. The Liberals' percentage dropped to 43.1 from 45.6 in 1967.

The Conservatives, led by Ed Nasserden, failed to elect any of their 16 candidates as their share of the popular vote declined to two per cent from 9.8 per cent for 41 candidates in 1967.

It was obvious that most of the Conservative votes went to the NDP in spite of a pre-election plea by former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker that they support the private enterprise party—meaning the Liberals.

Six Ministers Toppled

The electorate took its toll of cabinet ministers as six were toppled.

Even Provincial Treasurer Dave Steuart, touted as a successor to Mr. Thatcher, barely escaped defeat in Prince Albert West.

Defeated were Industry Minister Clarence Estey, Mineral Resources Minister Alex Cameron, Natural Resources Minister J. Ross Barrie, Agriculture Minister Doug McFarlane, Works Minister Lionel Coderre and Labor Minister Don MacLennan. James E. Snedker, Speaker of the legislature, was forced into retirement in Saltcoats constituency.

Rank-and-file Liberal backbenchers fell like tenpins as the NDP gained 21 seats from the Liberals. Each party won one new seat and the Liberals gained one from the NDP—Moose Jaw North, where the NDP claimed that redistribution last year assured the Liberals of a seat.

The NDP swept all six seats in Saskatoon—winning one new seat and gaining four from the Liberals—and held ground in Regina. But the party gained most of its support in rural areas.

Federal Liberals were not welcomed by Mr. Thatcher during the campaign, in which the NDP held the provincial Liberals partly

WHY THE BOGEY DIDN'T WORK

Premier Bennett today linked the defeat of the Liberal government in Saskatchewan to the "disarray" of federal government policies.

"That's what the Liberals will get everywhere," Bennett said. In reply to a question, he said the federal Liberals would also lose if they called an election now.

Asked why the "bogey" of socialism didn't prove an effective campaign tactic for defeated Saskatchewan Liberals, as it did for the B.C. Social Credit party in 1969, Bennett replied:

"Here they had the alternative of a real grass-roots movement not connected with the reactionary Liberals in Ottawa . . ."

Press Freedom Battle Rages

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major constitutional legal battle over government secrecy and freedom of the press headed to the United States Supreme Court today after appellate rulings in government suits against the New York Times and the Washington Post over articles based on classified Pentagon papers.

As a Los Angeles federal grand jury began an investigation into how the top secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was leaked, three other news organizations today printed articles they said were based at least in part of the 47-volume report.

An appeals court in Washington ruled Wednesday The Post could resume publication of its suspended series after 6 p.m. EDT Friday. A similar court in New York said The Times could also resume but could not use any material the government contends is dangerous to national security pending a lower court review of those documents.

The U.S. justice department, which has sought injunctions against The Times, The Post and the Boston Globe on the ground that publication of the papers threatened national security, said it would appeal the Washington ruling to the Supreme Court. The Times said it would appeal the New York ruling.

OTHERS PRINT STORIES

Meanwhile, Knight Newspapers Inc., which publishes 11 newspapers, and the Los Angeles Times today printed articles they said were based on the documents. The Chicago Sun-Times also ran stories it said were drawn from the secret study and from "government documents."

'U.S. to Blame for War'—See Page 3

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court granted immunity to two persons subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury investigating what a justice department spokesman called possible violations of national security laws.

One of the two granted immunity was Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employee of the Rand Corp., a defence department "think-tank." His lawyer said he wanted to challenge the federal immunity statute and Russo did not testify Wednesday.

A one-time Rand and defence department employee, Daniel Ellsberg, has been named by a former New York Times reporter as the source that gave the Pentagon study to that newspaper.

Ellsberg, in a CBS television interview with Walter Cronkite Wednesday, did not comment on that charge. But he said the notion that the study was leaked to embarrass former president Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" when the full document is made public.

The Chicago Sun-Times says in today's editions that documents in the study revealed that a key plotter in the coup that ousted President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam informed the U.S. embassy 26 days prior to the

CANADA 'FREER, STRONGER'

TORONTO (CP) — R. W. Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general and now an executive with MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., said today Canada would need an "almost totally managed society" to become independent of foreign investors. Bonner said the government would have to force people to invest savings in Canadian enterprises if the free flow of outside capital is stopped.

"I am convinced that Canada today is a freer, stronger, more independent nation than she would have been if she had listened to and accepted the arguments of economic nationalism," Bonner told about 175 delegates to the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism. (See Page 35.)

Money Inflow Near Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Another $285 million of foreign ownership investment came into Canada during the first three months of 1971, almost as much as the near-record figure in the previous quarter, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Foreign capital coming into Canada in long-term forms for direct investment in foreign controlled Canadian enterprises amounted to $290 million in the last three months of 1970, and to a record $302 million in the last quarter of 1966.

In the decade of the 1960s, the inflow of foreign direct investment in Canada totalled more than $5,500 million. Another $760 million came in during the 12 months of 1970. Figures for earlier years are not comparable because of the changing purchasing power of the dollar and the running down of dollar values on company account books over the years.

DBS said that in the latest three-month period for which it has statistics, net inflows from the United States accounted for 70 per cent of the total. Almost all of the remainder came from continental Europe.

16 Missing After Blast

'Yellow Journalism' Blasted Over Sex Survey Stories

HAMILTON (CP) — Health Minister John Munro lashed out Wednesday night at "irresponsible yellow journalism" for what he said were inaccurate and intentionally deceptive reports on the government's Youth Culture 1971 program.

He singled out "a Toronto newspaper"—not named—that published an interview with a worker involved in the youth study.

Mr. Munro told a meeting of the Hamilton East Liberal Association—after a Commons statement by him on the issue earlier in the day—that there is no question of spying or secrecy involved in the attitude survey of Canadian youth.

In the Toronto interview, a young researcher has said the study "scares hell out of me."

200 HIRED

She said the government has hired about 200 young persons to observe their peers secretly. She quoted from her copy of the The Recording Procedure Manual, issued to researchers by the federal health department.

"Upon leaving the field," the manual states, "immediately proceed to a private or semiprivate location, e.g., park bench, restaurant, where you can transfer the essential items . . . to paper."

"In the case of extended observations it is recommended that this task be performed during, as well as after, the observation by retiring to the bathroom for a few minutes."

"Never return to the field with your notes," the manual instructs.

Mr. Munro did not deny that the manual also asks the young workers to determine how young people provide for sexual needs—whether through "regular dating patterns, prostitution, masturbation, hustling on street . . ."

But he said it was only one isolated item in what he called a "participant observation survey."

And, Mr. Munro said, the student researchers were told to identify themselves when questioning their peers.

CODE NAMES USED

The criteria of the study were determined by 32 team leaders, the minister said, and they state that no individual is to be named. Code names or initials were to be used.

A final report on the three-month survey, will only be published if the team leaders agree unanimously, although the results will be made available to the health department, he said.

The individual reports were to be destroyed.

Mr. Munro defended the survey saying it is needed to determine what goes on in the mind of young people today.

"The transient youth problem has become so big in recent years," the minister said, "we don't know the best way to go about it."

"How do we know how to set . . . up the best agencies and help them from city to city? That is all we wanted to do."

Six Victorians Hold Tickets for Sweep

Six Victorians will be watching the horses with more than amusing interest Saturday in the Irish Sweeps Derby at Curragh, near Dublin.

The six are among 10 Vancouver Islanders who have drawn tickets in the latest sweepstake. A total of 229 Canadians stand a chance to win one of the big prizes.

Victoria ticket holders are as follows, with horses name, ticket number, name and nom de plume:

Dunamar — 8NE 23666, Joe Ellis, At Last.

Turbulent Eddy — AMD 83966, F. L. Norton, Tara.

Linden Tree — AEE 45857, Gus Pfeppe, Prawn.

Gaillimh-Gaillin — XEK 73736, Mrs. J. Fisher, Honeymoon.

Wennesias — ACC 70866, T. L. Mollier, What a Hope.

Gelimdilo — ACK 83665, Lillian Jones, Nicky.

First prize is worth about $224,000 at current exchange rates; second prize about $49,000 and third prize, $24,800.

Holders of tickets on nonstarters or horses out of the money each will receive a prize of about $1,100. The amount varies with the total pool.

The "super prize" of $480,000 was won by a Chicago couple — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department.

Albert Caldwell, 37, bought the winning ticket for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Her name was pulled from the huge revolving drum containing 4,554,560 tickets from all over the world.

The sweeps, held three times yearly, are international lotteries held in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland.

The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated since the sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada.

WAITRESS ON WELFARE WINS HALF MILLION

CHICAGO (UPI) — An unemployed cab driver and his girl friend — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department — shared the "super prize" of $480,000 Wednesday in the Irish Sweepstakes draw.

Albert Caldwell, 37, of Chicago's south side, bought the winning ticket for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Mrs. Williams' name was pulled from a huge revolving drum containing 4,554,560 tickets from throughout the world.

★ ★ ★

Caldwell says Mrs. Williams will marry him as soon as her divorce becomes final.

"I can't make my heart stop pounding"

Mrs. Williams, the mother of two children, said.

Caldwell, who put his address on the winning ticket, was awakened early Wednesday and told the news.

★ ★ ★

"I've been a gambler all my life," he said. "I've always dreamed of the big money and now the Lord has answered my prayers. I'm so nervous I feel it right in the pit of my stomach."

Mrs. Williams first found out about the ticket from a neighbor who banged on her door at about 5 a.m.

"I thought the man was crazy," Mrs. Williams said, "talking about a half million dollars. I didn't even open my door."

Vancouver Defeats Four Seasons Park

VANCOUVER (CP)—A plebiscite which asked ratepayers if they favored spending $9 million to purchase and develop 14.5 acres of land as an addition to Stanley Park was defeated Wednesday after failing to get the necessary 60 per cent majority.

Yes votes totalled 24,625 while 23,149 voted against, for a 51.5 per cent majority. Some 119,620 property owners in the city were eligible to vote.

CONTROVERSY

The plebiscite appeared to have decisively ended a controversy that built up to a head in the last year over plans of Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. of Toronto to construct three 30-storey apartment buildings and a hotel at the edge of Stanley Park.

Construction is expected to start next month. Two small hurdles remain, though.

A court case contesting four city bylaws which allowed a higher population density on the site than previously is pending in British Columbia Supreme Court. It has the backing of Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The second barrier is the presence of demonstrators who have squatted on the development site for several weeks, declaring it an "all seasons park." They vowed to stay until the development was blocked.

The owners have so far refrained from evicting them.

21 Hydro Operations Picketed

Picket lines were established at 21 B.C. Hydro operations in British Columbia today as the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers entered the third day of a near-full-scale strike against the utility.

Previously, only the Jordan River hydro-electric construction project was picketed. There was no picketing at the huge Mica Dam in the Interior.

Electrical service to customers continued with skeleton union crews remaining in generating stations. B.C. Hydro said it has reports of some outages in different locations which have been repaired. There was none in Victoria.

The picket lines were established at a number of B.C. Hydro construction sites in the Interior and three stores outlets in Vancouver.

The B.C. Federation of Labor, meanwhile, said it "will not stand idly by" if B.C. Hydro or the B.C. government attempts to use the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33) to force a settlement and a return to work.

FARAWAY PLACES seem to have a strong attraction for Grade One teacher Miss Mary Conway of Vic West Elementary, longingly perusing her travel folders and waiting for that bell to ring. And ring it did, today, for the last time until Sept. 7. School is out for the summer, for 17,506 students from Grades One to 10, the last of Greater Victoria's 33,649 scholars to be freed from their studies. And that means school is also out for about 1,300 teachers including Miss Conway. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Hospital-City Land Dispute At Crisis Level

A meeting of the St. Joseph's Hospital board tonight must face the crisis of a hospital strained to its limit and planning for expansion blocked by a continuing property dispute involving the city.

Even if lands for rebuilding and growing could be launched tomorrow, it could be five years before St. Joseph's was ready to provide significantly more patient care.

An official close to the scene, said today the setting is one of "an unhappy medical staff, a concerned administrator and a frustrated board."

Development of St. Joseph's has been hamstrung for the better part of two years now in a series of disputes involving the adjacent land needed, who would control it and whether Belleville Street will be extended through it.

SAME ROADBLOCK

It is the Belleville extension which appears to be the current roadblock again. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark is opposed, saying a main traffic street that close to the hospital will impair its efficiency.

A compromise — not extending the road but leaving the site empty for the next few years to await developments — appeared to have resolved the matter but the source said today the city is still trying to push the expansion through.

"This cannot go on," said Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, St. Joseph's executive director, of the hospital's dilemma.

The hospital has done everything it can to decrease length of patient stays and increase the number of patients it can handle.

"We have reached the ultimate utilization of our facilities. What will be the case five or 10 years from now?"

Rising VD Figures 'No Cause for Alarm'

The rising incidence of venereal disease is no cause for alarm, according to Metro Health Board medical officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

"I don't think we have any more to worry about than we did in the past," he said today, despite the fact the board has reported an increase of 37 per cent in VD cases in the first five months of this year over 1970 figures.

Provincially, according to Dr. Harold Kennedy, provincial director of venereal disease control, an increase of 26 per cent in gonorrhea this year has been recorded. He blamed young transients for the increase.

"Probably the older age group has more VD than those under 20," Whitbread said, "but we still have an increase and we will have an increase as long as there's the use of the pill.

"If a girl isn't worried about getting pregnant and the man isn't worried about getting the girl pregnant, it makes it a lot easier. The rate of VD is just an indication of the amount of promiscuity going on."

Dr. Whitbread also credited the increase in travel to foreign countries for part of the rise in VD cases. Venereal disease, he said, is more prevalent in semi-tropical climates such as Mexico.

Good Recycling System Called Impossible If Stores Forced to Make Refunds on Cans

If retailers are forced to make refunds on soft drink cans, an efficient recycling system will be impossible.

This is the consensus of executives of Pacific Reclamation Ltd. who came to Victoria Wednesday seeking to resolve a dispute with the provincial government over refunding procedures on soft drinks.

Company president Bill Thomson said too many retail outlets exist in B.C. — at least 20,000 — for efficient pickup and recycling procedures if cans were to be taken at stores.

Instead, he said, supermarkets and soft drink companies are giving financial support to Pacific Reclamation — a non-profit corporation — and its 150 associated depots throughout B.C.

Under B.C.'s Litter Act, retailers are required to refund cans at two cents per item. Major supermarkets won't do it. They refer customers to depots like the Victoria Bottle Exchange.

●

The depot system is legal, but the government argues the Litter Act says it is not sufficient.

No solution was reached at Wednesday's meeting.

A department spokesman would not indicate what the government's next step will be.

Pacific Reclamation's legal counsel R. P. Anderson said he hopes the province does not have to go to court to resolve the dispute. He said the company is hoping the government will "forget about its interpretation" of the act that retailers must accept refunds.

Supermarket executives say it is too costly, unsanitary and a potential health hazard to store and refund soft drink cans in stores.

●

Pacific Reclamation says the depot system is acceptable to the public which is used to the idea from having returned beer bottles in similar fashion. It also says this is the cheapest way to recycle cans.

Carting cans from retail stores to depots or freight yards will mean higher consumer costs.

Since Jan. 1, 1971, slightly more than six million cans have been returned to depots. The rate of returns passed 25 per cent of sales in April.

Pacific Reclamation says the problem of co-ordinating refunds at retail outlets will be economically insurmountable if only 2 per cent of cans are refunded there instead of at depots.

"From an ecological point of view," says Anderson, "there is no gain because the retailers would put them in a garbage dump."

Cans sent to depots are shipped to Vancouver, crushed, then shipped to Seattle for recycling. Pacific Reclamation is investigating ways to create a recycling plant in B.C. as well as other methods of integrating recycling processes for other solid wastes.

Thomson has his eye on Vancouver's 42,000 weekly tons of garbage. He's wondering how a B.C. recycling operation could claim the 320 weekly tons of ferrous metals which are contained in Vancouver's garbage.

The government likes the depot system, but its insistence that retailers accept refunds comes from a principle that those who can't get to depots, particularly elderly people, should be able to return their cans where they bought them.

B.C. supermarket chains contribute to Pacific Reclamation a monthly sum based on their sales. Soft drink manufacturers also contribute.

This money pays the company's operating costs and commissions to depots, which are private businesses with agreements with Pacific Reclamation.

One question Kiernan's department won't answer officially is why the government waited until late June to raise the issue of refunds.

●

Citizens can initiate court action against retailers who refuse to accept cans. This has yet to be done and followed through, though an attempt was made in Nanaimo in May.

But the government also can bring the issue before the courts. It has not yet decided to resolve the dispute this way.

Ship Repair Unit Manager Named

Capt. E. J. Dawson, formerly of the National Defence College in Kingston, has been appointed manager of the ship repair unit in CFB, Esquimalt.

He succeeds Capt. Stanley E. Hopkins, 43, who is now director of maritime maintenance at Canadian Forces Headquarters in Ottawa.

Schools to Introduce Film Teaching Plan

A film will replace text books to teach art, music, architecture and culture to some senior secondary school students this fall.

Education Minister Brothers said today his department has purchased the film version of "Civilisation a widely-acclaimed BBC television series on the history of art forms in the western world.

It will be used as the basis of an experimental resource course, he said.

The course will be given, starting in September, to Grade 12 students in Claremont Senior Secondary in Saanich and Lord Byng in Vancouver.

If successful, its use will be extended.

Brothers said this new type of audio-visual course is a major resource program designed to give students an insight into the landmarks of western civilization — art, music, architecture and culture.

The course will involve the extensive use of team-teaching techniques, with teachers of art, music, English and social studies supervising and giving further explanation to various parts of the film series.

It is the first time that the film medium, rather than a textbook, has been used as a major basis for a course of study in British Columbia, John Meredith, superintendent of instructional services, said.

Nursing Home Issue Discussed by Unions

Representatives of construction trades unions in Victoria met Wednesday night to discuss the site of a new National Nursing Homes Ltd. project in Oak Bay.

But John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, declined today to give any comment or information about what the meeting may have decided.

National Nursing Homes manages Sandringham Private Hospital, where 28 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have been on strike since Sept. 30.

The Oak Bay project, at Cadboro Bay Road and Bowker Avenue, will be a retirement home. It has been variously estimated to cost between $3 million and $5 million.

Construction work has begun and Oak Bay building department said today a permit valued at $50,000 has been issued for foundation work only, up to the first floor, until additional information is available for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health on internal details of the building.

BATTEN THE HATCHES

Don't bother with sun tan lotion or garden sprinklers this weekend.

Gale-force southeasterlies battered the west coast of Vancouver Island today, blowing at 35 miles an hour, and are expected to decrease to a still lusty 25 miles an hour by midnight.

Winds of 15 knots, clouds and rain in the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Georgia Strait made cruising an ordeal.

When this storm passes, there's another one right behind it, due to hit the area Saturday with another dollop of cloud and rain.

Sunday's forecast — more of the same.

'Moral Fibre' Said Key to Control

The key to controlling the rising incidence of venereal disease in B.C. lies more with the "moral fibre and intelligence" of those being infected than it does with public health policy, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today.

The minister said VD is increasing at a rate "that disturbs us" and the provincial health department has plans to expand its VD laboratory facilities.

"But the question we should properly ask is if young people today are discouraged by some of the inequities in our society, I wonder how their children are going to look at them later on when they look at the record of infection of young people today.

"Is this a record they can be proud of?"

Loffmark said there is "no mistaking that this (infection) is reflected in the next generation."

He said he wouldn't go so far as to say the increasing incidence is caused by transient youth but there is no question the rate of VD is higher in that group than among the stable population.

Loffmark said "we have a number of young people who assume the appearance of these people" and travel among them in an effort to encourage visits to VD clinics.

He also criticized the idea that VD is not a serious medical problem because it can be treated quickly with drugs. In fact, new strains of VD are developing which are harder to control, he said.

But the issue is not basically a question of public responsibility through the public health policies of the government, he said.

"It is a question of moral fibre and intelligence of those being infected . . ."

AS A MATTER OF LOCAL pride, I hoped that our city's name might grace the pilot plan for a constitution. The Victoria Charter . . . it had a fine, resonant ring, and would have looked well in history books yet to be written.

But unless provincial and federal representatives wisely choose Canada's fairest city for some future, more auspicious go-round, that honor is likely to elude us.

The charter, of course, may not be totally lost. Quebec author Roger Lemelin once compared his home province to a woman who likes to be coaxed. Perhaps a slim chance remains that the Quebec which chose a Liberal-federalist government though free to elect elsewhere could prove susceptible to further coaxing.

Remote though that possibility seems at the moment, it might be worth keeping in mind that Quebec is between the devil and the deep blue in this matter of bringing the British North America Act home for Canadianization.

If Quebec finds the charter not to her taste, she has no love for the BNA, either.

Even with such alterations as have been made through the years, the founding act bears the stamp of Britain's Parliament. The distribution of powers between Ottawa and the provinces is uncompromisingly defined. So are language rights, and I am by no means convinced that our Official Languages Act if put to the test could make a case for itself against the BNA provisions.

The premiers of Canada's other provinces may be in no hurry to confer again . . . that's understandable. Still, they too are between devil and deep. The eventual price of failure to reach an understanding is plain.

No point, then, in moaning prematurely that all is lost. While the Victoria conference doesn't appear to have brought a workable constitution much nearer, Quebec does still remain a partner in Confederation.

And as grounds for a skinny little say of optimism, I might point out that Confederation itself took its own sweet time in arriving.

Last week, in a burst of generosity, I shared the secret of making the definitive clam chowder. On my desk today is proof that one man's meat can be another's poison, even before he's sampled it.

One phoner-in turned up his nose at every ingredient except the clams. Another insisted that without tomatoes, a chowder isn't worth eating.

A writer-in from Duncan made large claims for her own chowder, and offered rude and totally unjustified opinions about my wife's cooking.

But the cruelest wound was inflicted by Herb Warren, 1041 St. Charles Street.

"Thanks for your detailed recipe on how to make clam chowder," he writes. "For many of us, you forgot one item — throw the whole mess over the left shoulder, I don't like clams."

So be it . . . even if some people don't know what they're missing!

Mrs. Sue Talbot, who does what she can to help the helpless through Victoria's Community Action Group, is still without a car.

Because of crippling arthritis, she can't drive a stick-shift vehicle, and her old automatic transmission model has packed it up for keeps.

However, thanks to the kindness of a reader who offered help, Mrs. Talbot can now count on transport three mornings a week. She has also received donations totalling $55, which are salted away in a car fund.

"Eventually I'll be able to get another car," she says. "Until then, with the ride down and an occasional afternoon lift, I'm able to get on with my work."

That's it, except to relay a request from a friend of the feathered, who points out that several quail families of about 20 chicks each cross Memorial Crescent several times a day.

Her plea to drivers entering this crescent from Fairfield or Dallas: Slow down and spare them!

FARAWAY PLACES seem to have a strong attraction for Grade One teacher Miss Mary Conway of Vic West Elementary, longingly perusing her travel folders and waiting for that bell to ring. And ring it did, today, for the last time until Sept. 7. School is out for the summer, for 17,506 students from Grades One to 10, the last of Greater Victoria's 33,649 scholars to be freed from their studies. And that means school is also out for about 1,300 teachers including Miss Conway. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Hospital-City Land Dispute At Crisis Level

A meeting of the St. Joseph's Hospital board tonight must face the crisis of a hospital strained to its limit and planning for expansion blocked by a continuing property dispute involving the city.

Even if plans for rebuilding and growing could be launched tomorrow, it could be five years before St. Joseph's was ready to provide significantly more patient care.

An official close to the scene, said today the setting is one of "an unhappy medical staff, a concerned administrator and a frustrated board."

Development of St. Joseph's has been hamstrung for the better part of two years now in a series of disputes involving the adjacent land needed, who would control it and whether Belleville Street will be extended through it.

SAME ROADBLOCK

It is the Belleville extension which appears to be the current roadblock again, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark is opposed, saying a main traffic street that close to the hospital will impair its efficiency.

A compromise — not extending the road but leaving the site empty for the next few years to await developments — appeared to have resolved the matter but the source said today the city is still trying to push the expansion through.

"This cannot go on," said Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, St. Joseph's executive director, of the hospital's dilemma.

The hospital has done everything it can to decrease length of patient stays and increase the number of patients it can handle.

"We have reached the ultimate utilization of our facilities. What will be the case five or 10 years from now?"

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED IN CRASH WITH POLE

A young motorcyclist was killed early today in a crash on Esquimalt Road near Tyee Road.

City police had not released the name of the victim by noon because next-of-kin in Ontario had not been notified.

The motorcycle hit a pole about 140 feet west of Tyee on Esquimalt about 1 a.m.

Rising VD Figures 'No Cause for Alarm'

The rising incidence of venereal disease is no cause for alarm, according to Metro Health Board medical officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

"I don't think we have any more to worry about than we did in the past," he said today, despite the fact the board has reported an increase of 37 per cent in VD cases in the first five months of this year over 1970 figures.

Provincially, according to Dr. Harold Kennedy, provincial director of venereal disease control, an increase of 26 per cent in gonorrhea this year has been recorded. He blamed young transients for the increase.

"Probably the older age group has more VD than those under 20," Whitbread said, "but we still have an increase and we will have an increase as long as there's the use of the pill.

"If a girl isn't worried about getting pregnant and the man isn't worried about getting the girl pregnant, it makes it a lot easier. The rate of VD is just an indication of the amount of promiscuity going on."

Dr. Whitbread also credited the increase in travel to foreign countries for part of the rise in VD cases. Venereal disease, he said, is more prevalent in semi-tropical climates such as Mexico.

Good Recycling System Called Impossible If Stores Forced to Make Refunds on Cans

If retailers are forced to make refunds on soft drink cans, an efficient recycling system will be impossible.

This is the consensus of executives of Pacific Reclamation Ltd. who came to Victoria Wednesday seeking to resolve a dispute with the provincial government over refunding procedures on soft drinks.

Company president Bill Thomson said too many retail outlets exist in B.C. — at least 20,000 — for efficient pickup and recycling procedures if cans were to be taken at stores.

Instead, he said, supermarkets and soft drink companies are giving financial support to Pacific Reclamation — a non-profit corporation — and its 150 associated depots throughout B.C.

Under B.C.'s Litter Act, retailers are required to refund cans at two cents per item. Major supermarkets won't do it. They refer customers to depots like the Victoria Bottle Exchange.

●

The depot system is legal, but the government argues the Litter Act says it is not sufficient.

No solution was reached at Wednesday's meeting.

A department spokesman would not indicate what the government's next step will be.

Pacific Reclamation's legal counsel R. P. Anderson said he hopes the province does not have to go to court to resolve the dispute. He said the company is hoping the government will "forget about its interpretation" of the act that retailers must accept refunds.

Supermarket executives say it is too costly, unsanitary and a potential health hazard to store and refund soft drink cans in stores.

●

Pacific Reclamation says the depot system is acceptable to the public which is used to the idea from having returned beer bottles in similar fashion. It also says this is the cheapest way to recycle cans.

Carting cans from retail stores to depots or freight yards will mean higher consumer costs.

Since Jan. 1, 1971, slightly more than six million cans have been returned to depots. The rate of returns passed 25 per cent of sales in April.

Pacific Reclamation says the problem of co-ordinating refunds at retail outlets will be economically insurmountable if only 2 per cent of cans are refunded there instead of at depots.

"From an ecological point of view," says Anderson, "there is no gain because the retailers would put them in a garbage dump."

Cans sent to depots are shipped to Vancouver, crushed, then shipped to Seattle for recycling. Pacific Reclamation is investigating ways to create a recycling plant in B.C. as well as other methods of integrating recycling processes for other solid wastes.

Thomson has his eye on Vancouver's 42,000 weekly tons of garbage. He's wondering how a B.C. recycling operation could claim the 320 weekly tons of ferrous metals which are contained in Vancouver's garbage.

The government likes the depot system, but its insistence that retailers accept refunds comes from a principle that those who can't get to depots, particularly elderly people, should be able to return their cans where they bought them.

B.C. supermarket chains contribute to Pacific Reclamation a monthly sum based on their sales. Soft drink manufacturers also contribute.

This money pays the company's operating costs and commissions to depots, which are private businesses with agreements with Pacific Reclamation.

One question Kiernan's department won't answer officially is why the government waited until late June to raise the issue of refunds.

●

Citizens can initiate court action against retailers who refuse to accept cans. This has yet to be done and followed through, though an attempt was made in Nanaimo in May.

But the government also can bring the issue before the courts. It has not yet decided to resolve the dispute this way.

Ship Repair Unit Manager Named

Capt. E. J. Dawson, formerly of the National Defence College in Kingston, has been appointed manager of the ship repair unit in CFB, Esquimalt.

He succeeds Capt. Stanley E. Hopkins, 43, who is now director of maritime maintenance at Canadian Forces Headquarters in Ottawa.

Schools to Introduce Film Teaching Plan

A film will replace text books to teach art, music, architecture and culture to some senior secondary school students this fall.

Education Minister Brothers said today his department has purchased the film version of "Civilisation, a widely-acclaimed BBC television series on the history of art forms in the western world.

It will be used as the basis of an experimental resource course, he said.

The course will be given, starting in September, to Grade 12 students in Claremont Senior Secondary in Saanich and Lord Byng in Vancouver.

If successful, its use will be extended.

Brothers said this new type of audio-visual course is a major resource program designed to give students an insight into the landmarks of western civilization — art, music, architecture and culture.

The course will involve the extensive use of team-teaching techniques, with teachers of art, music, English and social studies supervising and giving further explanation to various parts of the film series.

It is the first time that the film medium, rather than a textbook, has been used as a major basis for a course of study in British Columbia, John Meredith, superintendent of instructional services, said.

Nursing Home Issue Discussed by Unions

Representatives of construction trades unions in Victoria met Wednesday night to discuss the site of a new National Nursing Homes Ltd. project in Oak Bay.

But John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, declined today to give any comment or information about what the meeting may have decided.

National Nursing Homes manages Sandringham Private Hospital, where 28 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees have been on strike since Sept. 30.

The Oak Bay project, at Cadboro Bay Road and Bowker Avenue, will be a retirement home. It has been variously estimated to cost between $3 million and $5 million.

Construction work has begun and Oak Bay building department said today a permit valued at $50,000 has been issued for foundation work only, up to the first floor, until additional information is available for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health on internal details of the building.

'Moral Fibre' Said Key to Control

The key to controlling the rising incidence of venereal disease in B.C. lies more with the "moral fibre and intelligence" of those being infected than it does with public health policy, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today.

The minister said VD is increasing at a rate "that disturbs us" and the provincial health department has plans to expand its VD laboratory facilities.

"But the question we should properly ask is if young people today are discouraged by some of the inequities in our society, I wonder how their children are going to look at them later on when they look at the record of infection of young people today.

"Is this a record they can be proud of?"

Loffmark said there is "no mistaking that this (infection) is reflected in the next generation."

He said he wouldn't go so far as to say the increasing incidence is caused by transient youth but there is no question the rate of VD is higher in that group than among the stable population.

Loffmark said "we have a number of young people who assume the appearance of these people" and travel among them in an effort to encourage visits to VD clinics.

He also criticized the idea that VD is not a serious medical problem because it can be treated quickly with drugs. In fact, new strains of VD are developing which are harder to control, he said.

But the issue is not basically a question of public responsibility through the public health policies of the government, he said.

BATTEN THE HATCHES

Don't bother with sun tan lotion or garden sprinklers this weekend.

Gale-force southeasterlies battered the west coast of Vancouver Island today, blowing at 35 miles an hour, and are expected to decrease to a still lusty 25 miles an hour by midnight.

Winds of 15 knots, clouds and rain in the Strait of Juan de Fuca and Georgia Strait made cruising an ordeal.

When this storm passes, there's another one right behind it, due to hit the area Saturday with another dollop of cloud and rain.

Sunday's forecast — more of the same.

AS A MATTER OF LOCAL pride, I hoped that our city's name might grace the pilot plan for a constitution. The Victoria Charter . . . it had a fine, resonant ring, and would have looked well in history books yet to be written.

But unless provincial and federal representatives wisely choose Canada's fairest city for some future, more auspicious go-round, that honor is likely to elude us.

The charter, of course, may not be totally lost. Quebec author Roger Lemelin once compared his home province to a woman who likes to be coaxed. Perhaps a slim chance remains that the Quebec which chose a Liberal-federalist government though free to elect elsewhere could prove susceptible to further coaxing.

Remote though that possibility seems at the moment, it might be worth keeping in mind that Quebec is between the devil and the deep blue in this matter of bringing the British North America Act home for Canadianization.

If Quebec finds the charter not to her taste, she has no love for the BNA, either.

Even with such alterations as have been made through the years, the founding act bears the stamp of Britain's Parliament. The distribution of powers between Ottawa and the provinces is uncompromisingly defined. So are language rights, and I am by no means convinced that our Official Languages Act if put to the test could make a case for itself against the BNA provisions.

The premiers of Canada's other provinces may be in no hurry to confer again . . . that's understandable. Still, they too are between devil and deep. The eventual price of failure to reach an understanding is plain.

No point, then, in moaning prematurely that all is lost. While the Victoria conference doesn't appear to have brought a workable constitution much nearer, Quebec does still remain a partner in Confederation.

And as grounds for a skinny little ray of optimism, I might point out that Confederation itself took its own sweet time in arriving.

Last week, in a burst of generosity, I shared the secret of making the definitive clam chowder. On my desk today is proof that one man's meat can be another's poison, even before he's sampled it.

One phoner-in turned up his nose at every ingredient except the clams. Another insisted that without tomatoes, a chowder isn't worth eating.

A writer-in from Duncan made large claims for her own chowder, and offered rude and totally unjustified opinions about my wife's cooking.

But the cruelest wound was inflicted by Herb Warren, 1041 St. Charles Street.

"Thanks for your detailed recipe on how to make clam chowder," he writes, "For many of us, you forgot one item — throw the whole mess over the left shoulder, I don't like clams."

So be it . . . even if some people don't know what they're missing!

Mrs. Sue Talbot, who does what she can to help the helpless through Victoria's Community Action Group, is still without a car.

Because of crippling arthritis, she can't drive a stick-shift vehicle, and her old automatic transmission model has packed it up for keeps.

However, thanks to the kindness of a reader who offered help, Mrs. Talbot can now count on transport three mornings a week. She has also received donations totalling $55, which are salted away in a car fund.

"Eventually I'll be able to get another car," she says. "Until then, with the ride down and an occasional afternoon lift, I'm able to get on with my work."

That's it, except to relay a request from a friend of the feathered, who points out that several quail families of about 20 chicks each cross Memorial Crescent several times a day.

Her plea to drivers entering this crescent from Fairfield or Dallas: Slow down and spare them!

NDP Sweeps Saskatchewan In Stunning Election Rout

Thatcher to Quit As Grit Leader

Times News Services

REGINA — For the first time there will be two New Democratic Party governments in provincial power as Saskatchewan voters Wednesday handed a stunning rebuff to the Liberals.

Allan Blakeney, a 45-year-old lawyer, led an NDP upsurge that staggered even the most optimistic and ardent party supporters.

This left, also, for the first time, the old-line Liberal and Conservative parties without power west of Ontario with NDP in control of Manitoba and Social Credit in Alberta and B.C.

Hard on the heels of his party's humiliating defeat, Premier Ross Thatcher announced today he will ask the party to call a leadership convention as soon as possible and that he would not be a candidate.

He said today the NDP will take over the reins of Saskatchewan next Wednesday at 9 a.m. The announcement came after a brief cabinet meeting.

Thatcher Won in 1964

Thatcher ousted the CCF, predecessors to the NDP, in 1964, after a 20-year reign.

Standing as counting ended for the night:

| | 1971 | 1967 |
|---|---|---|
| NDP | 45 | 24 |
| Liberal | 14 | 35 |
| Doubtful | 1 | — |
| Total | 60 | 59 |

The doubtful seat was Athabasca where Allan Guy, municipal affairs minister, was trailing in a see-saw battle with his NDP opponent, businessman Robert Dalby.

Mr. Blakeney, heading the party for less than a year after taking over from Woodrow Lloyd, had predicted winning between 34 and 36 seats.

Whopping Popular Gain

The biggest margin held previously by the socialists in the province was in 1956 when the CF had 41 seats and the Liberals 10.

At dissolution of the last legislature, the Liberals held 34 seats, the NDP 24, with one seat vacant.

The NDP showed a whopping gain in the popular vote, to 54.9 per cent compared with 44.3 per cent in 1967. The Liberals' percentage dropped to 43.1 from 45.6 in 1967.

The Conservatives, led by Ed Nasserden, failed to elect any of their 16 candidates as their share of the popular vote declined to two per cent from 8.8 per cent for 41 candidates in 1967.

It was obvious that most of the Conservative votes went to the NDP in spite of a pre-election plea by former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker that they support the private enterprise party—meaning the Liberals.

Six Ministers Toppled

The electorate took its toll of cabinet ministers as six were toppled.

Even Provincial Treasurer Dave Steuart, touted as a successor to Mr. Thatcher, barely escaped defeat in Prince Albert West.

Defeated were Industry Minister Clarence Estey, Mineral Resources Minister Alex Cameron, Natural Resources Minister J. Ross Barrie, Agriculture Minister Doug McFarlane, Works Minister Lionel Coderre and Labor Minister Don MacLennan. James E. Snedker, Speaker of the legislature, was forced into retirement in Saltcoats constituency.

Rank-and-file Liberal backbenchers fell like tenpins as the NDP gained 21 seats from the Liberals. Each party won one new seat and the Liberals gained one from the NDP—Moose Jaw North, where the NDP claimed that redistribution last year assured the Liberals of a seat.

The NDP swept all six seats in Saskatoon — winning one new seat and gaining four from the Liberals—and held ground in Regina. But the party gained most of its support in rural areas.

Federal Liberals were not welcomed by Mr. Thatcher during the campaign, in which the NDP held the provincial Liberals partly

WHY THE BOGEY DIDN'T WORK

Premier Bennett today linked the defeat of the Liberal government in Saskatchewan to the "disarray" of federal government policies.

"That's what the Liberals will get everywhere," Bennett said. In reply to a question, he said the federal Liberals would also lose if they called an election now.

Asked why the "bogey" of socialism didn't prove an effective campaign tactic for defeated Saskatchewan Liberals, as it did for the B.C. Social Credit party in 1969, Bennett replied:

"Here they had the alternative of a real grass-roots movement not connected with the reactionary Liberals in Ottawa . . ."

Press Freedom Battle Rages

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major constitutional legal battle over government secrecy and freedom of the press headed to the United States Supreme Court today after appellate rulings in government suits against the New York Times and the Washington Post over articles based on classified Pentagon papers.

As a Los Angeles federal grand jury began an investigation into how the top secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was leaked, three other news organizations today printed articles they said were based at least in part on the 47-volume report.

An appeals court in Washington ruled Wednesday The Post could resume publication of its suspended series after 6 p.m. EDT Friday. A similar court in New York said The Times could also resume but could not use any material the government contends is dangerous to national security pending a lower court review of those documents.

The U.S. justice department, which has sought injunctions against The Times, The Post and the Boston Globe on the ground that publication of the papers threatened 'national security, said it would appeal the Washington ruling to the Supreme Court. The Times said it would appeal the New York ruling.

OTHERS PRINT STORIES

Meanwhile, Knight Newspapers Inc., which publishes 11 newspapers, and the Los Angeles Times today printed articles they said were based on the documents. The Chicago Sun Times also ran stories it said were drawn from the secret study and from "government documents."

'U.S. to Blame for War'—See Page 3

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court granted immunity to two persons subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury investigating what a justice department spokesman called possible violations of national security laws.

One of the two granted immunity was Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employee of the Rand Corp., a defence department "think-tank." His lawyer said he wanted to challenge the federal immunity statute and Russo did not testify Wednesday.

A one-time Rand and defence department employee, Daniel Ellsberg, has been named by a former New York Times reporter as the source that gave the Pentagon study to that newspaper.

Ellsberg, in a CBS television interview with Walter Cronkite Wednesday, did not comment on that charge. But he said the notion that the study was leaked to embarrass former president Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" when the full document is made public.

The Chicago Sun-Times says in today's editions that documents in the study revealed that a key plotter in the coup that ousted President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam informed the U.S. embassy 26 days prior to the

U.S. Dominates Money Inflow

OTTAWA (CP) — Another $285 million of foreign ownership investment came into Canada during the first three months of 1971, almost as much as the near-record figure in the previous quarter, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Foreign capital coming into Canada in long-term forms for direct investment in foreign controlled Canadian enterprises amounted to $290 million in the last three months of 1970, and to a record $302 million in the last quarter of 1966.

In the decade of the 1960s, the inflow of foreign direct investment in Canada totalled more than $5,500 million. Another $760 million came in during the 12 months of 1970. Figures for earlier years are not comparable because of the changing purchasing power of the dollar and the running down of dollar values on company account books over the years.

'Yellow Journalism' Blasted Over Sex Survey Stories

HAMILTON (CP) — Health Minister John Munro lashed out Wednesday night at "irresponsible yellow journalism" for what he said were inaccurate and intentionally deceptive reports on the government's Youth Culture 1971 program.

He singled out "a Toronto newspaper"—not named—that published an interview with a worker involved in the youth study.

Mr. Munro told a meeting of the Hamilton East Liberal Association—after a Commons statement by him on the issue earlier in the day—that there is no question of spying or secrecy involved in the attitude survey of Canadian youth.

In the Toronto interview, a young researcher has said the study "scares hell out of me."

200 HIRED

She said the government has hired about 200 young persons to observe their peers secretly. She quoted from her copy of the The Recording Procedure Manual, issued to researchers by the federal health department.

"Upon leaving the field," the manual states, "immediately proceed to a private or semiprivate location, e.g., park bench, restaurant, where you can transfer the essential items . . . to paper."

"In the case of extended observations it is recommended that this task be performed during, as well as after, the observation by retiring to the bathroom for a few minutes."

"Never return to the field with your notes," the manual instructs.

Mr. Munro did not deny that the manual also asks the young workers to determine how young people provide for sexual needs—whether through "regular dating patterns, prostitution, masturbation, hustling on street . . ."

But he said it was only one isolated item in what he called a "participant observation survey."

And, Mr. Munro said, the student researchers were told to identify themselves when questioning their peers.

CODE NAMES USED

The criteria of the study were determined by 32 team leaders, the minister said, and they state that no individual is to be named. Code names or initials were to be used.

A final report on the three-month survey will only be published if the team leaders agree, unanimously, although the results will be made available to the health department, he said.

The individual reports were to be destroyed.

Mr. Munro defended the survey, saying it is needed to determine what goes on in the minds of young people today.

"The transient youth problem has become so big in recent years," the minister said, "we don't know the best way to go about it."

"How do we know how to set . . . up the best agencies and help them from city to city? That is all we wanted to do."

Six Victorians Hold Tickets for Sweep

Six Victorians will be watching the horses with more than cursory interest Saturday in the Irish Sweeps Derby at Curragh, near Dublin.

The six are among 10 Vancouver Islanders who have drawn tickets in the latest sweepstake. A total of 229 Canadians stand a chance to win one of the big prizes.

Victoria ticket holders are as follows, with horse's name, ticket number, name and nom de plume:

Dammar — BNE 21600, Joe Ellis, At Last.

Turbulent Eddy — ADD 83966, F. L. Norton, Tara.

Linden Tree — AEE 45937, Guss Prepp, Prawn.

Galileo-Galilei — XBX 73737, Mrs. J. Fisher, Honeymoon.

Wenceslas — ACC 70801, T. L. Mollet, What a Hope.

Grimaldo — ACK 83005, Lillian Jones, Nicky.

First prize is worth about $124,000 at current exchange rates; second prize about $49,600 and third prize, $24,800.

Holders of tickets on non-starters or horses out of the money each will receive a prize of about $1,100. The amount varies with the total pool.

The "super prize" of $480,000 was won by a Chicago couple — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department.

Albert Caldwell, 37, bought the winning ticket for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Her name was pulled from the huge revolving drum, containing 4,554,560 tickets from all over the world.

The sweeps, held three times yearly, are international lotteries held in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland.

The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated since the sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada.

WAITRESS ON WELFARE WINS HALF MILLION

CHICAGO (UPI) — An unemployed cab driver and his girl friend — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department — shared the "super prize" of $480,000 Wednesday in the Irish Sweepstakes draw.

Albert Caldwell, 37, of Chicago's south side, bought the winning ticken for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Mrs. Williams' name was pulled from a huge revolving drum containing 4,554,569 tickets from throughout the world.

* * *

Caldwell says Mrs. Williams will marry him as soon as her divorce becomes final.

"I can't make my heart stop pounding" Mrs. Williams, the mother of two children, said.

Caldwell, who put his address on the winning ticket, was awakened early Wednesday and told the news.

* * *

"I've been a gambler all my life," he said. "I've always dreamed of the big money and now the Lord has answered my prayers. I'm so nervous I feel it right in the pit of my stomach."

Mrs. Williams first found out about the ticket from a neighbor who banged on her door at about 5 a.m.

"I thought the lady was crazy," Mrs. Williams said, "talking about a half million dollars. I didn't even open my door."

Vancouver Defeats Four Seasons Park

VANCOUVER (CP)—A plebiscite which asked ratepayers if they favored spending $9 million to purchase and develop 14.5 acres of land as an addition to Stanley Park was defeated Wednesday after failing to get the necessary 60 per cent majority.

Yes votes totalled 24,625 while 33,149 voted against, for a 51.5 per cent majority. Some 119,620 property owners in the city were eligible to vote.

CONTROVERSY

The plebiscite appeared to have decisively ended a controversy that built up to a head in the last year over plans of Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. of Toronto to construct three 30-storey apartment buildings and a hotel at the edge of Stanley Park.

Construction is expected to start next month. Two small hurdles remain, though.

A court case contesting four city bylaws which allowed a higher population density on the site than previously is pending in British Columbia Supreme Court. It has the backing of Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The second barrier is the presence of demonstrators who have squatted on the development site for several weeks, declaring it an "all seasons park." They vowed to stay until the development was blocked.

The owners have so far refrained from evicting them.

21 Hydro Operations Picketed

Picket lines were established at 21 B.C. Hydro operations in British Columbia today as the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers entered the third day of a near-full-scale strike against the utility.

Previously, only the Jordan River hydro-electric construction project was picketed. There was no picketing at the huge Mica Dam in the Interior.

Electrical service to customers continued with skeleton union crews remaining in generating stations. B.C. Hydro said it has reports of some outages in different locations which have been repaired. There was none in Victoria.

The picket lines were established at a number of B.C. Hydro construction sites in the Interior and three stores outlets in Vancouver.

The B.C. Federation of Labor, meanwhile, said it "will not stand idly by" if B.C. Hydro or the B.C. government attempts to use the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33) to force a settlement and a return to work.

Press Freedom Battle Rages

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major constitutional legal battle over government secrecy and freedom of the press headed to the United States Supreme Court today after appellate rulings in government suits against the New York Times and the Washington Post over articles based on classified Pentagon papers.

As a Los Angeles federal grand jury began an investigation into how the top secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was leaked, three other news organizations today printed articles they said were based at least in part on the 47-volume report.

An appeals court in Washington ruled Wednesday The Post could resume publication of its suspended series after 6 p.m. EDT Friday. A similar court in New York said The Times could also resume but could not use any material the government contends is dangerous to national security pending a lower court review of those documents.

The U.S. justice department, which has sought injunctions against The Times, The Post and the Boston Globe on the ground that publication of the papers threatened national security, said it would appeal the Washington ruling to the Supreme Court. The Times said it would appeal the New York ruling.

Meanwhile, Knight Newspapers Inc., which publishes 11 newspapers, and the Los Angeles Times today printed articles they said were based on the documents. The Chicago Sun-Times also ran stories it said were drawn from the secret study and from "government documents."

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court granted immunity to two persons subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury investigating what a justice department spokesman called possible violations of national security laws.

One of the two granted immunity was Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employee of the Rand Corp., a defence department "think-tank." His lawyer said he wanted to challenge the federal immunity statute and Russo did not testify Wednesday.

A one-time Rand and defence department employee, Daniel Ellsberg, has been named by a former New York Times reporter as the source that gave the Pentagon study to that newspaper.

Ellsberg, in a CBS television interview with Walter Cronkite Wednesday, did not comment on that charge. But he said the notion that the study was leaked to embarrass former president Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" when the full document is made public.

The Chicago Sun-Times says in today's editions that documents in the study revealed that a key plotter in the coup that ousted President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam informed the U.S. embassy 26 days prior to the

U.S. Dominates Money Inflow

OTTAWA (CP) — Another $285 million of foreign ownership investment came into Canada during the first three months of 1971, almost as much as the near-record figure in the previous quarter, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Foreign capital coming into Canada in long-term forms for direct investment in foreign controlled Canadian enterprises amounted to $290 million in the last three months of 1970, and to a record $302 million in the last quarter of 1966.

In the decade of the 1960s, the inflow of foreign direct investment in Canada totalled more than $5,500 million. Another $760 million came in during the 12 months of 1970. Figures for earlier years are not comparable because of the changing purchasing power of the dollar and the running down of dollar values on company account books over the years.

Thatcher to Quit As Grit Leader

Times News Services

REGINA — For the first time there will be two New Democratic Party governments in provincial power as Saskatchewan voters Wednesday handed a stunning rebuff to the Liberals.

Allan Blakeney, a 45-year-old lawyer, led an NDP upsurge that staggered even the most optimistic and ardent party supporters.

This left, also for the first time, the old-line Liberal and Conservative parties without power west of Ontario with NDP in control of Manitoba and Social Credit in Alberta and B.C.

Hard on the heels of his party's humiliating defeat, Premier Ross Thatcher announced today he will ask the party to call a leadership convention as soon as possible and that he would not be a candidate.

He said today the NDP will take over the reins of Saskatchewan next Wednesday at 9 a.m. The announcement came after a brief cabinet meeting.

Thatcher Won in 1964

Thatcher ousted the CCF, predecessors to the NDP, in 1964, after a 20-year reign.

Standing as counting ended for the night:

| | 1971 | 1967 |
|---|---|---|
| NDP | 45 | 24 |
| Liberal | 14 | 35 |
| Doubtful | 1 | — |
| Total | 60 | 59 |

The doubtful seat was Athabasca where Allan Guy, municipal affairs minister, was trailing in a see-saw battle with his NDP opponent, businessman Robert Dalby.

Mr. Blakeney, heading the party for less than a year after taking over from Woodrow Lloyd, had predicted winning between 34 and 36 seats.

Whopping Popular Gain

The biggest margin held previously by the socialists in the province was in 1956 when the CF had 41 seats and the Liberals 10.

At dissolution of the last legislature, the Liberals held 34 seats, the NDP 24, with one seat vacant.

The NDP showed a whopping gain in the popular vote, to 54.9 per cent compared with 44.3 per cent in 1967. The Liberals' percentage dropped to 43.1 from 45.6 in 1967.

The Conservatives, led by Ed Nasserden, failed to elect any of their 16 candidates as their share of the popular vote declined to two per cent from 9.8 per cent for 41 candidates in 1967.

It was obvious that most of the Conservative votes went to the NDP in spite of a pre-election plea by former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker that they support the private enterprise party—meaning the Liberals.

Six Ministers Toppled

The electorate took its toll of cabinet ministers as six were toppled.

Even Provincial Treasurer Dave Steuart, touted as a successor to Mr. Thatcher, barely escaped defeat in Prince Albert West.

Defeated were Industry Minister Clarence Estey, Mineral Resources Minister Alex Cameron, Natural Resources Minister J. Ross Barrie, Agriculture Minister Doug McFarlane, Works Minister Lionel Coderre and Labor Minister Don MacLennan. James E. Snedker, Speaker of the legislature, was forced into retirement in Saltcoats constituency.

Rank-and-file Liberal back-benchers fell like tenpins as the NDP gained 21 seats from the Liberals. Each party won one new seat and the Liberals gained one from the NDP—Moose Jaw North, where the NDP claimed that redistribution last year assured the Liberals of a seat.

The NDP swept all six seats in Saskatoon — winning one new seat and gaining four from the Liberals—and held ground in Regina. But the party gained most of its support in rural areas.

Federal Liberals were not welcomed by Mr. Thatcher during the campaign, in which the NDP held the provincial Liberals partly

'Yellow Journalism' Blasted Over Sex Survey Stories

HAMILTON (CP) — Health Minister John Munro lashed out Wednesday night at "irresponsible yellow journalism" for what he said were inaccurate and intentionally deceptive reports on the government's Youth Culture 1971 program.

He singled out "a Toronto newspaper"—not named—that published an interview with a worker involved in the youth study.

Mr. Munro told a meeting of the Hamilton East Liberal Association—after a Commons statement by him on the issue earlier in the day—that there is no question of spying or secrecy involved in the attitude survey of Canadian youth.

In the Toronto interview, a young researcher has said the study "scares hell out of me."

200 HIRED

She said the government has hired about 200 young persons to observe their peers secretly. She quoted from her copy of the The Recording Procedure Manual, issued to researchers by the federal health department.

"Upon leaving the field," the manual states, "immediately proceed to a private or semiprivate location, e.g., park bench, restaurant, where you can transfer the essential items . . . to paper."

"In the case of extended observations it is recommended that this task be performed during, as well as after, the observation by retiring to the bathroom for a few minutes."

"Never return to the field with your notes," the manual instructs.

Mr. Munro did not deny that the manual also asks the young workers to determine how young people provide for sexual needs—whether through "regular dating patterns, prostitution, masturbation, hustling on street . . ."

But he said it was only one isolated item in what he called a "participant observation survey."

And, Mr. Munro said, the student researchers were told to identify themselves when questioning their peers.

CODE NAMES USED

The criteria of the study were determined by 32 team leaders, the minister said, and they state that no individual is to be named. Code names or initials were to be used.

A final report on the three-month survey will only be published if the team leaders agree unanimously, although the results will be made available to the health department, he said.

The individual reports were to be destroyed.

Mr. Munro defended the survey, saying it is needed to determine what goes on in the minds of young people today.

"The transient youth problem has become so big in recent years," the minister said, "we don't know the best way to go about it."

"How do we know how to set . . . up the best agencies and help them from city to city? That is all we wanted to do."

Six Victorians Hold Tickets for Sweep

Six Victorians will be watching the horses with more than cursory interest Saturday in the Irish Sweeps Derby at Curragh, near Dublin.

The six are among 10 Vancouver Islanders who have drawn tickets in the latest sweepstake. A total of 229 Canadians stand a chance to win one of the big prizes.

Victoria ticket holders are as follows, with horse's name, ticket number, name and nom de plume:

Danmar — BNE 21600, Joe Ellis, At Last.

Turbulent Eddy — ADD 83966, F. L. Norton, Tara.

Linden Tree — AEE 45937, Guss Prepp, Prawn.

Galileo-Galilei — XBX 73737, Mrs. J. Fisher, Honeymoon.

Wencesias — ACC 70801, T. L. Moillet, What a Hope.

Grimaldo — ACK 83005, Lillian Jones, Nicky.

First prize is worth about $124,000 at current exchange rates; second prize about $49,600 and third prize, $24,800.

Holders of tickets on nonstarters or horses out of the money each will receive a prize of about $1,100. The amount varies with the total pool.

The "super prize" of $480,000 was won by a Chicago couple — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department.

Albert Caldwell, 37, bought the winning ticket for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Her name was pulled from the huge revolving drum containing 4,554,560 tickets from all over the world.

The sweeps, held three times yearly, are international lotteries held in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland.

The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated since the sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada.

WAITRESS ON WELFARE WINS HALF MILLION

CHICAGO (UPI) — An unemployed cab driver and his girl friend — an unemployed waitress receiving $147.50 a month from the welfare department — shared the "super prize" of $480,000 Wednesday in the Irish Sweepstakes draw.

Albert Caldwell, 37, of Chicago's south side, bought the winning ticken for Mrs. Robbie J. Williams, his girl friend for the past six years. Mrs. Williams' name was pulled from a huge revolving drum containing 4,554,569 tickets from throughout the world.

Caldwell says Mrs. Williams will marry him as soon as her divorce becomes final.

"I can't make my heart stop pounding" Mrs. Williams, the mother of two children, said.

Caldwell, who put his address on the winning ticket, was awakened early Wednesday and told the news.

★ ★ ★

"I've been a gambler all my life," he said. "I've always dreamed of the big money and now the Lord has answered my prayers. I'm so nervous I feel it right in the pit of my stomach."

Mrs. Williams first found out about the ticket from a neighbor who banged on her door at about 5 a.m.

"I thought the lady was crazy," Mrs. Williams said, "talking about a half million dollars. I didn't even open my door."

Vancouver Defeats Four Seasons Park

VANCOUVER (CP)—A plebiscite which asked ratepayers if they favored spending $9 million to purchase and develop 14.5 acres of land as an addition to Stanley Park was defeated Wednesday after failing to get the necessary 60 per cent majority.

Yes votes totalled 24,625 while 23,149 voted against, for a 51.5 per cent majority. Some 119,620 property owners in the city were eligible to vote.

CONTROVERSY

The plebiscite appeared to have decisively ended a controversy that built up to a head in the last year over plans of Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. of Toronto to construct three 30-storey apartment buildings and a hotel at the edge of Stanley Park.

Construction is expected to start next month. Two small hurdles remain, though.

A court case contesting four city bylaws which allowed a higher population density on the site than previously is pending in British Columbia Supreme Court. It has the backing of Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The second barrier is the presence of demonstrators who have squatted on the development site for several weeks, declaring it an "all seasons park." They vowed to stay until the development was blocked.

The owners have so far refrained from evicting them.

21 Hydro Operations Picketed

Picket lines were established at 21 B.C. Hydro operations in British Columbia today as the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers entered the third day of a near-full-scale strike against the utility.

Previously, only the Jordan River hydro-electric construction project was picketed. There was no picketing at the huge Mica Dam in the Interior.

Electrical service to customers continued with skeleton union crews remaining in generating stations. B.C. Hydro said it has reports of some outages in different locations which have been repaired. There was none in Victoria.

The picket lines were established at a number of B.C. Hydro construction sites in the Interior and three stores outlets in Vancouver.

The B.C. Federation of Labor, meanwhile, said it "will not stand idly by" if B.C. Hydro or the B.C. government attempts to use the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33) to force a settlement and a return to work.

. . . NDP

responsible for federal policies, particularly in agriculture.

Mr. Blakeney told a cheering crowd at a victory celebration the result was a "straight repudiation of federal agriculture policies."

SERVED UNDER DOUGLAS

No stranger to government, the NDP leader held the provincial portfolios of treasurer and health between 1960 and 1964 in the governments of T. C. Douglas, former national NDP leader and Saskatchewan premier Mr. Lloyd.

Some party officials said they felt Mr. Blakeney was able to get closer to the electorate during the campaign by travelling widely by bus while Mr. Thatcher flew from rally to rally.

He intends to get right down to work by calling the legislature into session in late July.

Top priority will be given to the health field, removing medical deterrent fees and eliminating medical care insurance premiums for citizens 65 years and over.

The charges, long criticized by the NDP as a tax against the sick and poor, are $2.50 a day for the first 30 days and $1.50 a day thereafter to a maximum of $180 a year a family. A charge of $1.50 is made for each visit to doctor.

TO CUT DRUG COSTS

Mr. Blakeney also promised to "drastically reduce costs of essential drugs, eyeglasses, dentures, hearing aids, braces and wheel chairs."

In other areas, he has promised to preserve the family farm by setting up a land bank comission to enable retiring farmers to pass the farms on to young people.

The Liberal government's resource policies were a major thorn in the side of the NDP in opposition. Charges of "give-away" often accompanied announcement of a new industry.

Of particular concern was the proposed $117.7 million Athabasca pulp mill at Dore Lake in northern Saskatchewan. That deal was ratified by the last legislature but unless the developers, Parons and Whittemore of New York, agree to major revisions, it likely will be thrown out.

Fate of a multi-million-dolar Iron ore mine, announced jointly by the government and Denison Mines earlier this year, aso is in doubt. Premier Thatcher had made few facts known about the agreement.

Mr. Blakeney says the NDP "will encourage balanced development which will create jobs and activities that are in harmony with the environment — such as selective harvesting of timber, hunting, trapping, mining, commercial fishing and particularly tourism."

HELP FOR BUSINESS

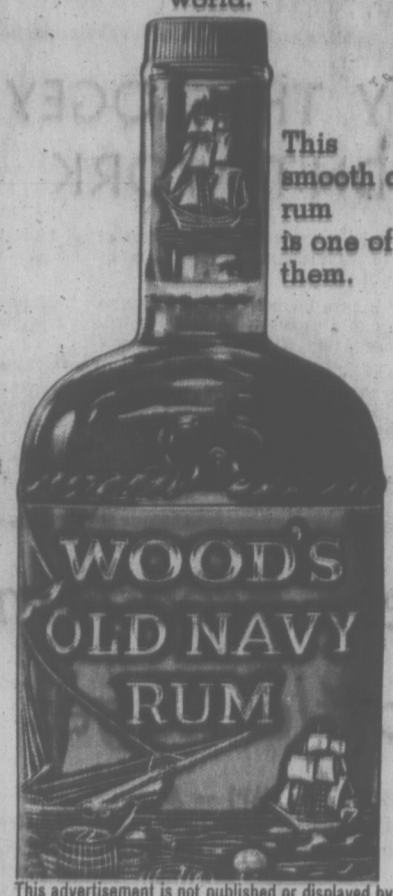
Small business, as opposed to large corporations from the United States, have been promised help in the form of a special agency to provide various assistance.

The NDP also promised to establish a prices and review board to impose selective controls on profits, wages and interest rates if Ottawa failed to take appropriate action in that field.

There are very few things left for the men in this world.



This smooth dark rum is one of them.

Church Boat May Join Blast Protest

The British Columbia Conference of the United Church of Canada is considering joining a protest voyage to Amchitka Island, where the United States plans a nuclear test blast this fall.

Rev. Robert Morris of Victoria's First United Church, president of the B.C. conference, said Wednesday the church vessel Thomas Crosby V operated by the Prince Rupert presbytery may join the Greenpeace Mission sponsored by Vancouver's Don't Make a Wave committee.

Prince Rupert's approval would be required, he said, and permission would have to be granted by the Board of Home Missions in Toronto, which is responsible for the vessel's budget and care.

Morris said he did not know the cost of sending the Thomas Crosby V and its five-member crew on the six-week journey, and added "We want the crew to be willing to go, not ordered to go."

The B.C. Conference unanimously adopted a resolution that strongly protested the nuclear blast on Amchitka Island.

"We think that the test should not be held," Morris said . . . "and we are seeking a means to make visible this protest."

The explosion on Amchitka Island in addition to being close to an earthquake zone, would be closer to Russia, Japan and Canada than it would be to the U.S., he said.

Meanwhile, the Greenpeace mission has received word that the insurance on the boat will be reinstated, spokesman Jim Bohlen said, but is waiting for official written confirmation o fthe change indicated by federal Environment Minister Jack Davis.

The fisheries department had earlier said the insurance on the boat would be void because the vessel would not be on a fishing trip.

Some In, Some Out In MB Labor Trouble

Labor troubles which hit five operations of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Wednesday took a variety of turns today.

The company's plywood mill at Port Alberni remains shut down in a dispute over new grading procedures on the green chain. About 590 men working three shifts are off the job.

Fallers and buckers quit work at four logging divisions Wednesday in a dispute within the union over a new pricing procedure and working formula.

BACK ON JOB

At Franklin River south of Port Alberni and at Juskatla on the Queen Charlotte Islands the men were back today and the divisions at full operation.

The walkout has spread at the Eve River division which is not completely shut down at Kelsey Bay, three of about 35 fallers are back at work today and the rest of the operation is proceeding.

About 150 men are involved in the shutdown at Eve River.

John Squire, secretary of Local 1-85 of the International Woodworkers of America, said the fallers' walkout resulted from a complete misunderstanding among the rank-and-file of what the union executive has negotiated on a pricing procedure and working formula.

Loggers had claimed they were "sold out" by the executive which signed a new pricing agreement but Squire explained no agreement has been signed and when it is it will be taken to the membership for ratification.

PRELIMINARY

The document which has been signed is simply a preliminary agreement dealing with work practices, he said.

Of the dispute at the plywood mill, Squire said it is currently a stalemate over grading procedures which involve workload. Senior union representatives are working on it and there will be meetings later today.

coup that assassination of Diem was one of three courses being contemplated.

'Sources, which involved the Pentagon study, indicate that the administration of President John F. Kennedy did not order or engineer the coup, although it gave many signals that the coup would not be unwelcome," the Sun-Times says.

The Chicago newspaper also quotes "government documents" as revealing that Kennedy sent then Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson to Vietnam in May, 1961, with orders to "encourage" South Vietnam to request U.S. ground troops. Diem resisted the idea, The Sun-Times says.

Roger Hilsman, a former state department official, said Wednesday that two memos he wrote in 1963 about the possible overthrow of Diem were taken out of context and misinterpreted by The Sun-Times in its Tuesday editions.

The Sun-Times stories say Hilsman recommended Diem be overthrown if he entered negotiations with North Vietnam. Hilsman said the memos were "contingency documents" that had no connection with Diem's ouster in November.

SUGGESTION REJECTED

The Los Angeles Times says that the Pentagon study also showed that the National Security Council rejected a recommendation by a state department expert in 1963 that the United States pull out of Vietnam because it could not win the war aganst the Communists.

Paul M. Kattenburg, then head of the state department's Vietnam working group, made the recommendation but it was overruled by State Secretary Dean Rusk, the newspaper says.

The Knight Newspapers story, as published in the Philadelphia Inquirer, cites the Pentagon documents in reporting that Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara proposed a coalition government for Vietnam in 1967.

The story says the documents showed McNamara emerging as "a tragic figure who rapidly became disillusioned with the war he had recommended."

Three-Year Limit Set For Grants

The provincial cabinet has decided that capital projects won't "normally" qualify for any of the grants under the $25 million drug, alcohol and cigarette education fund.

Guidelines for the fund, set up at the 1971 session of the legislature, also limit grants to projects of three years' or less duration.

But Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today this doesn't mean the fund isn't available to help permanently established rehabilitation centres, for instance. It means grants won't be committed for more than three years at a time.

About $1.5 million annually is expected to be available fog grants from the fund. Premier Bennett said earlier that the first grants may be made around Sept. 1.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE WHITE KILLER WHALE?

IAC
We help make things happen.

Scope and diversification.

We're like someone with many arms. Today we're the largest company of our kind in Canada—and one of the largest in the world.

Because of the things we do, Canadians live a better life—and Canada grows. Companies can sell everything from automobiles to aircraft, from mobile homes to mobile cranes. We make it possible for farmers to buy machinery and equipment. Lumber mills get new saws. Railways get additional trains. We lease helicopters for moving mining equipment and finance x-ray equipment for hospitals.

How does a doctors' clinic or a new modern office get the expensive modern equipment it needs? Often through financing systems we devise specifically for this purpose. We may have provided the financial assistance necessary to get the school buses your community needs. Or the processing equipment a company needs to put food on your table.

Those are some of the things IAC itself does.

Niagara Finance Company Limited makes it possible for people to buy a new chesterfield or take a well-deserved trip.

The Niagara mortgage companies provide shelter for Canadians through first and second mortgage loans, mortgage discounting and combined mortgages.

Our Merit Insurance Company insures cars and homes.

The Sovereign Life Assurance Company of Canada offers life insurance, annuities, estate planning, and key man and partnership insurance.

On top of that, we are proudly an all-Canadian company. Every working day, IAC companies make $6 million in funds available to consumers, business, and industry. Sure we make a profit—and as a consequence, can grow and continue to make a strong contribution to a healthy Canadian economy.

Scope and diversification. We have that all right.

And what it all adds up to is: we help you make things happen.

'Don't Fear' Neighbor

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians, to avoid American domination, "must understand and not repudiate, our great neighbor," Dr. Claude Bissell, retiring president of the University of Toronto, said Wednesday night.

"Understanding America does not mean accepting America," he told more than 300 delegates to the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism.

"Our nation was launched, in part, because of our fear of the United States and our determination to order our affairs differently.

"We shall achieve a national serenity when the fear and the determination cease to be obsessive; when we live and flourish in our own sovereign right," Dr. Bissell said.

AMERICANS PUZZLED

"We have all participated in American-Canadian discussions in which the American members are puzzled by Canadian concerns for identity and genuinely distressed by Canadian assertiveness and hostility.

"We explain to our American friends that our concern arises from the pressure of great impersonal forces — geographic, economic, political and cultural —that have been with us since the beginning of our national existence and that today seem to be moving towards a menacing resolution."

Although Canada does not have the old-fashioned kind of nationalism, which requires a self-assurance and the capacity for symbolic recreation of the past, "when we are sober . . . we are concerned with survival, a concern just as deep in the hearts of English Canadians as of French Canadians," he said.
